HEAVY FIGHTING BREAKS OUT ON JEHOI FRONT

Japanese Assert Initiative was Taken by Chinese Forces

A GENERAL STAFF RUN WILD

LORD LYTTON AND JAPAN

SCATHING PARIS SPEECH

STRONG ATTACK ON WAR LORDS

Paris, Feb. 20.
A scathing indictment of Japan's attitude towards her international obligations was made by the Earl of Lytton in the course of a striking speech here to-day at a meeting of the Peace Society.

Lord Lytton said Japan did not appear to have kept pace with the latest development of the political thought and practice of the West. Although she had established a democratic Government, her Army and Navy were still organised on a feudal basis, and the heads of her fighting Services, though entitled Ministers, were independent and responsible to the Government alone.

The efficiency of these Ministers was not questioned, but the attitude of the Japanese General Staff was that of that Prussian General Staff from 1870 to 1914.

JAMESON RAID PARALLEL

At the same time, the present attitude of Japanese nationals in Manchuria, by their actions of the last eighteen months, appears to be that of the authors of the Jameson Raid in South Africa in 1895.

The political thought of Europe, said Lord Lytton, has changed in the last decade almost as much as the change which took place in Japan between 1860 and 1900. International relationships were now governed by the League Covenant and the Kellogg Pact, and it was no longer possible for any country to be the sole arbiter of the action it might take in pursuit of national interests.

CHINA'S MANPOWER.

The General Staff of every country was necessarily subject to-day not merely to the control of its national Government, but to the obligations of these national instruments.

"That fact," said Lord Lytton, "appears to have been insufficiently appreciated by Japan, and failure to appreciate it has produced the present Far Eastern crisis."

Referring to China, Lord Lytton said the immediately urgent questions were how China could be helped, and how soon a strong Central Government could be established.

He was most impressed by the colossal man-power of China, the future of which seemed to be wrapped up in the questions of how, when and by whom this splendid manhood could be given the unifying force of national consciousness.

"Geneva or Moscow? The shadow of that great question is cast over the East and West. At present, China has chosen Geneva, but if Japan persists in her present policy

NAZI WAR ON THE REDS

STARTLING GOERING ORDER TO POLICE

SHOOT TO KILL

Berlin, Feb. 20.
Captain Goering, the Prussian Commissioner for the Interior and Herr Hitler's right-hand man in the Nazi organisation, to-day issued a somewhat startling order to the Berlin police.

He has ordered the police to shoot down Communists "and other enemies of the State" without hesitation and simultaneously instructed them to protect and establish the friendliest relations with Nationalist organisations like the Nazi storm-troops, and the Steel Helmets.

RUTHLESSNESS PERMITTED.
The order says that weapons may be used ruthlessly against organisations hostile to the State and protection is promised to the police using firearms in the exercise of their duties, whatever may be the consequences of the shooting.

The police are enjoined to remember that it is more reprehensible to omit a repressive measure than to make an error in execution.—Reuter.

DOLLAR RISES A FARTHING

LOCAL UNDERTONE FIRM

The Hongkong dollar rose a farthing this morning to 1s. 3½d. The local market is still somewhat uncertain, but the undertone is firm.

In London, silver rose 1/16th. China bought and there were small offerings on a steady market. After the official fixing, the market ruled firm, business being reported at 1/16th over the quoted rates, at which price America was inclined to buy.

In New York, silver advanced one cent from 26½ to 27½, with the market erratic.

and Geneva fails, the choice may be, however reluctantly, reversed.

JAPAN'S FEARS.

Continuing, Lord Lytton said Japan feared the spread to Korea of Russian Communism, and saw with anxiety the rising tide of Chinese Communism from the South. Nanking could have welcomed her help in resisting both, but instead, Japan had chosen to interpose forcibly a buffer State of her own creation—Manchuria—which cannot but increase the very danger against which it was meant to guard.

"When I use the word 'Japan,'" said Lord Lytton, "I must not be misunderstood. The Japanese people have always been sincere and enthusiastic in support of the League of Nations, but the Japanese General Staff, which momentarily controls the Government of Japan, believes it can successfully defy both Moscow and Geneva. That road can never lead to peace."—Reuter.

ARMIES AT GRIPS AT CHAOYANG

GENERAL OFFENSIVE NOT YET BEGUN

BATTLE STILL IN PROGRESS

CHINCHOW, FEB. 21.

SEVERE FIGHTING BEGAN IN THE REGION OF CHAOYANGFU TO-DAY, LARGE FORCES OF JAPANESE TROOPS BEING THROWN INTO THE FIRING LINE FROM THE BASE AT CHINCHOW.

The Japanese assert that the Chinese opened the fighting with an attack on the Chinese garrison. The region is now the scene of feverish military activity, but up to the moment no information is forthcoming regarding the progress of the battle.

Elsewhere along the Jehol frontier, the troops are waiting in an atmosphere of tense expectancy, but as far as is known the Japanese have not yet issued orders for a general advance.—Reuter.

New York, Feb. 20.

Foreign exchange and silver currencies advanced sharply on the New York Metal Market to-day with heavy speculation in metal induced by the threats of war in the Far East.—Reuter.

Tokyo, Feb. 21.

Japanese despatches declare that the fighting was precipitated by a Chinese attempt to encircle the Japanese garrison, which was promptly reinforced.

Following the Chinese attack, the Japanese are reported to have launched a counter-attack. The Japanese are expected to advance to Peipiao which is the terminus of the branch railway to the Jehol border.—Reuter.

NO NEUTRAL ZONE.

Peking, Feb. 21.

The Tokyo suggestion that a Sino-Japanese compromise might be reached for the establishment of a neutral zone in the Great Wall region has met with strong disapproval by Chinese official circles.

Mr. T. V. Soong, the Finance Minister, has concluded his conference with Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, arranging the programme of resistance, to the Japanese advance in Jehol, although the Government is worried about a shortage of foodstuffs in Jehol. It is alleged that Japanese agents have been operating in Jehol purchasing large quantities of food-stuffs with the intention of jeopardising the defence.

Chang Hsueh-liang has not yet decided on the appointment of a Commander-in-Chief to direct the whole of the defence armies in Jehol.—Special.

DUTCH WARSHIP MUTINY

INQUIRY REPORT CONCLUSIONS

COMMANDER NOW RELIEVED

Batavia, Feb. 20.
The Commission of Inquiry into the sensational events following the mutiny aboard the Dutch battleship, De Zeven Provinciën, have submitted a preliminary report to the commander-in-chief.

The conclusions reached in the interim report were outlined by the Navy Commander in a statement before the People's Council to-day.

He said that sections of both the native and European crew planned the outbreak, which was due to dissatisfaction with the recent pay cuts.

The dissatisfaction was particularly great among the native ratings, who felt that they had been unfairly discriminated against.

SENIOR OFFICERS RELIEVED.

The success of the mutiny, according to the Commission of Inquiry, was made possible by the lack of special precautionary measures and the absence ashore of the senior officers and the majority of the petty officers.

He added that it had not yet been satisfactorily proved that the officers acted sufficiently energetically in their attempts to regain control. The Commander and the First Officer have been relieved of their posts and discipline has been restored.—Reuter.

INTERNATIONAL HORSE SHOW

EFFORTS TO KEEP IT GOING

London, Feb. 20.
Although the Company which has run the annual International Horse Show decided to-day to be wound up voluntarily, efforts are being made independently, by Lord Londsdale and other influential sportsmen, to hold the show this year on the same scale as that of last summer, which was the most successful of recent years.—British Wireless.

Miami, Feb. 20.

Fears for the life of Mr. Anton Cermark, victim of last week's shooting outrage, appear to be growing, though hopes have not by any means been abandoned.

Five doctors are now attending the Mayor, while Mr. Frederick Tice, the famous Chicago heart specialist, has arrived for a consultation with the other medical experts.—Reuter.

ZANGARA SENTENCED.

Miami, Feb. 20.

Zangara, the man who attempted to shoot the President-Elect, Mr. Franklin Roosevelt, was to-day sentenced to a total of eighty years' imprisonment.

There were four charges against him; all of attempted murder and he was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment on each charge, the sentences to run consecutively.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Charles in respect of the shooting of Mr. Anton Cermark, the Mayor of Chicago and Mrs. Gill, both of whom are still in a various condition, have not yet been laid.

THE FINAL EDITIONS OF THE "TELEGRAPH" TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW WILL CONTAIN RACE RESULTS AND CASH SWEEPS UP TO AND INCLUDING THE EIGHTH RACE.

Zangara pleaded guilty to all the charges, thereby putting an end to expectations that he would attempt to escape imprisonment by claiming that he was insane at the time the attack was made.—Reuter.

AIR KILLING HORRORS

BRITISH POLICY AT GENEVA

THE CONTROL OF AVIATION

London, Feb. 20.
The task of devising a practical scheme, which the words of Lord Londonderry, the British Air Minister, "will give to all nations real protection against horrors to which the imagination can put no limit, while preserving for their use and convenience the beneficent development of peaceful flying," was begun at Geneva to-day by the air committee of the disarmament conference.

The Committee met, in pursuance of the resolution passed by a general commission, "to examine the possibility of the entire abolition of military and naval aircraft and bombing from air, combined with effective control of civil aviation."

Referring to the menace which the misuse of aircraft would constitute to civil population, Lord Londonderry said:

"Their development in the last twenty years has laid open to attack cities and centres of population lying far behind the frontier. Each year has seen an increase in the speed, range and carrying capacity of machines so that already aircraft exist which could launch an air attack from one end of Europe to the other."

"Even oceans are no longer a barrier and as aircraft, whether civil or military, are increasingly annihilating time and distance, the whole world is becoming as one continent."

He was authorised to restate on behalf of his Government, the declaration made last November by Sir John Simon, that the United Kingdom Government are prepared to subscribe to the universal acceptance of the abolition of naval and military aircraft, and air bombing, except for police purposes.—(Continued on Page 7.)

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

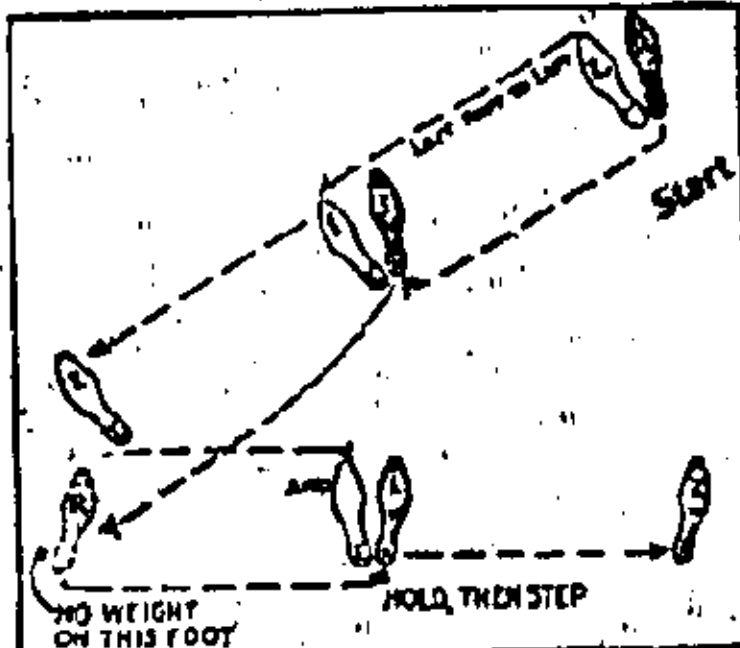

HINT OF HAVANA IN THE RHUMBA

By Arthur Murray

New York, Dec.—The New Year sees the Rhumba growing very popular. The Rhumba is a native Cuban dance.

In Cuba there are three Rhumbas and none of them is permitted on floors of social ballrooms. However, the American version of the Rhumba has been considerably modified. It is an exuberant dance, full of syncopated rhythm. To learn the Rhumba you must practice carefully, to music. Lay this diagram on a chair and start. The characteristics of it are crossing of feet, a long side step, rocking and then stepping on the same foot.

1. The man starts with a long side step, with his left foot, as in an ordinary two-step. Take a step with the left foot, "AND" draw up right foot.
2. Step with left foot to left, weight on left, with the right foot slightly raised from the floor. Hold this for a beat then.
3. Lightly place the raised right foot, holding weight on left, shift weight quickly, leaving no weight on this right foot but transferring it to the left which you bring quickly over to place, indicated on lower line of diagram.

4. Sway lightly with right foot brought to place beside the left and then quickly step far to the right with the right foot.

The lady's part is the same as the man's, only she uses the right when he uses left and vice versa.

Dance to "Capullito de Aleli" or "The Peanut Vendor."

Madeira Cake
Quarter of a pound flour, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, 2½ oz. of butter, 2½ oz. of sugar, 2 eggs. Beat butter and sugar to a cream, add the flour (mixed with the baking powder), and then stir in the beaten eggs, adding a few drops of any flavouring. Bake for an hour and a half.

NOTES FROM PARIS.

Wet Weather Wear.

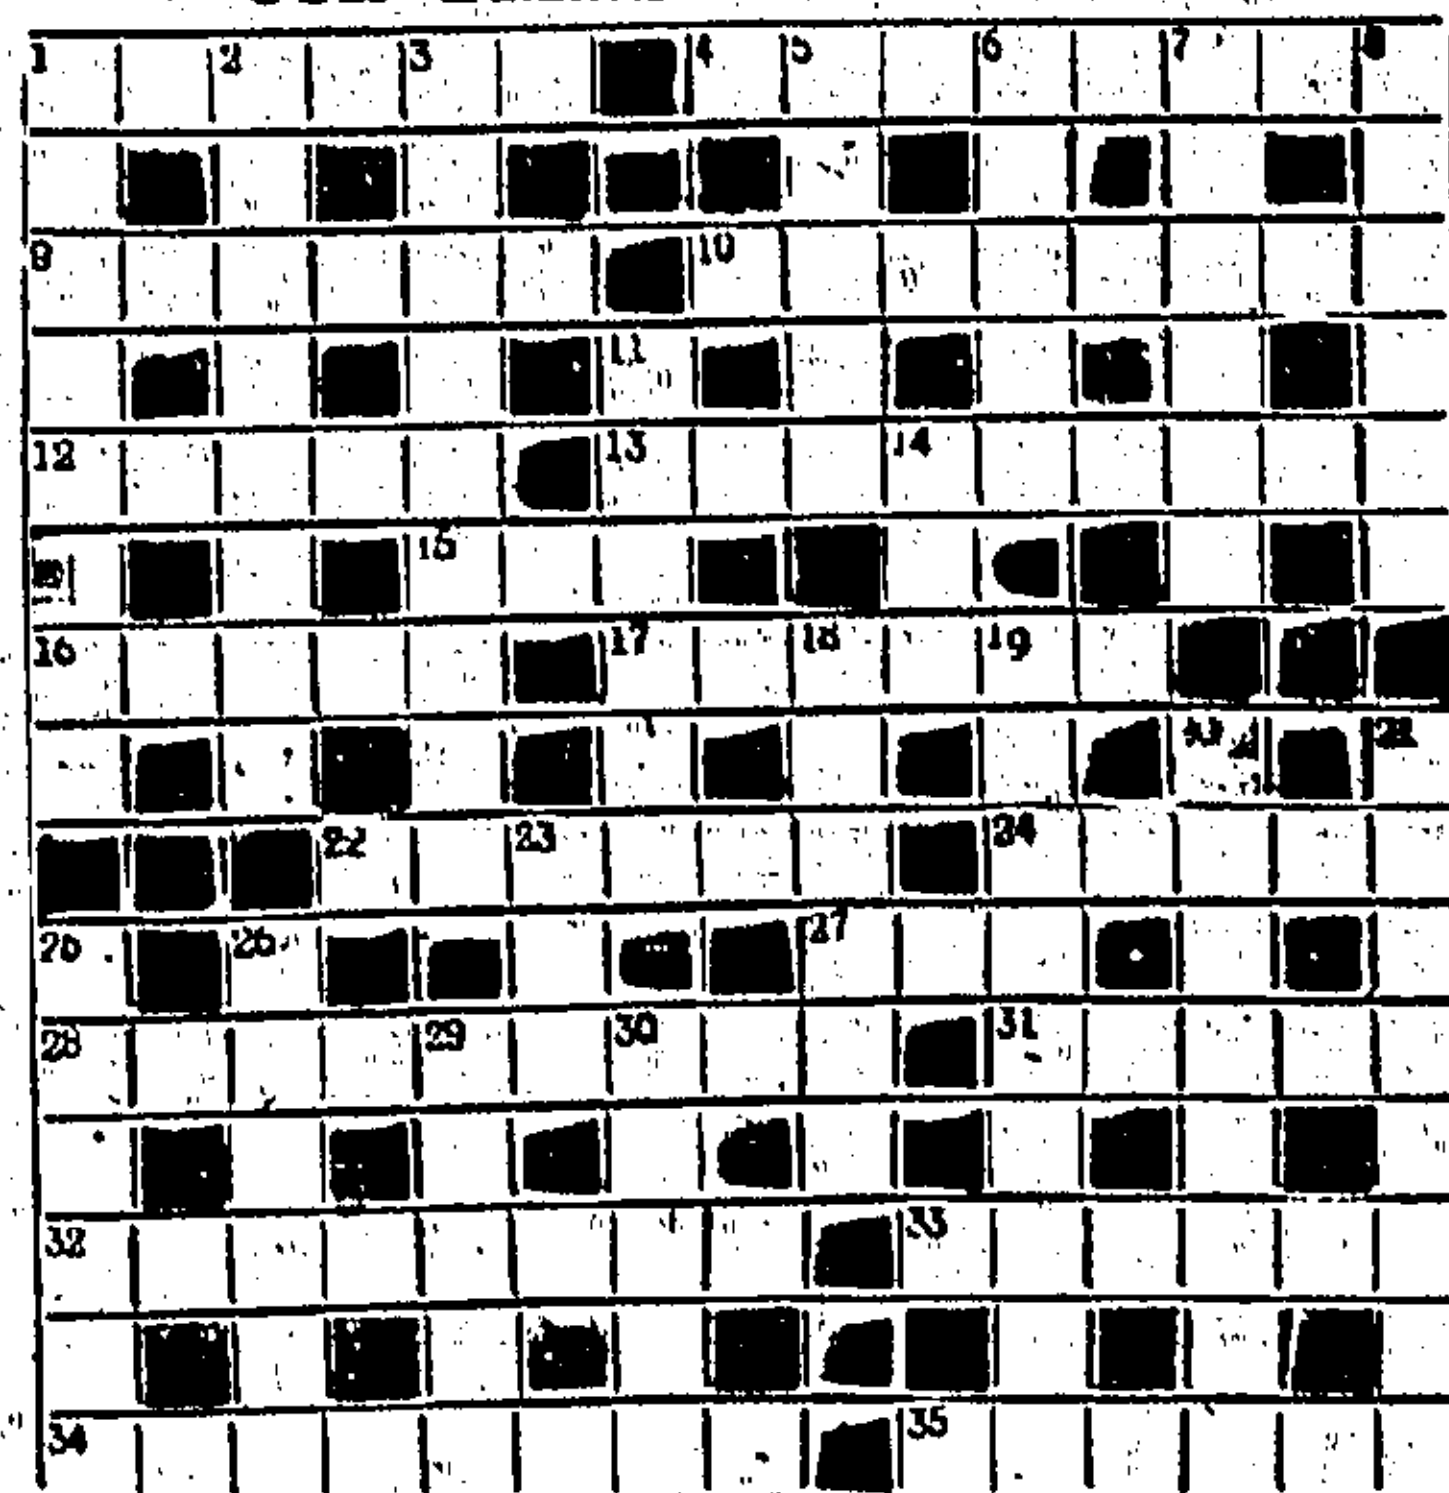

Waxed satin is much used for raincoats, and the vogue is for white waxed satin. I really believe that those who made these coats never for a moment thought of the usual accompaniment of rain-mud, for the effect of mud on that glossy whiteness would be simply disastrous.

It is wiser to choose—if not black waxed satin—navy blue, or even dark café-au-lait, which is the colour of dry mud. Leather or oil-skin cloths are more useful for raincoats, but they are much less elegant, and so are used almost exclusively for motoring.

Duvetyn sometimes imitates leather or doeskin, and is often preferred to these materials. Soft "natty" materials, such as bure are also much in use, as it must needs be a very heavy rain indeed to penetrate them.

Leather Coats
The little short, separate coats, which are so warm, yet light in weight, are very fashionable. These jackets are very strict, almost narrow in line. They are to be seen in suede, dyed in every colour of the rainbow, cosily lined with fur. Only recently I noted one of these funny little jackets in jade green suede, collared and ruffled with mole, and it topped a jade green velvet skirt, a little jade suede toque, well crushed over the brows, giving a final finishing touch to one of the smartest gets-up I have ever seen.

SPOTLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

SHEILA SHAYNE, 18, whose parents were well-known vaudeville actors, is in New York looking for a job. Sheila is a dancer. In spite of the fact that she has spent almost her entire life on the stage her ambition is to marry and have a home like those she has seen in small towns in which she has played.

On a few hours' notice she is hired to take the place of DAISY GLEASON, another dancer, who has sprained an ankle. Sheila goes to JOE PARIS' office in "The Pan Alley" to rehearse. There she meets THEODORE LANE and DICK STANLEY, both rich. Lane tells Sheila to dance at a party he is giving but she refuses, knowing that after a day of rehearsing and the performance that night she will be too tired.

She goes to the theatre and there meets PHIL SHORT, an old acquaintance.

CHAPTER VII

Sheila was glad to see someone she knew—even an old sweetheart like Phil Short. A sweetheart who, as a matter of fact, had dropped her suddenly without warning. Why had Phil stopped coming to see her? Why had he stopped telephoning? Sheila had never known.

As nonchalantly as though nothing had happened, as though he had seen her only a few days before, Phil stood there. Well, nothing had happened, really. After what the most caustic observer would have called a rush Phil had simply disappeared.

Perhaps he had had a bad year, though now he seemed prosperous. Saxophonists are well paid even in off-seasons. And Phil himself had once pointed out that it isn't what an actor earns but what he saves that counts. Living had become cheaper.

In spite of the hearty greeting and the nonchalant manner, Sheila saw almost at once that Phil wore a harassed look. Even with an old score to pay off, she felt sorry for him.

"So you're taking Daisy's place?" he was saying. "That's fine, Sheila. I've often wondered what you were doing."

"Wasn't the telephone working down your way?" she asked, half vexed, half laughing.

"I couldn't call you," Phil began. "Plainly, he was embarrassed. But that doesn't mean I didn't think about you."

"Well, thoughts keep a person warm in the winter," was her response, the caustic phrase borrowed from Ma Lowell. Then Sheila relented.

"Of course I'll have dinner with you. We can't be long, though."

"There's a little place near," Phil explained.

During the dinner he explained other things. Upon leaving Mr. Lowell's rooming house, said

Phil, he had married. Yes, married. His face clouded a trifle as he said the word, and it was evident that the marriage was not, for some reason, a happy one. He was vague about it. The girl's name was Mildred. She came from his home town—somewhere near Des Moines.

Just now, with conditions as they were, Mildred was living with Phil's parents. Sheila gathered that the daughter-in-law—strangely enough—had a more desirable place in the hearts of the Short family than did the son. "The folks think the world and all of Milly," was the way Phil put it.

The dinner was excellent, though hurried. Sheila ordered lightly, as Phil did also, for both had the performance to think of. The act would go on in three-quarters of an hour.

The young man was friendly, agreeable. It was nice to see Phil again. In show business one couldn't always account for sudden departures, failures to explain, omitted farewells. By the time she reached the dressing room Sheila felt rather friendly toward her old admirer and a little sorry for Mildred. Though his attitude toward Sheila had been above reproach, there was no denying the fact that Phil was a flirt.

Back in the dressing room the "arty dancers," as Lottie had somewhat scornfully dubbed them, had returned from a half hour's energetic posing, their scarfs trailing, their classic robes in pastel shades tossed about in confusion. They took a great deal, completely ignoring the others.

The art dancers, billed as the "Classic Nine," were not regular trouperes. That is, they were not regularly booked, but instead were trying out a new number. It was soon clear that all of them were down on their luck, stretching every penny as far as it would possibly go.

Lottie confided to Sheila, busy with her cosmetic pan, that the only good number in the "Classic Nine's" act was a scarf dance done by the two little blondes. Lottie was a blonde too, but there was a difference. The two youthful dancers had honey-coloured hair which obviously grew that way without benefit of art or decoration.

However, Lottie might feel, Sheila soon was aware that these girls were not trying to appear superior. They were not cheap. Sheila would have told you. The shabby little street suits which they were busily donning were well cut and reminded Sheila of the clothes worn by the smartest "Follies" girls. Dark, plain, unostentatious and expensive. Not fluffy or loud as so many chorus girls' costumes. Their hats were just hats—difficult to describe but suave and sure of themselves.

Sheila worked on at the dressing table. Lottie's specialty came first and then Sheila's—with a wait between while the band, elegant in evening clothes, performed.

Her hair would do, though she was sorry there had not been time for a shampoo and wave. Now that the checkbook was about to be replenished, Sheila could afford that.

She lighted the tiny lamp, melted the cosmetic in the little "frying pan" and beaded her lashes carefully. Darkened her lids with blue make-up, crimsoned her lips with generous strokes. dabbed rouge high on her cheek bones. Close at hand she looked grotesque, anything but intriguing. But beyond the footlights the patches of colour would be subdued to a natural flush, a hazy loveliness, glowing and sparkling with health.

Next came her rose, carefully smoothed on, and her dancing slippers. A silken slip and then Daisy's frilled gown, tight at the waist and billowing to her knees. If it had been fitted to Sheila it could not have been more suitable. She would wear it for the first number. Lottie, rather grand and aloof in a tiara and sweeping blue satin, watched as Sheila promenaded across the dressing room.

"I'd take this other dress up a little more on the side," Miss Killcoyne suggested, turning from inspection of her own huge pink hair ribbon. Lottie agreed, catching needle and thread from her overnight bag.

Sheila shuffled a few steps, winced, smiled, tapped energetically, warming up. The band was playing the first number. Lottie, clearing her throat, caught up a chiffon handkerchief the size of a lunch cloth and left hurriedly for the wings. The art dancers, still in their street clothes, returning two by two from dinner, eyed Sheila curiously and, had she but known it, enviously.

"Nervous?" one of the honey-

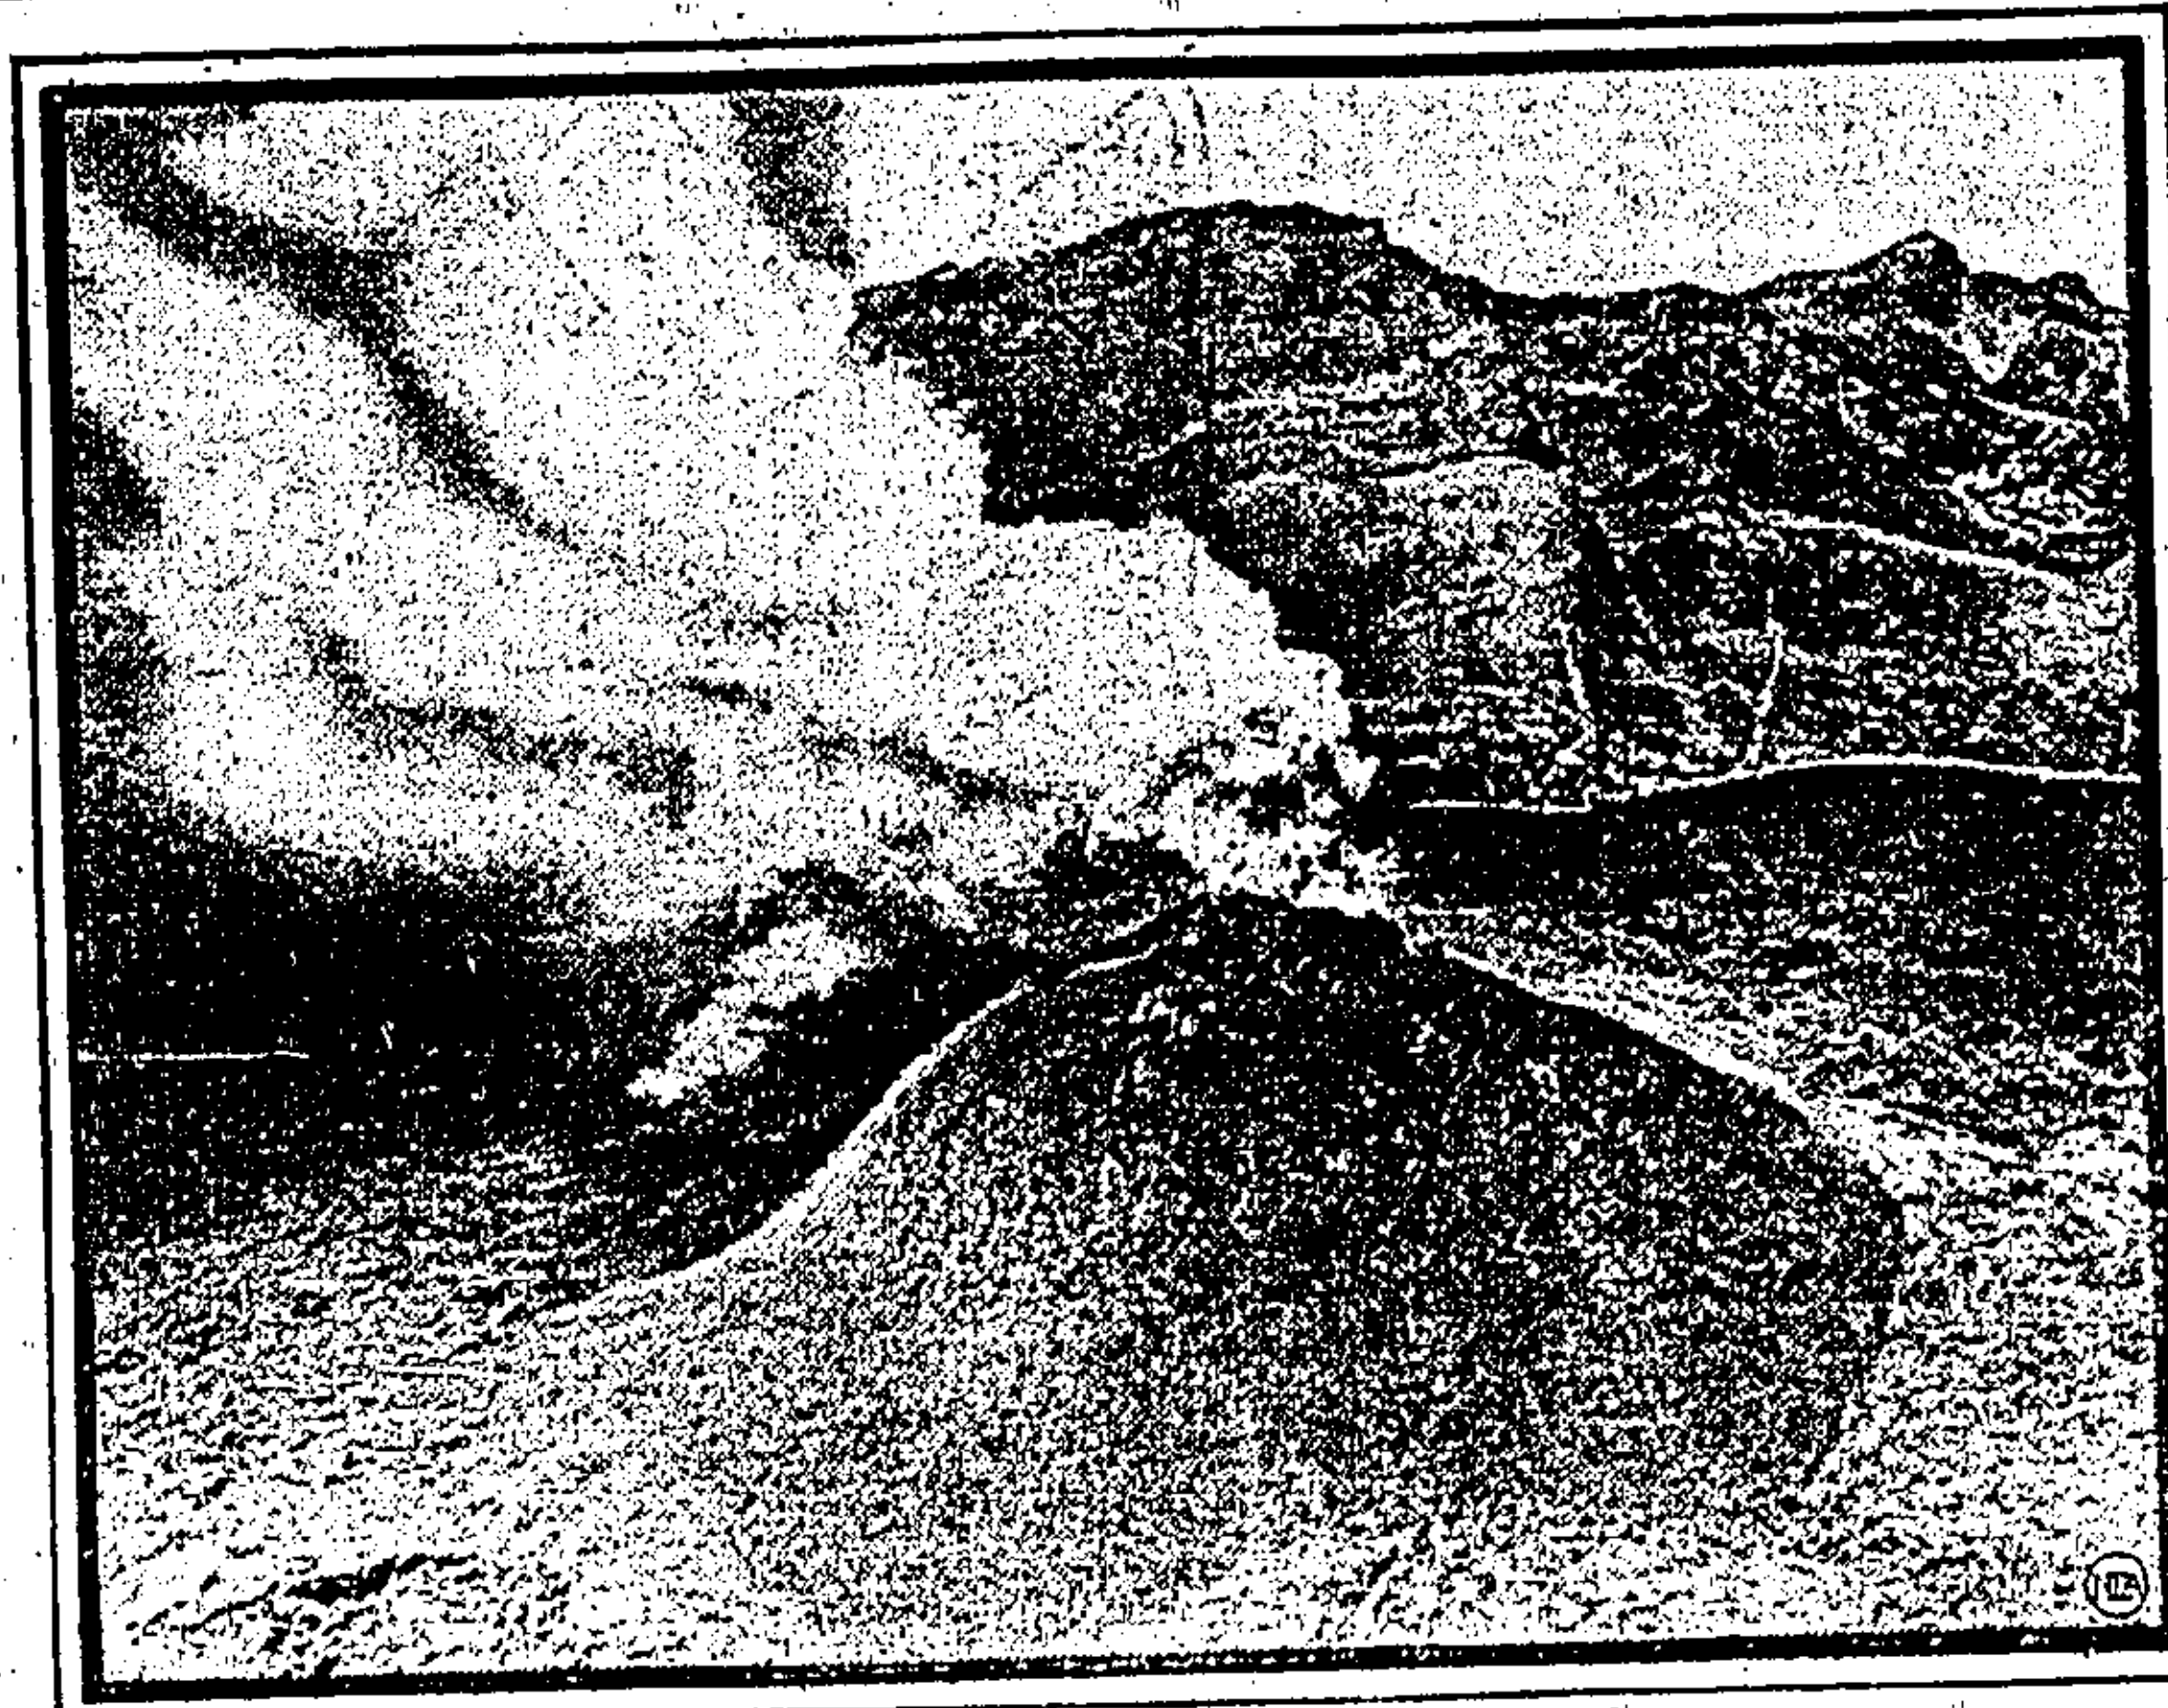

coloured blondes asked, smiling. Sheila smiled, too, and shrugged. Of course she was nervous! But it was like the excited nervousness of a circus horse sniffing sawdust after a long vacation. Soon she would be out there in the glare of the footlights. Phil, Roscoe and the rest would be behind her. An audience, hostile or friendly, in front. A sea of faces swarming across her vision!

The orchestra was bringing Lottie's number to a close with a blare. Applause, not voluminous but encouraging. There, Lottie was taking a bow. And another! That was a mistake—forcing the bows that way. Sheila liked to be hustled back to the stage, hand in hand with the band leader, bowing shyly, backing out before the audience was willing to relinquish her. But to force applause was bad business. Presently the clapping became milder, merely a polite patter.

Sheila stood in the wings. Roscoe waved his baton, Phil nodded and the band crashed into melody. Two bars. Three bars. How did it go? Oh—this way! Sheila ran on. Now she was dancing! Dancing to a full house, too.

Tum-ti-tum, tum-ti-tum. "Don't fake that last turn there, baby!" She could still hear Bill Brady's admonishing tone, still hear his "ta-ta, ta-ta!" Sheila didn't fake

THE SOCIAL SERVICES

A timely and influentially signed manifesto, recently issued, draws public attention to the danger of "economy" attacks on Local Government and the social services. Among the signatories to the manifesto were Sir Josiah Stamp, Sir Arthur Salter, Mr. H. G. Wells, Dr. Scott Lidgett, Dr. A. D. Lindsay, Sir Oliver Lodge, Dr. Cyril Norwood, Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, Dr. Ernest Barker, Col. John Buchanan, and other well-known and representative people. The manifesto points out that "any serious retrogression from the standards so laboriously erected would have consequences of a disastrous kind". Some of those disastrous consequences are indicated:—"They might well impair for a generation the discovery of that ability so essential to national leadership. They might easily lead to those social conditions of which the fruit is seen in high incidence of infantile mortality, bad conditions of housing (with their inevitable consequence of a low standard of public health), a wide indignation at the denial of equal opportunity which makes so seriously for the division between classes." The manifesto declares that "no diminutions in expenditure are justified if, as these may well do, they seem likely over a period to injure the mental and physical power of the present generation to cope with the grave problems by which it is confronted." The fact that a body of public men representative of all parties and religious denominations and including leading educationalists, medical doctors, social workers and economists, should feel it necessary to issue such a manifesto is in itself an indication of the strength of feeling on the subject. The "economy" policy of the Government has already resulted in decreased expenditure on education and the general slowing down of the progressive development of the elementary educational system outlined in the Hadow Report. The abolition of free secondary education and the raising of fees, together with the imposition of a means test for the parents of clever children, will deal another blow at the "standards so laboriously erected" by previous Governments. The purpose of the manifesto is to create a public opinion that will resist unjustified attacks on the social services. It is to be hoped that the Government will give more consideration to the views expressed in the manifesto than has hitherto been given to the same views expressed in other quarters.

The Philippines

The United States appears to have abandoned the high moral purpose of helping the Filipinos to achieve real independence grounded on economic and political stability. Instead it is offering them autonomy with one hand and snatching from them with the other the economic supports needed to make autonomy secure. For it is free trade with the United States which largely bases the Filipinos' economic well-being. And that economic strength undergirds political, social and educational development of the islands. A gift which loses much of its value as soon as it is accepted is a shabby gift. Especially when the giving is expected to enrich the giver at the expense of the recipient. Because of the opposition in the Legislature the Filipino mission is expected to seek to have the question of acceptance put before a special convention. The next steps would be the election of a constitutional convention and submission of its work to the President of the United States and to a referendum in the Philippines. Upon approval a probationary autonomous government would be established in the islands. Washington would be represented in Manila by a High Commissioner having only minor powers such as free access to governmental records and the right to report to the President any failure of the Filipino Government to fulfill its obligations. Indeed, the United States would retain responsibility for the islands without any real authority. This fact, coupled with the retention of military bases, might lead to grave dangers in the present unsettled state of the Far East. During the first five years of the probationary period exports of sugar, coconut oil and cordage to the United States would be limited and during the second five years they would be taxed at American tariff rates to pay Filipino debts. At the end of ten years, if all conditions have been fulfilled the President would surrender all sovereignty of the United States and proclaim an independent Filipino nation. But while not proclaimed, the full freedom of American producers to bar out Filipino products by tariffs would be established at the same time. And they would have been enjoying some measure of freedom from Filipino competition for ten years already. That is the freedom which puts a taint on this gift and may cause its rejection.

Pelicanocracy

The pelicans are said to be interested in technocracy. The machine age has brought them such a large measure of benefit that they have become thoroughly converted to the proposition of a little labour and a lot of luxury. The pelican is a wise old bird. As the holder of patents for the first known practical cold storage system it has led all other birds in the promotion of labour-saving devices. No bird has developed greater facilities for gathering and storing its food. And it has not been unmindful of the value of the inventions of man. Hence its interest in the cause of technocracy at a time when the economic situation has served somewhat to restrict its easy sources of food supply. In early days, the pelican employed such crude methods as diving for the fish which formed its chief source of food supply. And then, at various points, great fish canneries got into operation and ejected sufficient waste product to provide an easy living for vast colonies of pelicans. Pelican youth grew up in an atmosphere of indulgence. The next meal meant only a short and pleasant flight to the nearest cannery. The machine age had removed the days of drudgery when their parents dived and ducked ten hours or more a day for a bit of herring and often went to bed hungry. But now many canneries have been closed by economic conditions and the younger pelicans, untrained in the pursuits of their forefathers, are blaming the government for a shortage of food. Hence their return to technocracy with the hope that All the cans in the cannery can Come to the aid of the pelican.

ARISTOCRATS OF MOSCOW

By R. T. CHOLERTON

The various phases of the Russian Revolution have left their mark on the population of Moscow and on its institutions, so that newspaper articles and plays and even street crowds seem sometimes to contain in themselves the whole history of the last fifteen years. Faintest, scarcely to be discerned now, are the traces of the pre-revolutionary revolution, of the men and women who lived in exile, and who spent their time discussing, and often quarrelling over, the precise importance of this or that article in their faith and its application; of the intellectual-Bohemian-Anarchist revolutionaries who flocked back to Russia from their favourite cafes in Paris and Geneva and Vienna when they got news of the fall of the Tsarist Government.

"OLD TIMERS" OF REVOLT

The luckiest of these veterans have been able to return to their cafes, and enjoy a small but adequate competence as not very active agents of the Comintern; some of them have disappeared into the wastes of Siberia; the rest have either died or been accorded a State funeral, or hold minor administrative posts and dream of the good old days when revolution was in the making and not made. Most of their ideas have long ago been condemned as "petit-bourgeois" or as deviations of one sort or another from the "party line," and they enjoy the sort of esteem and consideration that this accorded in England to, say, gentlemen in reduced circumstances. Even so, their influence is still to be seen in, for instance, the theoretical basis of Soviet marriage law, and—though here markedly dwindling—in Soviet educational theory. "Free love" and "free discipline" to this day flavour very faintly the Marx-Lenin-Stalin gospel and connect the Dictatorship of the Proletariat with co-education and hand-weaving and vegetarianism and the "simple life," with model colonies in the Cotswolds and New England.

THE PROLETARIAN MAN

Another element in Soviet society reminiscent of the more respectable, or at least more traditional, forms of revolutionary activity is what might have been called in Victorian England the Movement for Cultural Improvement Amongst Working Men. The big "realists," our Union buster types, have long ago moved into the Kremlin, and their runners-up have become the new "State Bourgeoisie" and may in time, if things go well, become the new aristocracy.

Here and there, however, traces still remain of the old-fashioned worker-intellectual-serious, many a nameless, perhaps whose very face immediately calls up a picture of an institute or a reading-room or a discussion group on, say, William Morris's "News from Nowhere." This is the proletarian man—like the economic man, an abstraction—who figures prominently in the leading articles of Pravda and Izvestia, who is given an honourable, if unexciting, place in propagandist drama and whose improved conditions as a result of the Soviet Government's policy form the subject of many an illustrated booklet and provide heavy ammunition for many an official guide.

As far as Moscow is concerned, the dominant social element is the new bourgeoisie. These fill the cinemas and the theatres and restaurants; ladies tending to be dressy; gents less formal—black shirt, velvet jacket, top boots—but none-the-less unmistakably used to a higher standard of life than the ordinary worker.

On the book shelves of each one of them is a volume of Marx, bound in limp black leather, and on their walls portraits of Stalin and Lenin. They use the telephone a great deal, are mad on gadgets and dream of the time when, after a whole series of Five-Year Plans, gramophones and two-seaters will be available for their women and natty blue sailor suits or their youngsters and enough food to have jolly parties without getting tripped up by the "Party Line."

FASHIONS FOR BOSSSES

As for the bosses or "Court and Personal"—they wear smart uniforms of black leather coats, and carry attachés, and, except for the big Mystery Men like Stalin, are to be seen any day travelling to and from their offices in powerful cars.

One ruling class is very like another, in bearing at least; and as the Soviet Government has become more and more established the Soviet ruling class has become more and more assured, more and more aware that it is the salt of the earth and fittest to exercise authority.

Lenin resolved all problems of government to the famous question, "Who is to govern whom?" Revolutions, like general elections, are an attempt to answer this question; once the question is decisively answered a ruling class comes automatically into existence, and Commissars and Secretaries of State and Mahatmas and Caliphs assume the "Who" role in very much the same sort of way.

THE SILENT
MASSES

There is, of course, the population of Russia to be taken into account, the peasants and workers who were neither pre-revolution revolutionaries nor have become new bourgeoisie or ruling class. These, except that at the moment they are more than usually hungry and shabby, have been largely unaffected by the Revolution. Great changes in history are often brought about by mass movements, but their consequence is always that the mass remains "Whom." One "Who" after another has occupied, and doubtless will continue to occupy, the Kremlin; "Whom" is a constant factor. "Whom" queues up for its bread, stares at illuminated street propaganda, gratefully accepts an occasional pass to the cinema or the theatre, suffers the fate that "Who" imposes, and reads the newspapers that "Who" writes, with—generally speaking—remarkable tolerance and good humour.

"I'm afraid by the time we get our act rehearsed all the music will be out of date."

The Very Idea!
GIVING US THE WOIKS

By Edward "Stickyback" Kelly.

We received an invitation the other day to see a trade film of the Austin Car factory at the Queen's Theatre.

We think there is always something fascinating about seeing how things like this are done, and hope that the invitation won't stop at motor-cars.

Take the chappie who makes the Hongkong Directory, for instance. His office work wouldn't differ much from ours, we suppose, but he gets a kick out of doing his rounds.

Imagine us ambling along the Peak Road together, when suddenly from one of the flats half a dozen coolies stagger out beneath a piano. The Directory Director pricks up his ears.

"Ho, the Mugsumps are moving," he says. "I must find out for my new edition where they are going."

A few seconds later he returns with a defeated look on his face. "My mistake," he says, "they're not moving. The bailiffs are in."

Or we come across Pete pulling a ricksha up Chater Road.

"Good Lord, there's Watkins," he mutters. He must have left his job in the civil service," and he goes across to see Pete.

"Sh-h-h-h!" says Pete, "don't speak to me. There's one of the shroffs over there."

The man we'd like to have take us around more than anyone else, though, would be our bank manager.

Promptly at 10 a.m. we'd be around to watch him fling open the doors of the big safe.

Then he counts the money. As a rule, this is o.k. within a $100 Chartered Bank note or so, which probably has gone for teas and things for the staff.

Next he checks the bundles of Bills Receivable and laughs joyously. Then he checks the bundles of Bills Payable and doesn't laugh.

This done he has a go at the Bank Premises A/C, and if some careless clod of a clerk has chucked ink on the wall, the manager gets furious, because the cost of cleaning it up has to be charged against capital. So the long day passes with one thing or the other until four o'clock.

Then the manager would take his white snats down from the hatrack, lock the big safe—looking to see that we weren't left inside—and extracting his tram fare from the Sundries and Emergencies A/C, would gaily forth.

SIC ITUR

We would add our modest tribute to the policeman who summoned himself for having a poker party and was fined four dollars and commended by the Bench. But if he thinks he is original, why he's wrong. It was thus we won promotion ourselves when we served with "The Force."

"Tight" one night in the Divisional canteen (ah, beer was beer in those days!) we rose at once to the occasion, though only then a raw and unfeigned constable. We arrested ourselves, reported the arrest at the station and looked ourselves up in the cells. We tested ourselves for sobriety and, as we suspected, was quite unable to say clearly "The corroborability of the evidence was ascertained interrogatorily." How the magistrates cheered when we repeated these facts from the witness-box!

Within a week we were a sergeant, with twice as much to spend in the canteen.

SNAKE DEALER'S PERIL

PROFESSOR OF A MAMBA

Efforts were being made yesterday to warn a man in Rotterdam that a snake he possesses, or may have sold, is not, as he supposes, harmless, but is a green mamba, a type of snake whose bite normally is fatal within three minutes.

This is the sequel to the arrival at the London Zoo, of another green mamba, sent from Glasgow by a dealer whose assistant was bitten by the reptile.

On Thursday, in response to an urgent request, the London Zoo sent a supply of mamba anti-toxin to Glasgow for the treatment of the dealer's assistant, who was bitten while unpacking a parcel of what he supposed were harmless snakes. The mamba anti-toxin saved his life. The snake is now safely lodged in the Zoo.

Yesterday the following telegram was sent by the dealer, Mr. Andrew Wilson, F.Z.S., of Glasgow, to Rotterdam, to the dealer who sent the parcel of snakes to him:

"Glasgow, Friday.—A green tree snake sent was green mamba. Our assistant bitten and removed to infirmary. Warm purchaser of other snake."

Mr. Wilson found on the price list that there had been two reptiles of this variety in the Dutchman's possession, and that obviously he was not aware that they were mambas.

Saved by Weather

Mr. John Ryan, of Glasgow, the man who was bitten, is making an excellent recovery, and considers himself the luckiest man in the world. When the snake reared to attack Mr. Ryan, Mr. Wilson's son promptly grabbed it. As a result it inflicted only a slight scratch on Mr. Ryan's hand. This was ignored at the time, but the giddy sickness that followed warned Mr. Wilson that something unusual had occurred. The attack was not fatal probably because the snake was affected by the cold journey from Rotterdam. The green mamba is found in African tree country, notably on the Natal coast. It will attack man or an animal without any provocation. The Glasgow specimen was six feet three inches long.

INDUSTRIES FAIR OPENS

BRIGHTEST & MOST VARIED

London, Feb. 20.

Representatives from nearly every country in the world attended the opening day of the British Industries Fair. Many were waiting when the doors opened early this morning.

The general impressions were that the Fair this year, which is certainly the biggest in the series, was also the brightest and most variegated. The Duchess of York visited the White City section of the Fair and made many purchases during her long inspection.

poses, provided only that there can be devised an effective scheme for the international control of civil aviation which will prevent all possibility of the misuse of civil aircraft for military purposes.

NECESSARY CONDITION.

It was manifest that the prohibition of military aircraft and an agreement not to make use of so powerful a weapon could not give any real sense of security so long as there was no effective guarantee that civil aircraft could not be so misused. The problem before the committee, therefore, was to devise such an effective regulation of civil aviation as would make feasible the abolition of naval and military aircraft and the prohibition of air bombardment. Without such regulation the danger to the world's peace would otherwise be increased rather than diminished.

TWO NEEDS.

Any such scheme must satisfy at least two conditions. It must prevent all possibility of the resources of civil aviation being used for military purposes in the event of an outbreak of hostilities and it must not prevent or hamper the fullest development of aviation in every country for civil and commercial purposes nor restrict freedom in the realm of experiment and research.

Regarding the first, Lord Londonderry pointed out that the July resolution contemplated that some regions should be excluded, but the means were obviously required to prevent the civil machines existing in those areas being available for military purposes.

SAFEGUARDING FUTURE.

Regarding the second condition, it was unavoidable that a convention designed to promote security and goodwill among nations should be such as to check the free development of what was perhaps the most important aspect of the present day for encouraging cooperation of communications and the development of commercial and friendly intercourse.

Speaking of the problem which the committee must face, Lord Londonderry reminded the members that aviation was only in its infancy and they were considering a convention to safeguard the future as much as the present.

HIDDEN BEAUTY OF ST. PAUL'S

REVEALED BY WASHING

A process of adorning and modernising St. Paul's Cathedral is being undertaken to make its interior beauty worthy of the recently completed £400,000 scheme to save the fabric from disaster. Parts of this attempt to make the utmost of Wren's life-work have been in the minds of the authorities for 20 years. Canon Alexander states. The completion of the preservation of the fabric in 1930 at last enabled them to begin.

"One of the biggest works of art," Canon Alexander said, "is the complete cleaning of the Cathedral, after scores of years. It has already transformed the nave out of all recognition. Until the washing of the walls and the repainting of the ceiling revealed it, the amazing beauty of Wren's work was not realised by anyone. We are cleaning the rest now."

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

THE FIRE OF TRUE ENTHUSIASM IS LIKE THE FIRES OF BAKU, WHICH NO WATER CAN EVER QUENCH, AND WHICH BURN STEADILY ON FROM NIGHT TO DAY, AND YEAR TO YEAR BECAUSE THEIR WELL-SPRING IS ETERNAL.—Ouida.

A gold wristlet watch was found by a police officer at the Races yesterday and the owner can have the watch on application to the Inspector in charge of the Wanchai Police Station.

Suffering from injuries to his legs, caused by a tree falling on him whilst digging earth at Stanley, a man named Chung Lo, aged 25, was taken to the Government Civil Hospital on Sunday.

Mr. Thomas Edson, who was reported missing on Sunday last, having been located. According to a report issued by the police, he had been ill and was staying with a friend at Kowloon.

A ten-horse power electric motor, valued at $200, the property of the China Light and Power, was stolen from the Kwong Tai Shing Umbrella Shop, aged 25, and Yeung Ping, aged 18, both of whom were removed to the Kowloon Hospital by the Shamshing Police.

NEUTRAL ZONE.

PROPOSAL MAY BE MADE TO CHINA

Tokyo, Feb. 20.

The Foreign Office indicates that Japan is likely to suggest to the Chinese Authorities at Nanking and Peking the withdrawal of Chinese regulars from Jehol and the creation of neutral zone on both sides of the Great Wall for the purpose of minimising the possibility of the Jehol operations spreading to North China.—Reuter.

"Powder Magazine."

Peking, Feb. 20.

"The whole north is a powder magazine awaiting a spark," said Mr. T. V. Soong, interviewed by the Special Correspondent of the S. C. M. Post this evening. "The spark will probably be applied by the invasion of Jehol."

"People who speak of the stolidity of the north," Mr. Soong continued, "don't know what they are talking about. Outwardly everything here is calm but the Japanese aggressions have provoked the people and army in the north beyond endurance. When the trouble comes I am sure they will respond as quickly as the people in the south."

Mr. Soong supported this assertion by quoting the readiness with which bankers had supplied funds for the "coming months," adding that if conservative financiers displayed this spirit, the attitude of the rest of the community could be easily imagined.

Mr. Soong announced he would return to the south shortly, fully satisfied with the success of his mission.—Our Special Correspondent.

Busy Time.

Peking, Feb. 20.

Mr. Soong is still busily working here and it is unlikely that he will leave to-day as has been reported here. This afternoon he was very busy with the Young Marshal, visiting hospitals in which the Shanhaiwan wounded are recovering, for Mr. Soong is organising public opinion and feeling as much as sinews of war. Reports still coming from Jehol tell of the electric effect of the Young Marshal and Mr. Soong's visit to that city produced. As an aged and stately mission father who has lived his lifelong in Jehol told one of the visitors, "The Chinese tell me this is a great day for Jehol, for this is the first time any great Chinese has visited Jehol for 72 years," referring of course to the last visits of the Emperors.

If it was previously in doubt whether the Chinese at Jehol would fight, the doubts have now been disposed of, and it is certain that the Japanese will meet all the opposition that human determination and personal courage can mobilise against them.—Reuter's Special.

The construction of a secret stair to the crypt in the pillar of the Great West Door, to enable processions on great occasions to return with dignity instead of battling through the enormous crowd.

The removal of the benches which hitherto have cut up the lines of the building and marred its beauty, and their replacement by small chairs (the old benches are now being treasured in village churches in England and Scotland, and given in New Zealand, as links with St. Paul's).

The installation of loudspeakers to enable the choir to hear the whole service, after years of inconvenience; and

The erection shortly of splendid lamps, designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens for the west front, but desired and planned for 20 years ago.

It is likely that other works will follow.

SPLENDID CONCERT.

BARRIE PLAY AND MELODRAMA CLEVERLY ACTED

Two cleverly produced and splendidly acted plays were features of the concert and dramatic entertainment held under the auspices of St. Andrew's Club in St. Andrew's Church Hall last night.

Amateur productions are usually patronised by people who come prepared for the worst. But there was real merit in last night's show, something of unusual appeal, which delighted the crowd.

The first play, a melodrama in three scenes, "The Bella," calls for a delicacy of treatment, without which a clever production may be reduced to farce. Nothing could be said against the treatment meted out by the players last night.

Sydney West as the central figure, a man haunted by memories of a murder he had committed years before, took the major honours. Deep, emotional acting was required of him, and he carried his part through in a most convincing manner. Others in the cast were Agnes Leib, Luba Gookewa, Sidney Edgar, Arthur Jeffreys, Gordon Thomson and Theo Ingram.

J. M. Barrie's well-known play, "The Old Lady Shows her Medals," is an entirely different type of

WRESTLING BOUT FIXED FOR SUNDAY NEXT

"TIGER" DUALA AND JOE CROSS TO MEET

KOWLOON FOOTBALL CLUB AS PROBABLE VENUE

WON THE DERBY—Mr. V. V. Needs, the Shanghai jockey, who yesterday steered Trentbridge past the post to win the Derby.

Arrangements were completed this morning for a wrestling bout between "Tiger" Duala, claimant for the world's heavyweight mat title and Joe Cross.

Duala's challenge has been accepted by Cross and the men will meet on Sunday afternoon next, probably at the Kowloon Football Club.

Negotiations for the use of the Railway Ground are now in hand, and it is fairly certain that the K.F.C. will be the venue.

A message was received yesterday morning from Mr. Joe Cross who intimated that he was prepared to accept the challenge issued by Tiger Duala who is on his way to India from a successful tour of America. Mr. Cross, who arrived from Manila by the Empress of Japan about two weeks ago, has had considerable experience in the mat art. He has appeared in the United States, Australia, Manila and other places where wrestling is a popular pastime. He is slightly heavier than Duala, being 240 pounds against the Indian's weight of 235 pounds. When informed that the challenge had been accepted Duala was greatly pleased and was anxious to get into communication with Mr. Cross with a view to arranging the contest. Mr. Karar S. Garcha, Duala's manager, intimated that if possible the bout would be fixed for the coming week-end.

THE RYDER CUP

ENGLAND TO RELY ON YOUNGSTERS

NEED FOR EARLY TEAM BUILDING

There has been a great deal of discussion about the team to represent United States in the match for the Ryder Cup at Southport next June.

We are told that only four of the members of the team that won the cup at Scioto, Ohio, are likely to be included in the side to visit Britain—Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Craig Wood, and Denmore Snee; that Horton Smith, Billy Burke, Leo Diegel, Johnny Farrell, Wiffy Cox, and Al Espinosa have shown such poor form that they are almost certain to be omitted unless they show a remarkable recovery in the remaining winter tournaments.

This is all very good propaganda for America, but what about the British team?

So far it might appear that we have done nothing in the way of choosing a side. Instead of that being the case those responsible for selection have already made a certain amount of progress.

Two years ago we held a series of trial games, but they did not entirely achieve their object. Men who did well in the trials failed in later tournaments and vice versa.

This year current form will decide the composition of the team. Young golfers especially will be watched in the big tournaments as it is the general opinion inside as well as outside the Professional Golfers' Association that the new generation has arrived at the stage where it should shoulder the responsibility of the big occasion.

A number of players—perhaps twenty—will be invited to hold themselves in readiness to play if selected, but it may not be until a week or two before the match that the composition of the British team will be known.

Andrews Wins Tennis Crown

N. Z. CHAMPIONSHIP REGAINED

Defeats C. E. Malfroy in Four Sets

Wellington (N.Z.), Jan. 23. E. D. Andrews, the old Comberley Blue, beat a fellow Cambridge Blue, C.E. Malfroy, by 6-0, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 in the final of the New Zealand lawn tennis singles championship here to-day.

Andrews first won the New Zealand championship in 1927, and then went straight to England, and competing for the title again until this year.

He is well known in Hongkong having given exhibitions here in 1931 and last year. In 1931 he was surprisingly overcome by C. A. L. Rymund, then local champion, although his defeat was largely attributable to his illness.

Last year he left a deep impression when he revealed something like the true qualities of his game.

LORD HAWKE ON CRICKET

CHAMPIONSHIP PERCENTAGES A "NECESSARY EVIL"

LANCASHIRE CRITICISED FOR IMPORTING PLAYERS

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Yorkshire Cricket Club, in Leeds, Lord Hawke, elected president for the thirty-fifth year, was full of praise for Brian Sellers, who has been invited to skipper the county eleven for another year.

It is really remarkable, said his Lordship, that, like every captain but one since the War, he should have led the team to victory in his first year of office. In him we were fortunate to have the right type of leader. He never gave up a match until the last over, as was proved by the splendid victory over Gloucestershire at Bradford when the last wicket fell two minutes before time after the extra half-hour had been claimed.

After congratulating the Yorkshire side on winning the championship for the sixteenth time, he said they all felt very sorry for Sussex that, owing to ill-health, they should lose the services of their splendid captain, D. G. Bradman, at a time when they were running so well for the title.

Lord Hawke also alluded to the new system of arranging fixtures and the reduction of the number of matches required to qualify for the championship to 12 home and away.

"RINGTAIL'S" SEVEN WINNERS

IN TEN RACES.

"Ringtail", the Telegraph racing correspondent, achieved another marked success yesterday, when, out of ten events tipped (the first two races having been run before publication of the first issue of the Telegraph) he gave seven winners.

These included Trentbridge, winner of the Derby classic, and the others were Diana Bay, Racing Boy, Woodland Stag, Liberty Bay, Jungle Jim and Blue Star. "Ringtail's" tips for to-day's meeting will be found on another page.

FR. AUSSEM RETURNS

BACK AGAIN IN TOURNAMENT TENNIS

COCHET EXTENDED

From France comes the news that Andre Merlon recently extended Henri Cochet to five sets and 57 games in the final of the men's singles at the Roubaix tournament. Riviera games are again looking up. Last year there was a terrible slump. Following the financial crisis of the autumn, 1931, and the announcement that the Duke of Connaught would not winter as usual at Cannes, everybody felt that it was impossible to go South that winter.

STARS GATHER.

Now things are becoming a little more normal. Recent arrivals on the Riviera are H. Cochet, Sir Arthur Croft, C. F. Aeschliman, the Swiss Davis Cup player, who is a hotel proprietor at Cannes, A. C. Hunter, J. M. Hillyard, Mrs. Satterthwaite and Miss M. A. Thomas. Miss M. C. Scriven and Miss Sheila Hewitt are going South soon.

G. L. Rogers, the Irish Davis Cup player, intends to take part again in the tournaments from Cannes to Mentone.

It will be interesting to see whether his recent course of physical training at Don McCord's "box-line" camp at Slough has benefited his game.

CONDITION IMPROVED.

He has stated that the course vastly improved his condition and he declared that an athletic trainer would be of great use in preparing teams for the Davis Cup and other big international tournaments.

Welcome is the news that Fraulein Cilly Aussem has recovered sufficiently to begin play again. She collapsed in the French championships last year when playing Miss Betty Nuthall, after an operation for appendicitis.

She will return to match play in the Riviera tournaments, and will stay at Cannes.

A newcomer to the Riviera will be Clifford Sutter who in the American championships nearly beat Ellsworth Vines in straight sets.

HONGKONG A.D.C.

PRODUCTION OF AN ALL- LADIES' DIVERSION

The forthcoming production by the A. D. C. of this highly successful diversion in three acts by Almee and Philip Stuart possesses unusual interest inasmuch as it is an "all-ladies" cast. If for no other reason, it is unique in the history of the A.D.C. for as recently as the early eighties all female characters in Hongkong amateur productions were impersonated by men.

There is no reason to doubt that the good ladies of those spacious days were not lacking in talent nor wanting in energy and it may therefore be reasonably assumed that the reputation for raffishness associated in older times with "rogues, vagabonds and stage-players" died a rather more lingering death in Hongkong than in other less sophisticated places in the East. It is not very difficult to visualise the versatile performers of that period accommodating themselves to the frills and furbelows of the seventies and even to the tempestuous petticoats of the eighties. It is not so easy to contemplate present day amateurs impersonating modiste apprentices wearing their simple souls outside their silken lingerie—as in "Nine Till Six."

Times Change.

It is well therefore that times have changed and that the A.D.C. of our age, if still not quite respectable, is yet permitted to do its best. The cynic may still speculate on the awful possibility that a generation hence an "all-male" cast like "Journey's End" will be filled by feminine and fulminating sergeant-majors and seductive soldiery with sex appeal. Who knows? Time brings its revenges.

The imaginative world comes down to realities in cycles and, after all, is not the theatre the most real thing in the world?

The A.D.C. has presented to us problems of unreality aplenty, because we want to be intrigued and amused. From "Charley's Aunt" to "The Middle Watch" we have seen a kaleidoscope of fascinating fairyland dodging in and out of other people's bedrooms and bathrooms—the plot that never changes, but never fails the box office. We have trodden new paths through magic woods and living dreams with "Dear Brutus" and raised our corrugated brows at the diseased impressionism of "Art and Mrs. Bottle." We have seen through thirty years a dress parade of ghosts belonging to Henry Arthur Jones and A. W. Pinero and we have even, thank God, survived to slobber over Bernard Shaw, the only real humanist of them all. How he must laugh!

Something Different.

Now comes the A.D.C. to present to us "Nine Till Six," something quite different—something of real life. No slapstick farce, but the simple tale of a soulless business—the veneer of the semi-snobish saleslady—the vague bohemianism of the basement changing-room—the petty jealousies of the very petty but very lovable nitwits who pose as mannequins before equally brainless but more fortunately-circumstanced patrons.

It is all there. All the humanities, some of the frailties and most of the silken underwear—and because most of us are human, because some of us are frail and because all of us wear flannel next to our skin we may confidently predict a full house at King's Theatre on the opening night 14th. March and for two succeeding nights thereafter.

A NEW ARRIVAL.

MARANOA ARRIVES FROM AUSTRALIA

The a.s. Maranoa, which arrived yesterday from Australia, is the first of a number of vessels chartered by Australian shipping firms to carry a large consignment of cargo to China. Incidentally, it also happens to be her first visit to Hongkong. Her local agents are Mackinnon Mackenzie & Company, Ltd.

The Maranoa was formerly the Bromanga. She is a steel screw vessel, and was built by the Government Dockyard, Newcastle, N.S.W., for the Australasian United Steamship Company. Her port of registry is Melbourne. She measures 331.0 feet in length, 47.9 feet in breadth and 23.5 feet in depth.

The other Australian ships placed permanently on the cargo service to China and Japan are the Tarcoola, Barunga and the well-known passenger vessel, the Moeraki.

The Maranoa sails at 10 a.m. to-day for Shanghai.

AIRCRAFT ABOLITION.

BRITAIN PREPARED FOR UNIVERSAL ACCEPTANCE

Geneva, Feb. 20.
"Britain is prepared to subscribe to a universal acceptance of the abolition of naval and military aircraft and airbombing, except for police purposes," said the British Air Minister, Lord Londonderry addressing the Air Commission of the Disarmament Conference.

Lord Londonderry emphasised the proviso that an effective scheme for international control of civil aviation could be devised to preclude the misuse of civil aircraft for military purposes.—Reuters.

HEAVY FIGHTING BREAKS OUT ON JEHO FRONT

Japanese Assert Initiative was Taken by Chinese Forces

A GENERAL STAFF RUN WILD

LORD LYTTON AND JAPAN

SCATHING PARIS SPEECH

STRONG ATTACK ON WAR LORDS

Paris, Feb. 20.
A scathing indictment of Japan's attitude towards her international obligations was made by the Earl of Lytton in the course of a striking speech here to-day at a meeting of the Peace Society.

Lord Lytton said Japan did not appear to have kept pace with the latest development of the political thought and practice of the West. Although she had established a democratic Government, her Army and Navy were still organised on a feudal basis, and the heads of her fighting Services, though entitled Ministers, were independent and responsible to the Government alone.

The efficiency of these Ministers was not questioned, but the attitude of the Japanese General Staff was that of that Prussian General Staff from 1870 to 1914.

JAMESON RAID PARALLEL

At the same time, the present attitude of Japanese nationals in Manchuria, by their actions of the last eighteen months, appears to be that of the authors of the Jameson Raid in South Africa in 1895.

The political thought of Europe, said Lord Lytton, has changed in the last decade almost as much as the change which took place in Japan between 1860 and 1900. International relationships were now governed by the League Covenant and the Kellogg Pact, and it was no longer possible for any country to be the sole arbiter of the action it might take in pursuit of national interests.

CHINA'S MANPOWER

The General Staff of every country was necessarily subject to-day not merely to the control of its national Government, but to the obligations of these national instruments.

"That fact," said Lord Lytton, "appears to have been insufficiently appreciated by Japan, and failure to appreciate it has produced the present Far Eastern crisis."

Referring to China, Lord Lytton said, the immediately urgent questions were how China could be helped and how soon a strong Central Government could be established.

He was most impressed by the colossal man-power of China, the future of which seemed to be wrapped up in the questions of how, when and by whom this splendid manhood could be given the unifying force of national consciousness.

"Geneva or Moscow? The shadow of that great question is cast over the East and West. At present, China has chosen Geneva, but if Japan

THIRD DAY OF RACES

EXCITING FINISH IN FOURTH RACE

DULL OVERCAST WEATHER

Overcast weather again prevailed for the third day of the Race Meeting at Happy Valley, but interest was well maintained, with every promise of another day of excellent sport.

The course was still fast, indicating the likelihood of good times being recorded. To-day is not a day of big events, but there are some attractive items on the card, and rivalry will be as keen as ever.

All eyes are now turned on the Champions, to be run to-morrow, and the various stables will to-day been keen on getting ponies to qualify for this event.

The Exchange Plate was one of the most thrilling races of the meeting. The four entrants raced neck to neck until they were almost opposite the grand stand when the winner gradually drew out, winning by a comfortable margin of two lengths.

ARMIES AT GRIPS AT CHAOYANG

GENERAL OFFENSIVE NOT YET BEGUN

BATTLE STILL IN PROGRESS

CHINCHOW, FEB. 21.
SEVERE FIGHTING BEGAN IN THE REGION OF CHAOYANGFU TO-DAY, LARGE FORCES OF JAPANESE TROOPS BEING THROWN INTO THE FIRING LINE FROM THE BASE AT CHINCHOW.

The Japanese assert that the Chinese opened the fighting with an attack on the Japanese garrison. The region is now the scene of feverish military activity, but up to the moment no information is forthcoming regarding the progress of the battle.

Elsewhere along the Jehol frontier, the troops are waiting in an atmosphere of tense expectancy, but as far as is known the Japanese have not yet issued orders for a general advance.—Reuter.

JAPAN BUYING OLD SHIPS

LIKELY USE FOR WAR NEEDS

London, Feb. 21.

The Daily Express, in a front-page "splash," declares that purchases of old British liners destined for Japan are believed in shipping circles to be part of a well-prepared plan to use them for warlike purposes in the event of full-scale hostilities in the Far East.

Vessels which have been stipulated by British parties to be used for "scrap" only, may be broken up and their metal used for making guns or shells, or they may even be used as troopships.

The newspaper adds that recently the steamers Baltic, Megantic, Caronia, Keemun, Marchanda and Malancha have sailed for Japan, the Baltic at only two days' notice.—Reuter.

Weak anticyclonic areas are situated over the Lower Yangtze Valley and to the north of Shanghai. Local forecast: N.E. winds, moderate; cloudy.

THE SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC

TWENTY-THREE CASES YESTERDAY: TWENTY DUMPED

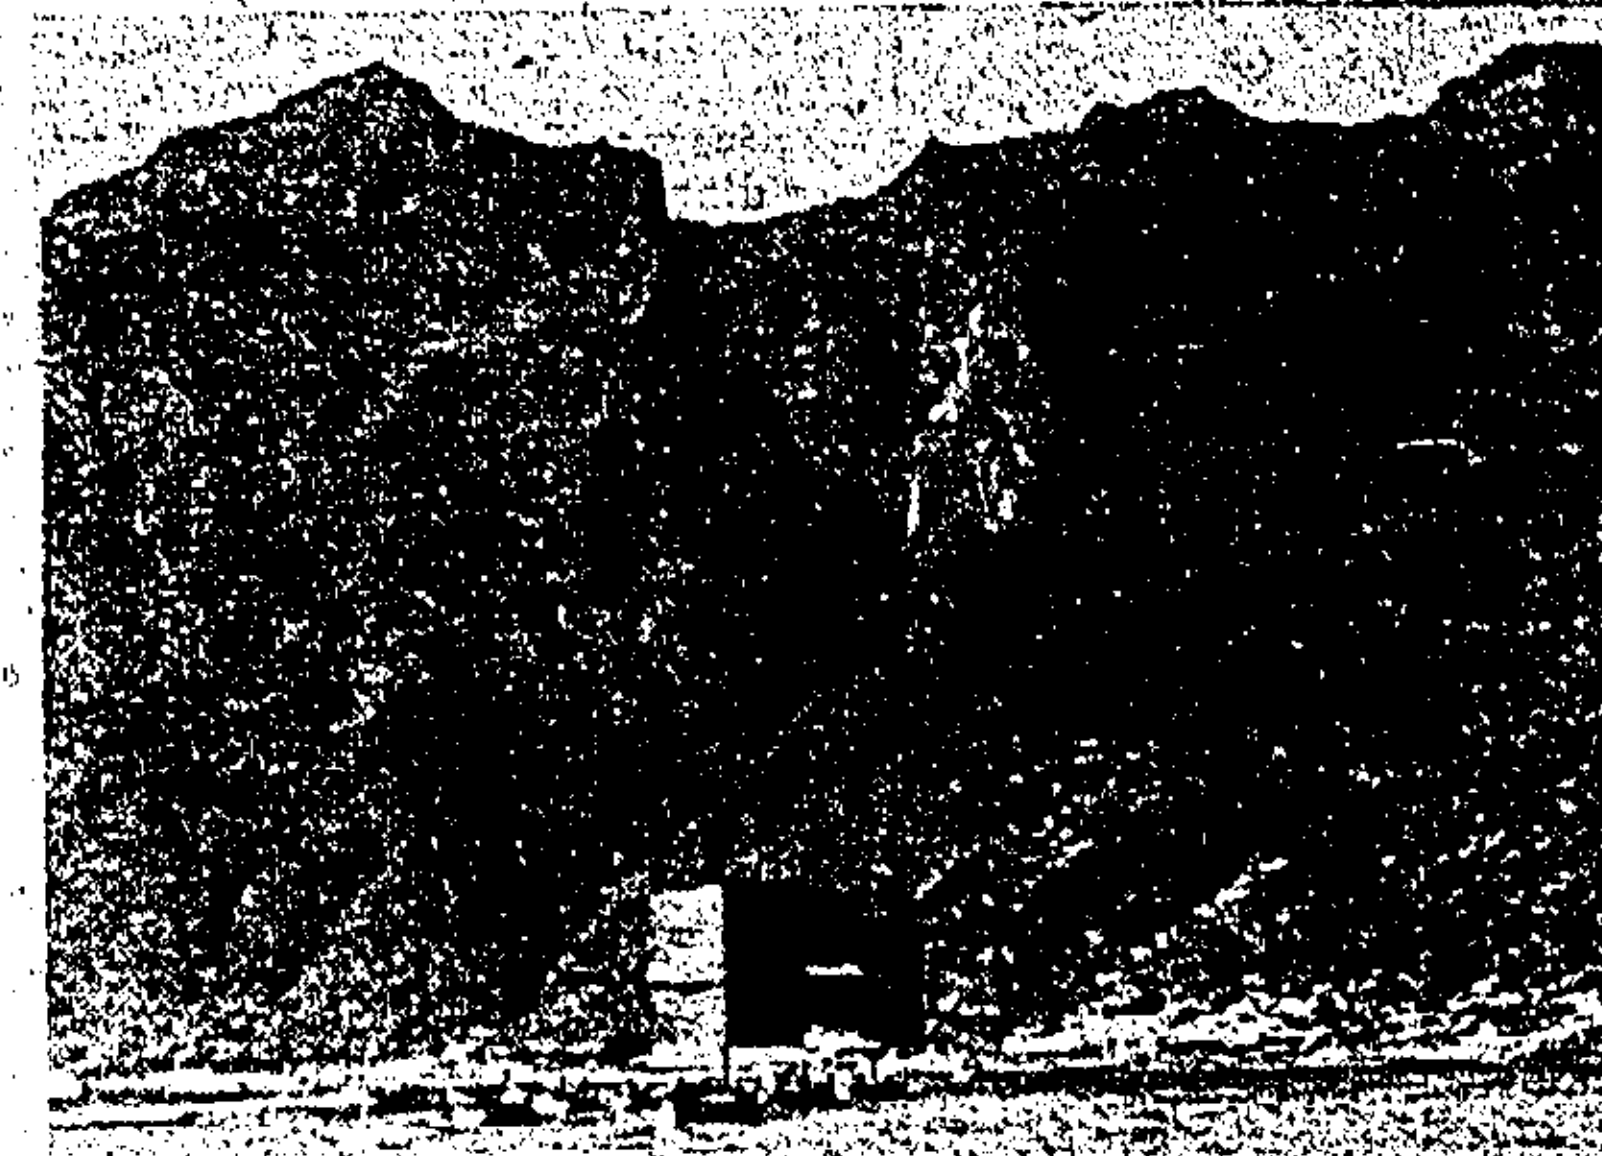

There is at present no indication of any abatement in the smallpox epidemic which is sweeping the Colony. "Just as bad as ever," was now Dr. G. W. Pope, Medical Officer of Health, described the situation this morning.

Commenting upon the epidemic, Dr. Pope pointed out the difficulties confronting the authorities in that the large majority of the cases are concealed. Of the 23 notifications made to-day at least 20 of them were only revealed by the discovery of the dumped bodies of the victims.

One infant child was found dumped on Barker Road. The disease was prevalent all over the Colony and cases were being discovered in every district.

Four European cases have been reported since the outbreak. Owing to the fact that the majority of the cases were concealed it is impossible for the authorities to discover how many cases have been imported. The epidemic had been very bad in Canton prior to the outbreak in Hongkong but it was now easing in the Chinese city. A certain number of cases might have been brought to Hongkong from Canton during the Chinese New Year holidays but in the absence of any history of individual cases it was difficult to surmise anything.

Fourteen of yesterday's cases were from Kowloon. During last week, there were 48 cases notified, with 26 deaths.

The above photo indicates the natural defences of Jehol, high mountains rising sheer from the water in territory through which the Lan River passes.

DUTCH WARSHIP MUTINY

INQUIRY REPORT CONCLUSIONS

COMMANDER NOW RELIEVED

Batavia, Feb. 20.

The Commission of Inquiry into the mutiny aboard the Dutch battleship, De Zeven Provinciën, have submitted a preliminary report to the commander-in-chief.

The conclusions reached in the interim report were outlined by the Navy Commander in a statement before the People's Council to-day.

He said that sections of both the native and European crew planned the outbreak, which was due to dissatisfaction with the recent pay cuts.

The dissatisfaction was particularly great among the native ratings, who felt that they had been unfairly discriminated against.

SENIOR OFFICERS RELIEVED

The success of the mutiny, according to the Commission of Inquiry, was made possible by the lack of special precautionary measures and the absence ashore of the senior officers and the majority of the petty officers.

He added that it had not yet been satisfactorily proved that the officers acted sufficiently energetically in their attempts to regain control. The Commander and the First Officer have been relieved of their posts and discipline has been restored.—Reuter.

INTERNATIONAL HORSE SHOW

EFFORTS TO KEEP IT GOING

London, Feb. 20.

Although the Company which has run the annual international Horse Show decided to-day to be wound-up voluntarily, efforts are being made independently, by Lord Londale and other influential sportsmen, to hold the show this year on the same scale as that of last summer, which was the most successful of recent years.—British Wireless.

MR. CERMAK STILL IN GRAVE CONDITION

HEART EXPERT CALLED IN

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic News Agency, 1933. Received, February 21, 1933 a.m.)

Miami, Feb. 20.

Fears for the life of Mr. Anton Cermark, victim of last week's shooting outrage, appear to be growing, though hopes have not by any means been abandoned.

Five doctors are now attending the Mayor, while Mr. Frederick Tice, the famous Chicago heart specialist, has arrived for a consultation with the other medical experts.—Reuter.

ZANGARA SENTENCED

Miami, Feb. 20.

Zangara, the man who attempted to shoot the President-Elect, Mr. Franklin Roosevelt, was to-day sentenced to a total of eighty years' imprisonment.

There were four charges against him, all of attempted murder and he was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment on each charge, the sentences to run consecutively.

PLEADED GUILTY

Charges in respect of the shooting of Mr. Anton Cermark, the Mayor of Chicago and Mrs. Gill, both of whom are still in a various condition, have not yet been laid.

The final editions of the "Telegraph" to-day and to-morrow will contain race results and cash sweeps up to and including the eighth race.

Zangara pleaded guilty to all the charges, thereby putting an end to expectations that he would attempt to escape imprisonment by claiming that he was insane at the time the attack was made.—Reuter.

NAZI WAR ON THE REDS

STARTLING GOERING ORDER TO POLICE

SHOOT TO KILL

Berlin, Feb. 20.
Captain Goering, the Prussian Commissioner for the Interior and Herr Hitler's right-hand man in the Nazi organisation, to-day issued a somewhat startling order to the Berlin police.

He has ordered the police to shoot down Communists and other enemies of the State without hesitation and simultaneously instructed them to protect and establish the friendliest relations with Nationalist organisations like the Nazi storm-troops, and the Steel Helmets.

RUTHLESSNESS PERMITTED

The order says that weapons may be used ruthlessly against organisations hostile to the State and protection is promised to the police using firearms in the exercise of their duties, whatever may be the consequences of the shooting.

The police are enjoined to remember that it is more reprehensible to omit a repressive measure than to make an error in execution.—Reuter.

DEBTS TALKS IN NEW YORK

SIR RONALD LINDSAY ARRIVES

Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, landed from the Majestic this afternoon and immediately had a two-hours' conversation with Mr. Franklin Roosevelt.

Afterwards, the President-Elect issued a statement announcing that Sir Ronald Lindsay had given him unofficially the views of the British Government, touching on the broader aspects of the World Economic Conference and other matters.

The conversations will be resumed at an early date.—Reuter.

HINT OF HAVANA IN THE RHUMBA

By Aruthur Murray

New York, Dec.—The New Year sees the Rhumba growing very popular. The Rhumba is a native Cuban dance.

In Cuba there are three Rhum-bas and none of them is permitted on floors of social ballrooms.

However, the American version of the Rhumba has been considerably modified. It is an exuberant dance, full of syncopated rhythm.

To learn the Rhumba you must practice carefully, to music. Lay this diagram on a chair and start.
The characteristics of it are crossing of feet, a long side step, rock-ing and then stepping on the same foot.

1. The man starts with a long side step, with his left foot, as in an ordinary two-step. Take a step with the left foot, "AND" draw up right foot.

2. Step with left foot to left, weight on left, with the right foot slightly raised from the floor.
Hold this for a beat then.

3. Lightly place the raised right foot, holding weight on left, shift weight quickly, leaving no weight on this right foot but transferring it to the left which you bring quickly over to place indicated on lower line of diagram.

4. Sway lightly with right foot, brought to place beside the left and then quickly step far to the right with the right foot.

The lady's part is the same as the man's, only she uses the right when he uses left and vice versa.

Dance to "Capullito de Aleli" or "The Peanut Vendor."

Maidea Cake

Quarter of a pound flour, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, 2½ oz.
of butter, 2½ oz. of sugar, 2 eggs.
Beat butter and sugar to a cream, add the flour (mixed with the baking powder), and then stir in the beaten eggs, adding a few drops of any flavouring. Bake for an hour and a half.

NOTES FROM PARIS.

Wet Weather Wear.

Waxed satin is much used for raincoats, and the vogue is for white waxed satin. I really believe that those who made these coats never for a moment thought of the usual accompaniment of rain-mud, for the effect of mud on that glossy whiteness would be simply disastrous.

It is wiser to choose—if not black waxed satin—navy blue, or even dark cafe-au-lait, which is the colour of dry mud. Leather or oil-skin cloths are more useful for raincoats, but they are much less elegant, and so are used almost exclusively for motorizing.

Duvetyn sometimes imitates leather or doeskin, and is often preferred to these materials.
Soft "natty" materials such as bure are also much in use, as it must needs be a very heavy rain indeed to penetrate them.

Leather Coats
The little short, separate coats, which are so warm, yet light in weight, are very fashionable.
These jackets are very strict, almost narrow in-line. They are to be seen in suede, dyed in every colour of the rainbow, costly lined with fur. Only recently I noted one of these funny little jackets in jade green suede, collared and cuffed with mole, and it topped a jade green velvet skirt, a little jade suede toque, well crushed over the brows, giving a final finishing touch to one of the smartest gets-up I have ever seen.

SPOTLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

SHEILA SILVANE, 18, whose parents were well-known vaudeville actors, is in New York looking for a job. Sheila is a dancer, in spite of the fact that she has spent almost her entire life on the stage. Her ambition is to marry and have a home like those she has seen in small towns in which she has played.

On a few hours' notice she is hired to take the place of DAISY GLEASON, another dancer, who has sprained an ankle. Sheila goes to JOE PARIS' office in "Tin Pan Alley" to rehearse. There she meets TREVOR LANE and DICK STANLEY, both rich. Lane asks Sheila to dance at a party he is giving but she refuses, knowing that after a day of rehearsing and the performance that night she will be too tired.

She goes to the theatre and there meets PHIL SHORT, an old acquaintance.

CHAPTER VII

Sheila was glad to see someone she knew—even an old sweetheart like Phil Short. A sweetheart who, as a matter of fact, had dropped her suddenly without warning. Why had Phil stopped coming to see her? Why had he stopped telephoning? Sheila had never known.

As nonchalantly as though nothing had happened, as though he had seen her only a few days before, Phil stood there. Well, nothing had happened, really. After what the most caustic observer would have called a rush Phil had simply disappeared.

Perhaps he had had a bad year, though now he seemed prosperous. Saxophonists are well paid even in off-seasons. And Phil himself had once pointed out that it isn't what an actor earns but what he saves that counts. Living had become cheaper.

In spite of the hearty greeting and the nonchalant manner, Sheila saw almost at once that Phil wore a harassed look. Even with an old score to pay off, she felt sorry for him.

"So you're taking Daisy's place?" he was saying. "That's fine, Sheila. I've often wondered what you were doing."

"Wasn't the telephone working down your way?" she asked, half vexed, half laughing.

"I couldn't call you," Phil began. Plainly he was embarrassed. "But that doesn't mean I didn't think about you."

"Well, thoughts keep a person warm in the winter," was her response, the caustic phrase borrowed from Ma Lowell. Then Sheila relented.

"Of course I'll have dinner with you. We can't be long, though."

"There's a little place near," Phil explained.

During the dinner he explained other things. Upon leaving Mr. Lowell's rooming house, said

Phil, he had married. Yes, married. His face clouded a trifle as he said the word, and it was evident that the marriage was not, for some reason, a happy one. He was vague about it. The girl's name was Mildred. She came from his home town—somewhere near Des Moines.

Just now, with conditions as they were, Mildred was living with Phil's parents. Sheila gathered that the daughter-in-law—strangely enough—had a more desirable place in the hearts of the Short family than did the son. "The folks think the world and all of Milly," was the way Phil put it.

The dinner was excellent, though hurried. Sheila ordered lightly, as Phil did also, for both had the performance to think of. The act would go on in three-quarters of an hour.

The young man was friendly, unrecable. It was nice to see Phil again. In show business one couldn't always account for sudden departures, failures to explain, omitted farewells. By the time she reached the dressing room Sheila felt rather friendly toward her old admirer and a little sorry for Mildred. Though his attitude toward Sheila had been above reproach, there was no denying the fact that Phil was a flirt.

Back in the dressing room the "arty dancers," as Lottie had somewhat scornfully dubbed them, had returned from a half hour's energetic posing, their scarfs trailing, their classic robes in pastel shades tossed about in confusion. They took a great deal, completely ignoring the others.

The art dancers, billed as the "Classic Nine," were not regular trouper. That is, they were not regularly booked, but instead were trying out a new number. It was soon clear that all of them were down on their luck, stretching every penny as far as it would possibly go.

Lottie confided to Sheila, busy with her cosmetic pan, that the only good number in the "Classic Nine's" act was a scarf dance done by the two little blondes. Lottie was a blonde too, but there was a difference. The two youthful dancers had honey-coloured hair which obviously grew that way without benefit of art or decoration.

However, Lottie might feel, Sheila soon was aware that these girls were not trying to appear superior. They were not cheap. Sheila would have told you. The shabby little street suits which they were busily donning were well cut and reminded Sheila of the clothes worn by the smartest "Follies" girls. Dark, plain, unostentatious and expensive. Not fluffy or loud as so many chorus girls' costumes. Their hats were just hats—difficult to describe but suave and sure of themselves.

Sheila worked on at the dressing table. Lottie's specialty came first and then Sheila's—with a wait between while the band, elegant in evening clothes, performed.

Her hair would do, though, she was sorry there had not been time for a shampoo and wave. Now that the exchequer was about to be replenished, Sheila could afford that.

She lighted the tiny lamp, melted the cosmetic in the little "frying pan" and beaded her lashes carefully. Darkened her lids with blue make-up, crimsoned her lips with generous strokes, dabbed rouge high on her cheek bones. Close at hand she looked grotesque, anything but intriguing. But beyond the footlights the patches of colour would be subdued to a natural flush, a hazy oveliness, glowing and sparkling with health.

Next came her hose, carefully smoothed on, and her dancing slippers. A silken slip and then Daisy's frilled gown, tight at the waist and billowing to her knees. If it had been fitted to Sheila it could not have been more suitable. She would wear it for the first number. Lottie, rather grand and aloof in a tiara and sweeping blue satin, watched as Sheila promenaded across the dressing room.

"I'd take this other dress up a little more on the side," Miss Kilcynne suggested, turning from inspection of her own huge pink hair ribbon. Lottie agreed, catching needle and thread from her overnight bag.

Sheila shuffled a few steps, winced, smiled, tapped energetically, warming up. The band was playing the first number. Lottie, clearing her throat, caught up a chiffon handkerchief the size of a lunch cloth and left hurriedly for the wings. The art dancers, still in their street clothes, re-turning two by two from dinner, eyed Sheila curiously and, had she but known it, enviously.

"Nervous?" one of the honey-

coloured blondes asked, smiling. Sheila smiled, too, and shrugged. "Of course she was nervous! But it was like the excited nervousness of a circus horse sniffing sawdust after a long vacation. Soon she would be out there in the glare of the footlights. Phil, Roscoe and the rest would be behind her. An audience, hostile or friendly, in front. A sea of faces swimming across her vision!"

The orchestra was bringing Lottie's number to a close with a blare. Applause, not voluminous but encouraging. There, Lottie was taking a bow. And another! That was a mistake—forcing the bows that way. Sheila liked to be hustled back to the stage, band in hand with the band leader, bowing shyly, backing out before the audience was willing to relinquish her. But to force applause was bad business. Presently the clapping became milder, merely a polite patter.

Sheila stood in the wings. Roscoe waved his baton. Phil nodded and the band crashed into melody. Two bars. Three bars. How did it go? Oh—this way! Sheila ran on. Now she was dancing! Dancing to a full house, too.

"Tum-ti-tum, ti-tum. Don't fake that last turn there, baby!" She could still hear Bill Brady's admonishing tone, still hear his "ta-ta, ta-ta!" Sheila didn't fake

PHOTOGRAPHIC ART.EXHIBITION ARRANGED AT UNIVERSITY

Work of a high standard was seen in the University Union Assembly Room yesterday when the Amateur Photographic Club commenced a three-day exhibition of the pictures entered for the Members' Competition, which was completed recently.

As in former years, Mr. P. A. Dragon once again demonstrated that he is among the foremost amateur photographers of the Colony. All his works bore the mark of distinction, which was rewarded by the judges with no fewer than five places in the first ten best pictures selected by them. He won the Advanced Class Competition with a beautifully finished picture entitled, "Curves," depicting children at play at the sea-side, and the second place with one called "Back-lane Gossip," which was art and humour exquisitely blended.

In order not to award all the prizes to one exhibitor, the judges have decided to present the second prize to Mr. H. Luer, whose best effort was a picture called "Seamstress." The third prize was awarded to Mr. W. H. Tan, whose study of sea-life over the title, "Resting On One's Oars," deservedly earned the judges' approval.

Other prize-winners in the Advanced Class were Messrs. A. Abbas, H. C. Coh and K. W. Khoo, all of whom won consolation prizes.

In the Beginners' Class, Mr. Paul Braga proved easily the best, the judges awarding him the first six places. His efforts were in a class by themselves, and gave on the impression that, before long this promising photographer will rank as one of the best amateurs in the Colony.

Although his best effort was placed seventh in the list, Mr. E. G. Tan was given the second prize, while Mr. E. L. Foo annexed the third with a picture which was placed eighth. Mr. R. S. Canell won a consolation prize, recognition being also given to the Wah Yan Photographic Club, whose study was awarded tenth place.

The Contact Print section attracted some nice pictures, the highest distinction being given to the Wah Yan Photographic Club, who won the first prize as well as four consolation prizes. Second prize was won by Mr. E. H. Ong and third by Mr. A. B. Tata.

Besides the actual competitors, several other amateurs sent their pictures for exhibition. Prominent among these was Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotevall, the President of the Amateur Photographic Club, whose pictures were much admired.

The judges for the Competition were Mr. E. A. von Kobza, Dr. Th. Nagel, and Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith.

The exhibition, which is open daily from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., will be brought to a close to-morrow when Mr. von Kobza will address the Club in the Assembly Room, at 4.30 p.m. his subject being comments on the entries.

HONGKONG BUILT.NORWEGIAN STEAMER PAYS CALL TO BIRTHPLACE.

The Norwegian Steamer Hektor which arrived here yesterday was built in Hongkong, having been launched from Kowloon dock in 1921. She went into commission on March 24, 1921, leaving here for Fremantle to load a cargo of wheat for Europe. Since that date she has only made one other call at this port; that was in February 1922, when she called for bunkers. She was engaged in the Marseilles-New York service until eighteen months ago, when, owing to sickness of trade she was laid up at Hamburg. Re-commissioned last January, she loaded a cargo of 7,500 tons at Hamburg, and Antwerp, the major portion of which is some 6,000 tons of iron and steel for Japan.

Japan has shown much activity lately in the purchase of iron and steel from other countries. Several large shipments of scrap iron have been reported from the U. S. A., Australia, and New Zealand. In addition, large consignments of milled iron and ingots for manufacturing purposes, have been coming from European ports.

THE SOCIAL SERVICES

A timely and influentially signed manifesto, recently issued, draws public attention to the danger of "economy" attacks on Local Government and the social services. Among the signatories to the manifesto were Sir Josiah Stamp, Sir Arthur Salter, Mr. H. G. Wells, Dr. Scott Lidgett, Dr. A. D. Lindsay, Sir Oliver Lodge, Dr. Cyril Norwood, Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, Dr. Ernest Barker, Col. John Buchan, and other well-known and representative people. The manifesto points out that "any serious retrogression from the standards so laboriously erected would have consequences of a disastrous kind". Some of those disastrous consequences are indicated: "They might well impair for a generation the discovery of that ability so essential to national leadership. They might easily lead to those social conditions of which the fruit is seen in high incidence of infantile mortality, bad conditions of housing (with their inevitable consequence of a low standard of public health), a wide indignation at the denial of equal opportunity which makes so seriously for the division between classes." The manifesto declares that "no diminutions in expenditure are justified if, as these may well do, they seem likely over a period to injure the mental and physical power of the present generation to cope with the grave problems by which it is confronted." The fact that a body of public men representative of all parties and religious denominations and including leading educationalists, medical doctors, social workers and economists, should feel it necessary to issue such a manifesto is in itself an indication of the strength of feeling on the subject. The "economy" policy of the Government has already resulted in decreased expenditure on education and the general slowing down of the progressive development of the elementary educational system outlined in the Hadow Report. The abolition of free secondary education and the raising of fees, together with the imposition of a means test for the parents of clever children, will deal another blow at the "standards so laboriously erected" by previous Governments. The purpose of the manifesto is to create a public opinion that will resist unjustified attacks on the social services. It is to be hoped that the Government will give more consideration to the views expressed in the manifesto than has hitherto been given to the same views expressed in other quarters.

The Philippines

The United States appears to have abandoned the high moral purpose of helping the Filipinos to achieve real independence grounded on economic and political stability. Instead it is offering them autonomy with one hand and snatching from them with the other the economic supports needed to make autonomy secure. For it is free trade with the United States which largely bases the Filipinos' economic well-being. And that economic strength undergirds political, social and educational development of the islands. A gift which loses much of its value as soon as it is accepted is a shabby gift. Especially when the giving is expected to enrich the giver at the expense of the recipient. Because of the opposition in the Legislature the Filipino mission is expected to seek to have the question of acceptance put before a special convention. The next steps would be the election of a constitutional convention and submission of its work to the President of the United States and to a referendum in the Philippines. Upon approval a probationary autonomous government would be established in the islands. Washington would be represented in Manila by a High Commissioner having only minor powers such as free access to governmental records and the right to report to the President any failure of the Filipino Government to fulfill its obligations. Indeed, the United States would retain responsibility for the islands without any real authority. This fact, coupled with the retention of military bases, might lead to grave dangers in the present unsettled state of the Far East. During the first five years of the probationary period exports of sugar, coconut oil and cordage to the United States would be limited and during the second five years they would be taxed at American tariff rates to pay Filipino debts. At the end of ten years, if all conditions have been fulfilled the President would surrender all sovereignty of the United States and proclaim an independent Filipino nation. But while not proclaiming the full freedom of American producers to bar out Filipino products by tariffs would be established at the same time. And they would have been enjoying some measure of freedom from Filipino competition for ten years already. That is the freedom which puts a taint on this gift and may cause its rejection.

Pelicanocracy

The pelicans are said to be interested in technocracy. The machine age has brought them such a large measure of benefit that they have become thoroughly converted to the proposition of a little labor and a lot of luxury. The pelican is a wise old bird. As the holder of patents for the first known practical cold storage system it has led all other birds in the promotion of labour-saving devices. No bird has developed greater facilities for gathering and storing its food. And it has not been unmindful of the value of the inventions of man. Hence its interest in the cause of technocracy at a time when the economic situation has served somewhat to restrict its easy sources of food supply. In early days, the pelican employed such crude methods as diving for the fish which formed its chief source of food supply. And then, at various points, great fish canneries got into operation and ejected sufficient waste product to provide an easy living for vast colonies of pelicans. Pelican youth grew up in an atmosphere of indulgence. The next meal meant only a short and pleasant flight to the nearest cannery. The machine age had removed the days of drudgery when their parents dived and ducked ten hours or more a day for a bit of herring and often went to bed hungry. But now many canneries have been closed by economic conditions and the younger pelicans, untrained in the pursuits of their forefathers, are blaming the government for a shortage of food. Hence their return to technocracy with the hope that all the cans in the cannery can come to the aid of the pelican.

ARISTOCRATS OF MOSCOW

By R. T. CHOLERTON

The various phases of the Russian Revolution have left their mark on the population of Moscow and on its institutions, so that newspaper articles and plays and even street crowds seem sometimes to contain in themselves the whole history of the last fifteen years. Faintest, scarcely to be discerned now, are the traces of the pre-Revolutionary revolutionaries of the men and women who lived in exile, and who dressed eccentrically, and who spent their time discussing, and often quarrelling over, the precise importance of this or that article in their faith and its application; of the intellectual-Bohemian-Anarchist revolutionaries who flocked back to Russia from their favourite cafes in Paris and Geneva and Vienna when they got news of the fall of the Tsarist Government.

"OLD TIMERS" OF REVOLT

The luckiest of these veterans have been able to return to their cafes, and enjoy a small but adequate competence as not very active agents of the Comintern; some of them have disappeared into the wastes of Siberia; the rest have either died, or been accorded a State funeral, or hold minor administrative posts and dream of the good old days when revolution was in the making and not made. Most of their ideas have long ago been condemned as "petit-bourgeois" or as deviations of one sort or another from the "party line," and they enjoy the sort of esteem and consideration that this accorded in England to, say, gentlemen in reduced circumstances. Even so, their influence is still to be seen in, for instance, the theoretical basis of Soviet marriage law, and—though here markedly dwindling—in Soviet educational theory. "Free love" and "free discipline" to this day flavour very faintly the Marx-Lenin-Stalin gospel and connect the Dictatorship of the Proletariat with co-education and hand-weaving and vegetarianism and the "simple life," with model colonies in the Cotswolds and New England.

THE PROLETARIAN MAN

Another element in Soviet society reminiscent of the more respectable, or at least more traditional, forms of revolutionary activity is what might have been called in Victorian England the Movement for Cultural Improvement Amongst Working Men. The big "realists," our Union boss types, have long ago moved into the Kremlin, and their runners-up have become the new "State Bourgeoisie" and may in time, if things go well, become the new aristocracy.

Here and there, however, traces still exist of the old-fashioned worker-intellectual-serious, mentally a little slow, perhaps whose very face immediately calls up a picture of an institute or a reading-room or a discussion group on, say, William Morris's "News from Nowhere." This is the proletarian man—like the economic man, an abstraction—who figures prominently in the leading articles of Pravda and Izvestia, who is given an honourable, if unexciting, place in propagandist drama.

and whose improved conditions as a result of the Soviet Government's policy form the subject of many an illustrated booklet and provide heavy ammunition for many an official guide.

As far as Moscow is concerned, the dominant social element is the new bourgeoisie. These fill the cinemas and the theatres and restaurants; ladies tending to be dressy; gents less formal—black shirt, velvet jacket, top boots—but none-the-less unmistakably used to a higher standard of life than the ordinary worker.

On the book shelves of each one of them is a volume of Marx, bound in limp black leather, and on their walls portraits of Stalin and Lenin. They use the telephone a great deal, are mad on gadgets and dream of the time when, after a whole series of Five-Year Plans, gramophones and two-seaters will be available for their women and natty blue sailor suits for their youngsters and enough food to have jolly parties without getting tripped up by the "Party Line."

FASHIONS FOR BOSSES

As for the bosses or "Court and Personal"—they wear smart uniforms of black leather coats, and carry satchels, and, except for the big Mystery Men like Stalin, are to be seen any day travelling to and from their offices in powerful cars.

One ruling class is very like another, in bearing at least; and as the Soviet Government has become more and more established the Soviet ruling class has become more and more assured, more and more aware that it is the salt of the earth and fittest to exercise authority.

Lenin resolved all problems of government to the famous question, "Who is to govern whom?" Revolutions, like general elections, are an attempt to answer this question; once the question is decisively answered a ruling class comes automatically into existence, and Commissars and Secretaries of State and Maharajahs and Caliphs assume the "Who" role in very much the same sort of way.

THE SILENT MASSES

There is, of course, the population of Russia to be taken into account, the peasants and workers who were neither pre-Revolution revolutionaries nor have become new bourgeoisie or ruling class. These, except that at the moment they are more than usually hungry and shabby, have been largely unaffected by the Revolution. Great changes in history are often brought about by mass movements, but their consequence is always that the mass remains "Whom." One "Who" after another has occupied, and doubtless will continue to occupy, the Kremlin; "Whom" is a constant factor. "Whom" queues up for its bread, stares at illuminated street propaganda, gratefully accepts an occasional pass to the cinema or the theatre, suffers the fate that "Who" imposes, and reads the newspapers that "Who" writes, with—generally speaking—remarkable tolerance and good humour.

The Very Idea!

GIVING US THE WORKS

By Edward "Stickybeak" Kelly.

We received an invitation the other day to see a trade film of the Austin Car factory at the Queen's Theatre.

We think there is always something fascinating about seeing how things like this are done, and hope that the invitation won't stop at motor-cars.

Take the chap who makes the Hongkong Directory, for instance. His office work wouldn't differ much from ours, we suppose, but he gets a kick out of doing his rounds.

Imagine us ambling along the Peak Road together, when suddenly from one of the flats half a dozen coolies stagger out beneath a piano. The Directory Director pricks up his ears.

"Ho, the Mugwumps are moving," he says. "I must find out for my new edition where they are going."

A few seconds later he returns with a defeated look on his face. "My mistake," he says, "they're not moving. The bailiffs are in."

Or we come across Peter pulling a ricksha up Chater Road.

"Good Lord, there's Watkins," he mutters. He must have left his job in the civil service," and he goes across to see Pete.

"Sh-h-h-h!" says Pete, "don't speak to me. There's one of the shroffs over there."

The man we'd like to have take us around more than anyone else, though, would be our bank manager.

Promptly at 10 a.m. we'd be around to watch him fling open the doors of the big safe.

Then he counts the money. As a rule, this is o.k. within a $100 Chartered Bank note or so, which probably has gone for tens and things for the staff.

Next he checks the bundles of Bills Receivable and laughs joyously. Then he checks the bundles of Bills Payable and doesn't laugh.

This done he has a go at the Bank Premises A/C, and if some careless clerk of a clerk has chucked ink on the wall, the manager gets furious, because the cost of cleaning it up has to be charged against capital. So the long day passes with one thing or the other until four o'clock.

Then the manager would take his white spats down from the hatrack, lock the big safe—looking to see that we weren't left inside—and extracting his tram fare from the Sundries and Emergencies A/C, would sally forth.

SIC ITUR.

We would add our modest tribute to the policeman who summoned himself for having a poker party and was fined four dollars and commended by the Bench. But if he thinks he is original, why he's wrong. It was thus we won promotion ourselves when we served with "The Force."

"Tight" one night in the Divisional canteen (ah, beer was beer in those days!) we rose at once to the occasion, though only then a raw and unfledged constable. We arrested ourself, reported the arrest at the station and locked ourself up in the cells. We tested ourself for sobriety and, as we suspected, was quite unable to say clearly "The corroborability of the evidence was ascertained interrogatorily." How the magistrates cheered when we repeated these facts from the witness-box!

Within a week we were a servant, with twice as much to spend in the canteen.

AIR KILLING HORRORS

BRITISH POLICY AT GENEVA

THE CONTROL OF AVIATION

London, Feb. 20.

The task of devising a practical scheme, which the words of Lord Londonderry, the British Air Minister, "will give to all nations real protection against horrors to which the imagination can put no limit, while preserving for their use and convenience the beneficent development of peaceful flying," was begun at Geneva to-day by the air committee of the disarmament conference.

The Committee met, in pursuance of the resolution passed by the general commission, to examine the possibility of the abolition of military and aerial bombing from a combined with effective control of civil aviation.

Referring to the menace, which the misuse of aircraft would constitute to civil population, Lord Londonderry said:

"Their development in the last twenty years has laid open to attack cities and centres of population lying far behind the frontier. Each year has seen an increase in the speed, range and carrying capacity of machines so that already aircraft exist which could launch an air attack from one end of Europe to the other.

OCEANS NO BARRIER

"Even oceans are no longer a barrier and as aircraft, whether civil or military, are increasingly annihilating time and distance, the whole world is becoming as one continent."

He was authorised to restate on behalf of his Government, the declaration made last November by Sir John Simon, that the United Kingdom Government are prepared to subscribe to the universal acceptance of the abolition of naval and military aircraft, and air bombing, except for police purposes, provided only that there can be devised an effective scheme for the international control of civil aviation, which will prevent all possibility of the misuse of civil aircraft for military purposes.

NECESSARY CONDITION

It was manifest that the prohibition of military aircraft and an agreement not to make use of so powerful a weapon could not give any real sense of security so long as there was no effective guarantee that civil aircraft could not be so misused. The problem before the committee, therefore, was to devise such an effective regulation of civil aviation as would make feasible the abolition of naval and military aircraft and the prohibition of air bombardment. Without such regulation the danger to the world's peace would otherwise be increased rather than diminished.

TWO NEEDS

Any such scheme must satisfy at least two conditions. It must prevent all possibility of the resources of civil aviation used for military purposes in the event of an outbreak of hostilities and it must not prevent or hamper the fullest development of aviation in every country for civil and commercial purposes nor restrict freedom in the realm of experiment and research.

Regarding the first, Lord Londonderry pointed out that the July resolution contemplated that some regions should be excluded, but the means were obviously required to prevent the civil machines existing in those areas being available for military purposes.

SAFEGUARDING FUTURE

Regarding the second condition, it was inconceivable that a convention designed to promote security and goodwill among nations should be such as to check the free development of what was perhaps the most important agent of the present day for encouraging peaceful communications and the development of commercial and friendly intercourse.

Speaking of the problem which the committee must face, Lord Londonderry reminded the members that aviation was only in its infancy and they were considering a convention to safeguard the future as much as the present. —British Wireless.

persists in her present policy and Geneva fails, the choice may be, however reluctantly, reversed."

JAPAN'S FEARS.

Continuing, Lord Lytton said Japan feared the spread to Korea of Russian Communism, and saw with anxiety the rising tide of Chinese Communism from the South. Nanking could have welcomed her help in resisting both, but instead, Japan had chosen to interpose forcibly a buffer State of her own creation—Manchuria—which cannot but increase the very danger against which it was meant to guard.

"When I use the word 'Japan,'" said Lord Lytton, "I must not be misunderstood. The Japanese people have always been sincere and enthusiastic in support of the League of Nations, but the Japanese General Staff, which momentarily controls the Government of Japan, believes it can successfully defy both Moscow and Geneva. That road can never lead to peace."—Reuter.

INDUSTRIES FAIR OPENS

London, Feb. 20. Representatives from nearly every country in the world attended the opening day of the British Industries Fair. Many were waiting when the doors opened early this morning. The general impressions were that the Fair this year, which is certainly the biggest in the series, was also the brightest and most variegated. The Duchess of York visited the White City section of the Fair and made many purchases during her long inspection. —British Wireless.

DOLLAR RISES A FARTHING

LOCAL UNDERTONE FIRM

The Hongkong dollar rose a farthing this morning to 1s. 3½d. The local market is still somewhat uncertain, but the undertone is firm.

In London, silver rose 1/16th. China bought and there were small offerings on a steady market. After the official fixing, the market ruled firm, business being reported at 1/16th over the quoted rates, at which price America was inclined to buy. In New York, silver advanced one cent from 26½ to 27½, with the market erratic.

SPLENDID CONCERT.

BARRIE PLAY AND MELO-DRAMA CLEVERLY ACTED

Two cleverly produced and splendidly acted plays were features of the concert and dramatic entertainment held under the auspices of St. Andrew's Club in St. Andrew's Church Hall last night. Amateur productions are usually patronised by people who come prepared for the worst. But there was real merit in last night's show, something of unusual appeal, which delighted the crowd. The first play, a melodrama in three scenes, "The Bells," calls for a delicacy of treatment, without which a clever production may be reduced to farce. Nothing could be said against the treatment meted out by the players last night.

Sydney West as the central figure, a man haunted by memories of a murder he had committed years before, took the major honours. Deep, emotional acting was required of him, and he carried his part through in a most convincing manner. Others in the cast were Agnes Leib, Luba Gossava, Sidney Edgar, Arthur Jeffreys, Gordon Thomson and Theo Ingram. J. M. Barrie's well-known play, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," is an entirely different type of production. James Ferguson as Stephen Mitchell and Gordon Thomson as the hard-bitten young private of the Black Watch and Margaret Bunje as the old lady who "adopted" him as her son, shared the major honours. Miss Park, who has a pleasing soprano voice, chose "The Dancing Lesson," "Cherry Ripe," "Do you believe in fairies?" and an Eriakay love lilt as her numbers. Mrs. Schroder delighted the audience with "Solo de Concert," "Diabeske," "Song without Words." Both plays were produced by and "Kuyarrah."

THE RYDER CUP

ENGLAND TO RELY ON YOUNGSTERS

NEED FOR EARLY TEAM BUILDING

There has been a great deal of discussion about the team to represent United States in the match for the Ryder Cup at Southport next June. We are told that only four of the members of the team that won the cup at Seaside, Ohio, are likely to be included in the side to visit Britain—Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Craig Wood, and Denmore Shute; that Horton Smith, Billy Burke, Leo Diegel, Johnny Farrell, Wiffy Cox, and Al Espinosa have shown such poor form that they are almost certain to be omitted unless they show a remarkable recovery in the remaining winter tournaments.

This is all very good propaganda for America, but what about the British team?

So far it might appear that we have done nothing in the way of choosing a side. Instead of that being the case those responsible for selection have already made a certain amount of progress.

Two years ago we held a series of trial games, but they did not entirely achieve their object. Men who did well in the trials failed in later tournaments and vice versa.

This year current form will decide the composition of the team. Young golfers especially will be watched in the big tournaments as it is the general opinion inside as well as outside the Professional Golfers' Association that the new generation has arrived at the stage where it should shoulder the responsibility of the big occasion.

A number of players—perhaps twenty—will be invited to hold themselves in readiness to play if selected, but it may not be until a week or two before the match that the composition of the British team will be known.

Arrangements were completed this morning for a wrestling bout between "Tiger" Duala, claimant for the world's heavyweight mat title and Joe Cross.

Duala's challenge has been accepted by Cross and the men will meet on Sunday afternoon next, probably at the Kowloon Football Club.

Negotiations for the use of the Railway Ground are now in hand, and it is fairly certain that the R.F.C. will be the venue.

FRIENDLY CRICKET. Volunteers Draw With Kowloon Club.

E. C. FINCHER 46.

The cricket match between the Volunteers and the Kowloon Cricket Club continued yesterday and ended in a draw.

Kowloon continued its first innings and was dismissed for 230, a number of the batsmen entering double figures. The Volunteers declared their second innings closed when six wickets were down, setting Kowloon 195 for a win. Kowloon started their second innings badly, when seven wickets were down for 24, but E. C. Fincher and Stapleton played out time, and were undefeated at the close with 46 and 36 each.

Andrews Wins Tennis Crown

N. Z. CHAMPIONSHIP REGAINED

Defeats C. E. Malfroy in Four Sets

Wellington (N.Z.), Jan. 23. E. D. Andrews, the old Cambridge Blue, beat a fellow Cambridge Blue, C. E. Malfroy, by 6-0, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 in the final of the New Zealand lawn tennis singles championship here to-day.

Andrews first won the New Zealand championship in 1927, and then went straight to England, not competing for the title again until this year.

He is well known in Hongkong having given exhibitions here in 1931 and last year. In 1931 he was surprisingly overcome by C. A. L. Rumjahn, then local champion, although his defeat was largely attributable to his ill-health.

Last year he left a deep impression when he revealed something like the true qualities of his game.

New York, Jan. 23.

In ranking the best professional players of the world, W. T. Tilden places Martin Plan, of France, first and himself second, with the young German, Hans Nusslein, third.

AUSTRALIA AND DAVIS CUP.

Melbourne, Jan. 23. The Lawn Tennis Council of Australia has decided to challenge for the Davis Cup this year, provided that a suitable team can be got together. The Council decided to give preference to the projected lawn tennis tour of Japan by an Australian team.

CYCLISTS' OUTING.

Newly Formed Club Have First Run on Sunday.

ONE MEMBER RETIRES.

The first outing of the newly formed Hongkong Motor Cycle Club was held in Kowloon on Sunday when ten members assembled at the Kowloon Car Park and rode out to the New Territories.

With the exception of the retirement of one member of the party at 11 a.m. at Tai Po, owing to tyre trouble, the run of approximately 95 miles was entirely without mishap. A stop was made in the wilderness for a little lunch and the riders later returned to Kowloon, arriving at 4.30 p.m.

LADIES GOLF TITLE.

Local Championship Won By Mrs. Wren.

The Final Round of the Ladies' Championship of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club was played over the Old Course, Fanling, on Thursday, February 16, and resulted in a win for Mrs. Wren, who beat Mrs. H. Sheldon by 6 and 6.

FANLING GOLF.

C. B. Robertson Qualifies for Final.

JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Playing at Fanling at the week-end, C. B. Robertson beat Dr. C. H. Burton in the semi-final of the R.H.K. Golf Club's Junior Championship, and now has to meet C. H. G. Bradley in the final.

It was a close contest, Robertson only winning at the 19th.

F. A. CUP DRAW.

Matches for Sixth Round on March 4.

The draw for the sixth round of the Association Football Cup, to be played on March 4 took place to-day and resulted:
Brighton or West Ham v. Middlesbrough or Birmingham.
Derby v. Sunderland.
Burnley v. Manchester City.
Everton v. Luton.

MAMAK HOCKEY

For their Mamak tournament hockey match against I.M.S. Wharfedale at King's Park to-morrow afternoon at 4.15 the R.A.S.C. will be represented by:
W. E. Funnell; J. H. Jeffers and G. Whitley; T. O'Connor, G. E. Buckland and A. C. Kenne; P. B. Barlow, H. A. Tippet, P. H. Senior, T. H. Spain and W. Gray.

LORD HAWKE ON CRICKET

CHAMPIONSHIP PERCENTAGES A "NECESSARY EVIL"

LANCASHIRE CRITICISED FOR IMPORTING PLAYERS

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Yorkshire Cricket Club, in Leeds, Lord Hawke, elected president for the thirty-fifth year, was full of praise for Erian Sellers, who has been invited to skipper the county eleven for another year.

It is really remarkable, said his Lordship, that, like every captain but one since the War, he should have led the team to victory in his first year of office. In him we were fortunate to have the right type of leader. He never gave up a match until the last over, as was proved by the splendid victory over Gloucestershire at Bradford when the last wicket fell two minutes before time after the extra half-hour had been claimed.

After congratulating the Yorkshire side on winning the championship for the sixteenth time, he said they all felt very sorry for Sussex that, owing to ill-health, they should lose the services of their splendid captain, Duffie-Smith, at a time when they were running so well for the title.

Lord Hawke also alluded to the new system of arranging fixtures and the reduction of the number of matches required to qualify for the championship to 12 home and away.

"RINGTAIL'S" SEVEN WINNERS

IN TEN RACES.

"Ringtail," the Telegraph racing correspondent, achieved another marked success yesterday, when, out of ten events, tipped the first two races having been run before publication of the first issue of the Telegraph) he gave seven winners.

These included Trentbridge, winner of the Derby classic, and the others were Diana Bay, Racing Boy, Woodland Stag, Liberty Bay, Jungle Jim and Blue Star.

"Ringtail's" tips for to-day's meeting will be found on another page.

FR. AUSSEM RETURNS

BACK AGAIN IN TOURNAMENT TENNIS

COCHET EXTENDED

From France comes the news that Andre Merlon recently extended Henri Cochet to five sets and 57 games in the final of the men's singles at the Roubaix tournament. Riviera games are again looking up. Last year there was a terrible slump. Following the financial crisis of the autumn, 1931, and the announcement that the Duke of Connaught would not winter as usual at Cannes, everybody felt that it was impossible to go South that winter.

STARS GATHER.

Now things are becoming a little more normal. Recent arrivals on the Riviera are H. Cochet, Sir Arthur Crossfield, C. F. Aeschliman, the Swiss Davis Cup player, who is a hotel proprietor at Cannes; A. C. Hunter, J. M. Hillyard, Mrs. Satterthwaite and Miss M. A. Thomas. Miss M. C. Scriven and Miss Sheila Hewitt are going South soon.

G. L. Rogers, the Irish Davis Cup player, intends to take part again in the tournaments from Cannes to Mentone.

It will be interesting to see whether his recent course of physical training at Don McCordindale's boxing camp at Slough has benefited his game.

CONDITION IMPROVED.

He has stated that the course vastly improved his condition and he declared that an athletic training was of great use in preparing teams for the Davis Cup and other big international tournaments.

Welcome is the news that Fraulien Cilly Aussem has recovered sufficiently to begin play again. She collapsed in the French championships last year when playing Miss Betty Nuthall, after an operation for appendicitis.

She will return to match play in the Riviera tournaments, and will stay at Cannes.

A newcomer to the Riviera will be Clifford Sutter who in the American championships nearly beat Ellsworth Vines in straight sets.

When I tell you that we have been allotted five matches in Yorkshire in May you can well imagine what cause we have to be dissatisfied. I am sure no southern county is anxious to play in Yorkshire or in the North in May. Doubtless, we must have two or three matches, but when it comes to five, then we must do all in our power to see it does not occur again. We in Yorkshire, with many other counties, prefer that the matches should be arranged as in the past by each secretary.

He also had some faults to find with the allotment of fixtures for the coming season.

The importation of Colonial players by the Lancashire League came in for some criticism. "What is the necessity?" asked Lord Hawke, "for this importation of Colonial players to the detriment of international cricket? Has the League no pride in birth qualification and is the cricket success of a club to be dependent on each vying with the other as to who can buy the greatest staff?"

"We may yet learn that Grimmett will come over. No sooner had New Zealand placed herself in the Test match arena than three of her most prominent players—Blunt, Merritt and Cromb—were taken from her."

CAPTAIN RETIRES.

COMMANDER OF NEURALIA ON LAST VOYAGE

When the transport Neuralia left Shanghai on Saturday morning she commenced her last trip under the command of Captain E. W. O'Connor, O.B.E., D.S.C., who is retiring from the sea.

In his war-time and post-war service, Capt. O'Connor has probably carried more soldiers than any man living. For his services he has received the Distinguished Service Cross, been made a Freeman of the City of London, and in last year's Birthday Honours received the O.B.E.

For the past nine years Capt. O'Connor has commanded the Neuralia, transport of the British India Steam Navigation Co. Now he is going to settle down in Devonshire, where he can live in good climate and get some fishing. Devonshire, he told the North-China Daily News yesterday, is far enough away from London to keep one away from the place.

Apprenticeship in Sail.

Captain O'Connor who was born in, Middlesex, embarked on his sea-faring career in 1882, when he was 10. Like the majority of men who went to sea in those days, he served his apprenticeship in sail, being five years in the Criccieth Castle. During that period he was in the Criccieth Castle, a full rigged ship, and with her he made three voyages to Australia, two to San Francisco and one to the west coast of America round the Horn. The Criccieth Castle was a contemporary of those days and famous clipper of those days and Captain O'Connor finished his time in her as third mate.

Having secured his certificates, all of which were for sail, he joined the British India Steam Navigation Co., as a junior officer on the Indian station and in 1914 was appointed to his first command, which was the Lightning, engaged in the coast-trade. During the war he commanded the Barjora, and since then he has served in a similar capacity in the Waipara and Wangaratta, which were utilized as training ships for young officers, and the Neuralia, to which he was appointed in 1924.

When war broke out Capt. O'Connor, who as already indicated, was in the Barjora, was employed on special service in East Africa in connection with the expeditionary force which was operating there. His first operation in which he participated was at Tanga, and for the services he rendered there he had a letter of thanks from the Principal Transport Officer, who particularly mentioned the efficient manner in which the lifeboats, manned by volunteers, were handled in the re-embarkation of Force B.

Capt. O'Connor was serving in connection with the East African campaign throughout the period of hostilities and in addition to being present at the evacuation of Tanga, participated in the capture of Madia Island, and the landing and evacuation of the Umba Valley Field Force. Later he was concerned in the taking of Tanga, Pangani, Sadai, Dar-es-Salaam, Kilwa, Lindi, Sudi Bay, Mikandani and Kisumu.

Cost Operations. In addition to being mentioned in despatches, Capt. O'Connor was awarded the D.S.C., and in this regard the Second Supplement of the London Gazette dated January 15, 1917, mentions him in the Commanders-in-Chief's despatches "for having shown extraordinary ability in the coast operations, the success of the landings being largely due to his professional capacity and zeal." It was General Smuts who mentioned him several times in despatches for distinguished service in the field.

Capt. O'Connor was described by the Chief of the East African Military Staff, as "a round peg in a round hole," which must be taken to indicate that he was in every way thoroughly proficient in his job.

During the East African Campaign Capt. O'Connor was responsible for landing in ships' boats over 40,000 troops. This is a very meritorious performance for it should be remembered that often he had to run the Barjora close to the shore when she was well within range of enemy fire. "I must confess that I had the luck of the devil," Capt. O'Connor has said, "for the ship was never once hit." The landings were planned with great ingenuity, and were usually effected at points along the coast, where the enemy had heavy guns and large forces.

After the war Capt. O'Connor took over the training for several years of cadets for the Merchant Service, but particularly for the B.I. Co., under cadet training scheme. During the period he was so engaged he went round the world in the Waipara and Wangaratta, taking 40 or 50 cadets at a time.

When the Neuralia, which had been utilized for training, was once again hired as a transport after two years in the Company's passenger service, he was appointed to command the ship in view of his previous

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

In "Leap Year" Tom Walls, plays the character of Sir Peter Trallion, of the Foreign Office. He seeks a rest and refuses an assignment, to follow Paula, the wife of a foreign financier who is under suspicion. He finds himself at a loose end, for all his lady friends are out of town, and through a wrong telephone number, he meets a charming woman who insists on concealing her identity. Their meeting takes place on Leap Year night, and leads to a promiscuous week end at Bournemouth. They do not meet again for four years, when chance throws them together at Cannes. Again on Leap Year night, by this time Peter has become engaged to his old chief's daughter, but he dexterously shelves his obligations and marries the mysterious lady, who turns out to be Paula.

"Laugh and Get Rich"

Realistic, whimsical humanness and humour, homely drama and touches of pathos seem to be the most harmonious elements for really appealing film stories. These, plus a pealing love story, make Laugh and Get Rich at the Queen's Theatre, one of the finest family entertainments of the year.

The picture not only sparkles with humour in situation and dialogue but it packs many a surprise punch. Edna May Oliver, who contributed a characterization gem to "Cimarron" as Mrs. Wyatt, and Hugh Herbert, one of the most capable stage and screen comedians and character actors, are teamed as the operators of a small city boarding house. Dorothy Lee, in her best talkie role to date, is their daughter. The fortunes and misfortunes of these three characters form the basis of the intensely human comedy.

No mere synopsis can give the sparkling of Laugh and Get Rich. The only way to understand its appeal is to go and see it—and this we advise unconditionally. Miss Oliver is superb. Hugh Herbert's performance is comparable to Frank McCann's great trouping in "Lightnin'". Miss Lee is as charming as ever and Gregory La Cava's direction is exceptional.

"Sweepstakes"

Eddie Quillan, who plays the starring part in RKO-Pathe picture "Sweepstakes" now showing at the Central Theatre for the last time, is a vaudeville performer of long standing, despite the fact that he is only twenty-three years of age and has been playing starring roles on the screen for some time. From the time he was able to walk and talk, he was part of the Quillan act, and toured the big-time vaudeville circuits with two brothers, a sister and his Scotch-Irish parents. Early in the act and signed Eddie Quillan, the act and signed Eddie Quillan, the act and signed Eddie Quillan.

The huge success of "The Lodger" as a silent film augurs well for the new sound version, and fine as Ivor Novello was in the old film his performance is absolutely magnificent in this Twickenham production, and he added attraction to the picture by his effective speaking voice heightens the drama of Maurice Elvey directed film and he has introduced some novel twists into the story and also made good use of clever camera angles without in any way interfering with the smooth continuity of the action. In fact, so quickly is the story moved that the dramatic climax, "The Lodger" which will be shown on Thursday at the Queen's Theatre is not a mystery thriller in the ordinary experience in that direction. Capt. O'Connor is now Senior Captain in the Sea Transport Service and for his services in connection with troopings was awarded the O.B.E. in the King's Birthday Honours last year. He received the decoration at the hands of His Majesty at Buckingham Palace on June 28.

A Fine Lead. Probably carried more soldiers than any man living, and almost the total must run into hundreds of thousands, no one is likely to dispute this. Well appreciated for his great fairness and greatly admired for the fine lead he gives his officers and men, Capt. O'Connor is a splendid example of the British Merchant Service officer. The fact gained him additional recognition recently, when he was appointed by the Southampton Master Mariners' Club, the largest organization of its kind in the world, to be their "Staff Captain," representing sea-going members for the club year.

ARE YOU ANAEMIC?

The percentage of people—both men and women—who suffer in a greater or lesser degree from anaemia, is much higher than is generally suspected.

Anaemia manifests itself in many ways and by greatly divergent symptoms. Though anemic people are often emaciated this is not always the case, and many people whose blood is thin and poor a quality still manage in some mysterious way to maintain their weight. But the anemic condition of their bloodstream manifests itself in their extreme pallor, in their inertia and depression.

In its earlier stages anaemia produces a scarcely noticeable falling off in energy, accompanied by general feelings of off-colour, occasional headaches, giddiness, loss of appetite, disinclination for work or exertion, shortness of breath. This state may continue for a long time. As the blood becomes further depleted and vitiated, physical and mental energy fall to a low ebb, the nerves weaken, insomnia appears, and there is, in most cases, difficulty in digesting food.

Unless some treatment is undergone which can effectively make good the deficiency in blood, the more serious stage of pernicious anaemia is reached, a condition which even the most highly skilled medical practitioner will always view with deep concern if not real alarm.

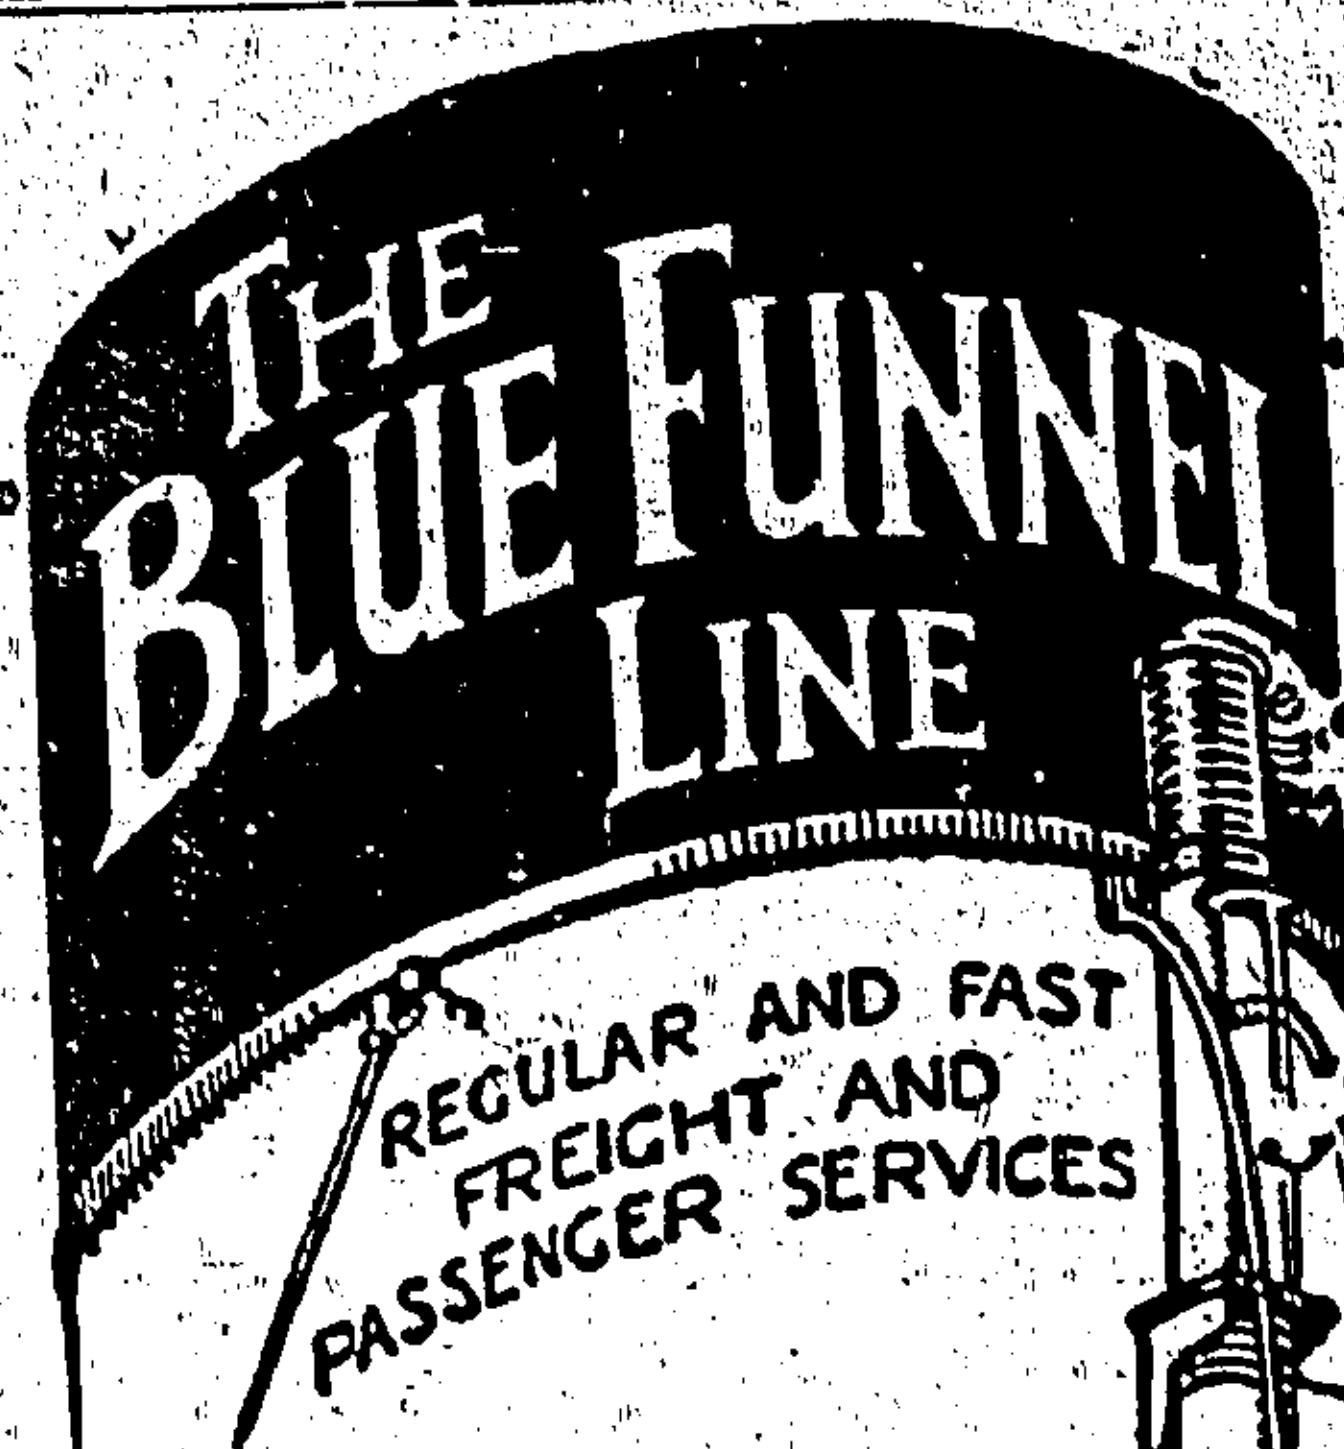

In all stages of anaemia the remedy which has proved pre-eminently successful is a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The formula is that of a bona-fide medical practitioner, and since it was discovered nothing has been devised which so markedly produces an increase in the quantity and quality of the blood.

This is the aim of all treatments of anaemia and ailments resulting therefrom, such as neurasthenia, insomnia, pallor and emaciation, loss of vitality, headache, dyspepsia, back pains,aching limbs, vertigo, shortness of breath and palpitation, rheumatism and sciatica. When the new rich blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills create is flowing freely in the veins, an independent source of new vigour and vitality is supplied and recovery is steady and sure. All anaemic sufferers should give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a genuine trial.

sense of these much maligned words, but a study of how suspicion under certain circumstances can produce fear that almost leads to tragedy. The story by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes is well-known, but as already stated, there is an unexpected twist in this "Invasion" which comes as a wartime discomfiture, and as it is magnificently acted there is undoubtedly a big thrill in store for you when you see it.

"Six Hours to Live" With the advancement of the motion picture art, the screen test has become much more than a mere test of beauty. While perfection of form and features is still a prime requisite, the ability to enact emotional, romantic or humorous situations are also necessary to satisfy the scrutinizing eye of the camera and the disarming ear of the microphone. It is the knowledge of these requirements and the application of this knowledge, when taking a test has won contracts for the few recent newcomers to the screen. Irene Ware, who made her movie debut opposite Edmund Lowe in the Fox Picture "Chandu the Magician," and now appears in "Six Hours to Live" at the King's Theatre, is one of the few. That she had beauty is best attested by the fact that she was chosen "Miss America of 1929". But that she had dramatic talent had to be proven, and Miss Ware proceeded to prove it by carefully rehearsing several roles she had played on Broadway and enacting them in the Fox New York studios. The result was a successful test and one-way ticket to Hollywood.

"Forgotten Commandments" Sari Maritza, vivacious young European film actress, stepped into the shoes of the most coveted roles that Hollywood had to offer when Paramount selected her for the principal feminine part in "Forgotten Commandments", epochal drama of modern manners. The fact that this is Miss Maritza's first selection the more remarkable. Miss Maritza, the feminine lead of a featured cast which includes Irving Pichel, Marguerite Churchill and Gene Raymond, portrays the fiery, vampish character of Anya, whose actions motivate most of the story. Born in Tientsin, of English and Viennese parents, Miss Maritza made a name for herself in German and English films before she was twenty. In London she was starred in three productions by the Gaumont company. "Forgotten Commandments" is based on an original story by James B. Fagan and Agnes Brand Leamy and includes an interlude which is a spectacular episode from Cecil B. De Mille's epic, "The Ten Commandments". It will be shown at the King's Theatre on Wednesday.

HONGKONG A.D.C.

PRODUCTION OF AN ALL- LADIES' DIVERSION

The forthcoming production, by the A. D. C. of this highly successful diversion in three acts by Aimee and Philip Stuart possesses unusual interest inasmuch as it is an "all-ladies" cast. If for no other reason, it is unique in the history of the A.D.C. for as recently as the early eighties all female characters in Hongkong amateur productions were impersonated by men.

There is no reason to doubt that the good ladies of those spacious days were not lacking in talent nor wanting in energy and it may therefore be reasonably assumed that the reputation for raffishness associated in older times with "rogues, vagabonds and stage-players" died a rather more lingering death in Hongkong than in other less sophisticated places in the East. It is not very difficult to visualise the versatile performers of that period accommodating themselves to the frills and furbelows of the seventies and even to the tempestuous petticoats of the eighties. It is not so easy to contemplate present day amateurs impersonating modiste apprentices wearing their simple souls outside their silken lingerie—as in "Nine Till Six."

Times Change.

It is well therefore that times have changed and that the A.D.C. of our age, if still not quite respectable, is yet permitted to do its best. The cynic may still speculate on the awful possibility that a generation hence an "all-male" cast like "Journey's End" will be filled by feminine and fulminating sergeant-majors and seductive soldiery with sex appeal. Who knows? Time brings its revenges. The imaginative world comes down to realities in cycles and, after all, is not the theatre the most real thing in the world?

The A.D.C. has presented to us problems of unreality aplenty because we want to be intrigued and amused. From "Charley's Aunt" to "The Middle Watch" we have seen a kaleidoscope of fascinating fairies dodging in and out of other people's bedrooms and bathrooms—never fails the box office. We have trodden new paths through magic woods and living dreams with "Dear Brutus" and raised our corrugated brows at the diseased impressionism of "Art and Mrs. Bottle." We have seen through thirty years a dress parade of ghosts belonging to Henry Arthur Jones and A. W. Pinero and we have even, thank God, survived to slobber over Bernard Shaw, the only real humanist of them all. How he must laugh!

Something Different.

Now comes the A.D.C. to present to us "Nine Till Six," something quite different—something of real life. No slapstick farce, but the simple tale of a soulless business—the veneer of the semi-erudite saleslady—the vague bohemianism of the basement changing-room—the petty jealousies of the very petty but very lovable nitwits who pose as mannequins before equally brainless but more fortunately-circumstanced patrons.

It is all there. All the humanities, some of the frailties and most of the silken underwear—and because most of us are human, because some of us are frail and because all of us wear flannel next to our skin we may confidently predict a full house at King's Theatre on the opening night 14th. March and for two succeeding nights thereafter.

A NEW ARRIVAL

MARANOA ARRIVES FROM AUSTRALIA

The s.s. Maranoa, which arrived yesterday from Australia, is the first of a number of vessels chartered by Australian shipping firms to carry a large consignment of cargo to China. Incidentally, it also happens to be her first visit to Hongkong. Her local agents are Mackinnon MacKenzie & Company, Ltd.

The Maranoa was formerly the Eromanga. She is a steel screw vessel, and was built by the Government Dockyard, Newcastle, N.S.W., for the Australasian United Steamship Company. Her port of registry is Melbourne. She measures 331.0 feet in length, 47.0 feet in breadth and 23.5 feet in depth.

The other Australian ships placed permanently on the cargo service to China and Japan are the Tarcoola, Barunga and the well-known passenger vessel the Moeraki.

The Maranoa sails at 10 a.m. to-day for Shanghai.

AIRCRAFT ABOLITION.

BRITAIN PREPARED FOR UNIVERSAL ACCEPTANCE

Geneva, Feb. 20.

"Britain is prepared to subscribe to a universal acceptance of the abolition of naval and military aircraft and airbombs, except for police purposes," said the British Air Minister, Lord Londonderry addressing the Air Commission of the Disarmament Conference.

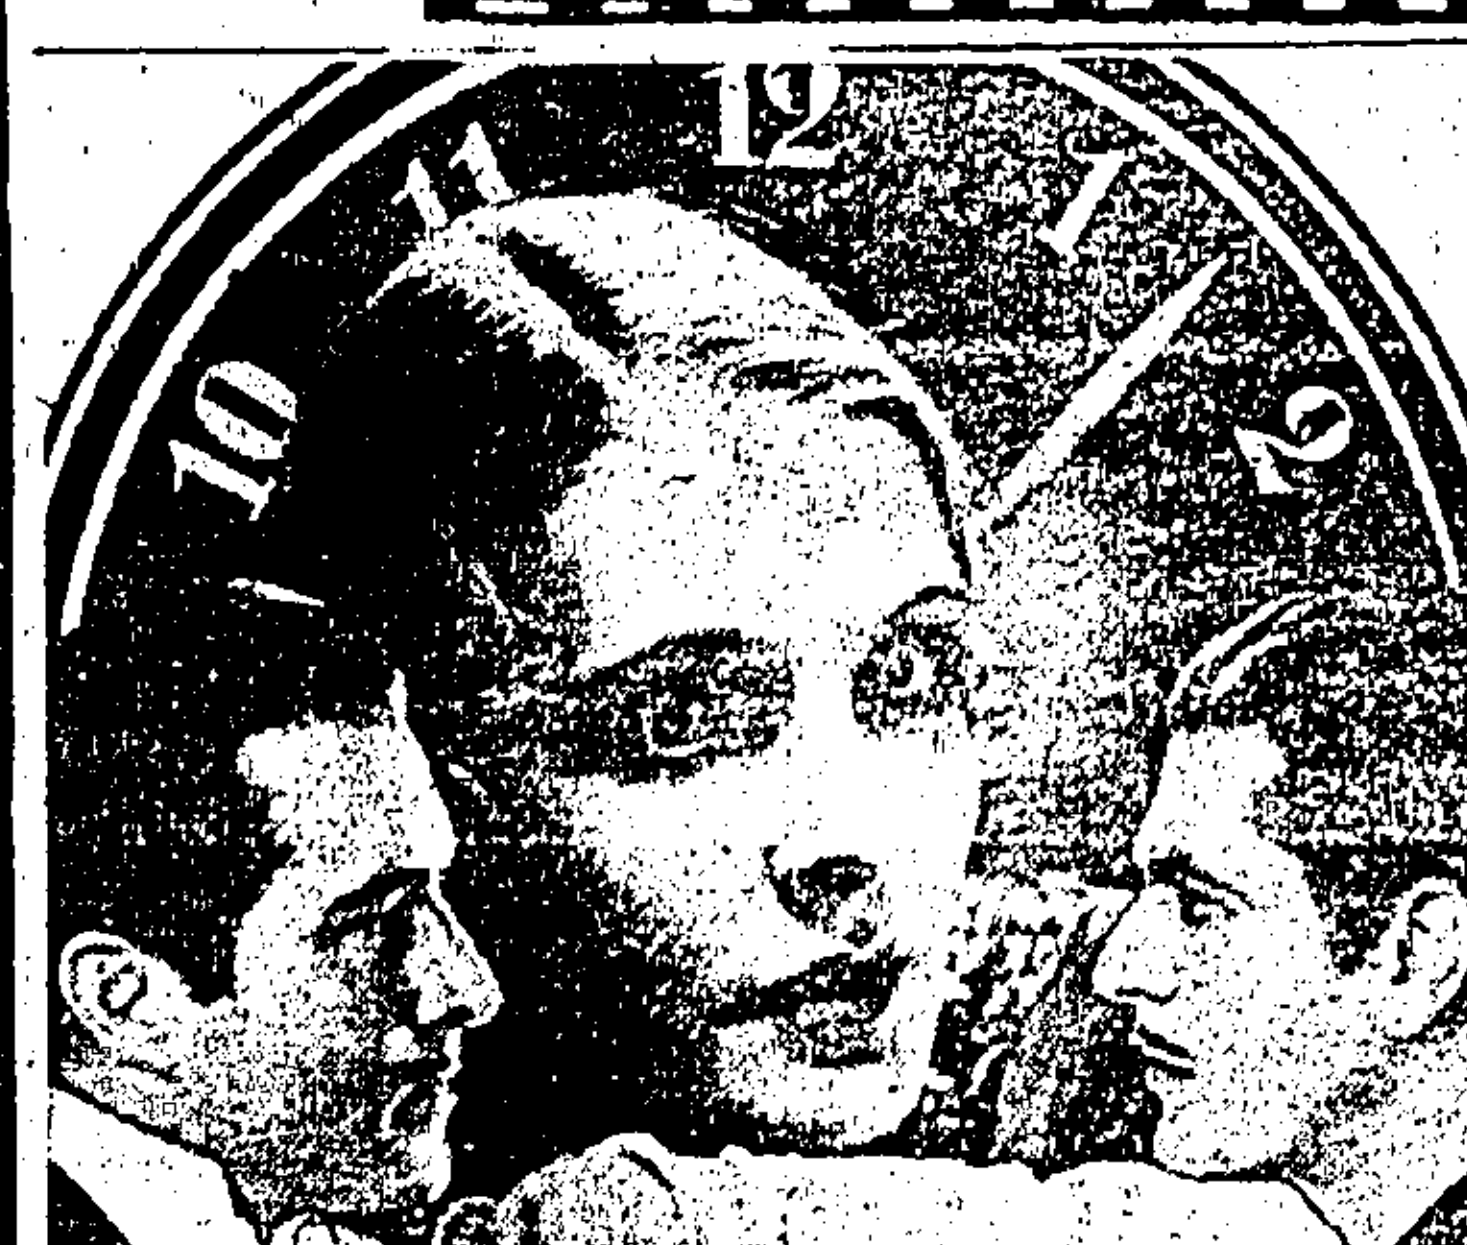

Lord Londonderry emphasised the proviso that an effective scheme for international control of civil aviation could be devised to preclude the misuse of civil aircraft for military purposes.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

HINT OF HAVANA IN THE RHUMBA

By Arthur Murray.

New York, Dec.—The New Year sees the Rhumba growing very popular. The Rhumba is a native Cuban dance.

In Cuba there are three Rhumbas and none of them is permitted on floors of social ballrooms.

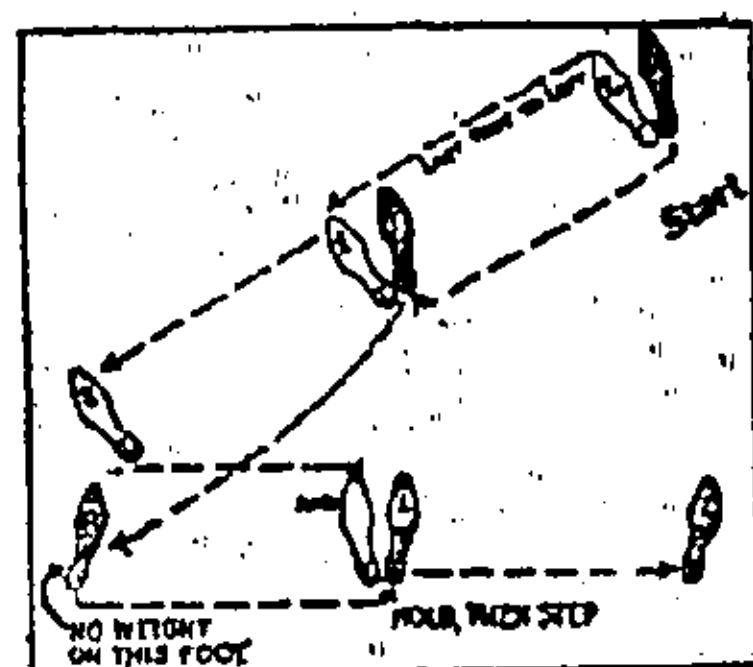

However, the American version of the Rhumba has been considerably modified. It is an exuberant dance, full of syncopated rhythm.

To learn the Rhumba you must practice carefully, to music. Lay this diagram on a chair and start. The characteristics of it are crossing of feet, a long side step, rocking and then stepping on the same foot.

1. The man starts with a long side step, with his left foot, as in an ordinary two-step. Take a step with the left foot, "AND" draw up right foot.

2. Step with left foot to left, weight on left, with the right foot slightly raised from the floor. Hold this for a beat then.

3. Lightly place the raised right foot, holding weight on left, shift weight quickly, leaving no weight on this right foot but transferring it to the left which you bring quickly over to place indicated on lower line of diagram.

4. Sway lightly with right foot brought to place beside the left and then quickly step far to the right with the right foot.

The lady's part is the same as the man's, only she uses the right when he uses left and vice versa.

Dance to "Capullito de Alal" or "The Peanut Vendor."

Madeira Cake

Quarter of a pound flour, 1 teaspoonful baking powder, 2½ oz. of butter, 2½ oz. of sugar, 2 eggs. Beat butter and sugar to a cream, add the flour (mixed with the baking powder), and then stir in the beaten eggs, adding a few drops of any flavouring. Bake for an hour and a half.

Minna Gombell, Fox Film Star, with her favourite terrier.

NOTES FROM PARIS.

Wet Weather Wear.

Waxed satin is much used for raincoats, and the vogue is for white waxed satin. I really believe that those who made these coats never for a moment thought of the usual accompaniment of rain-mud, for the effect of mud on that glossy whiteness would be simply disastrous.

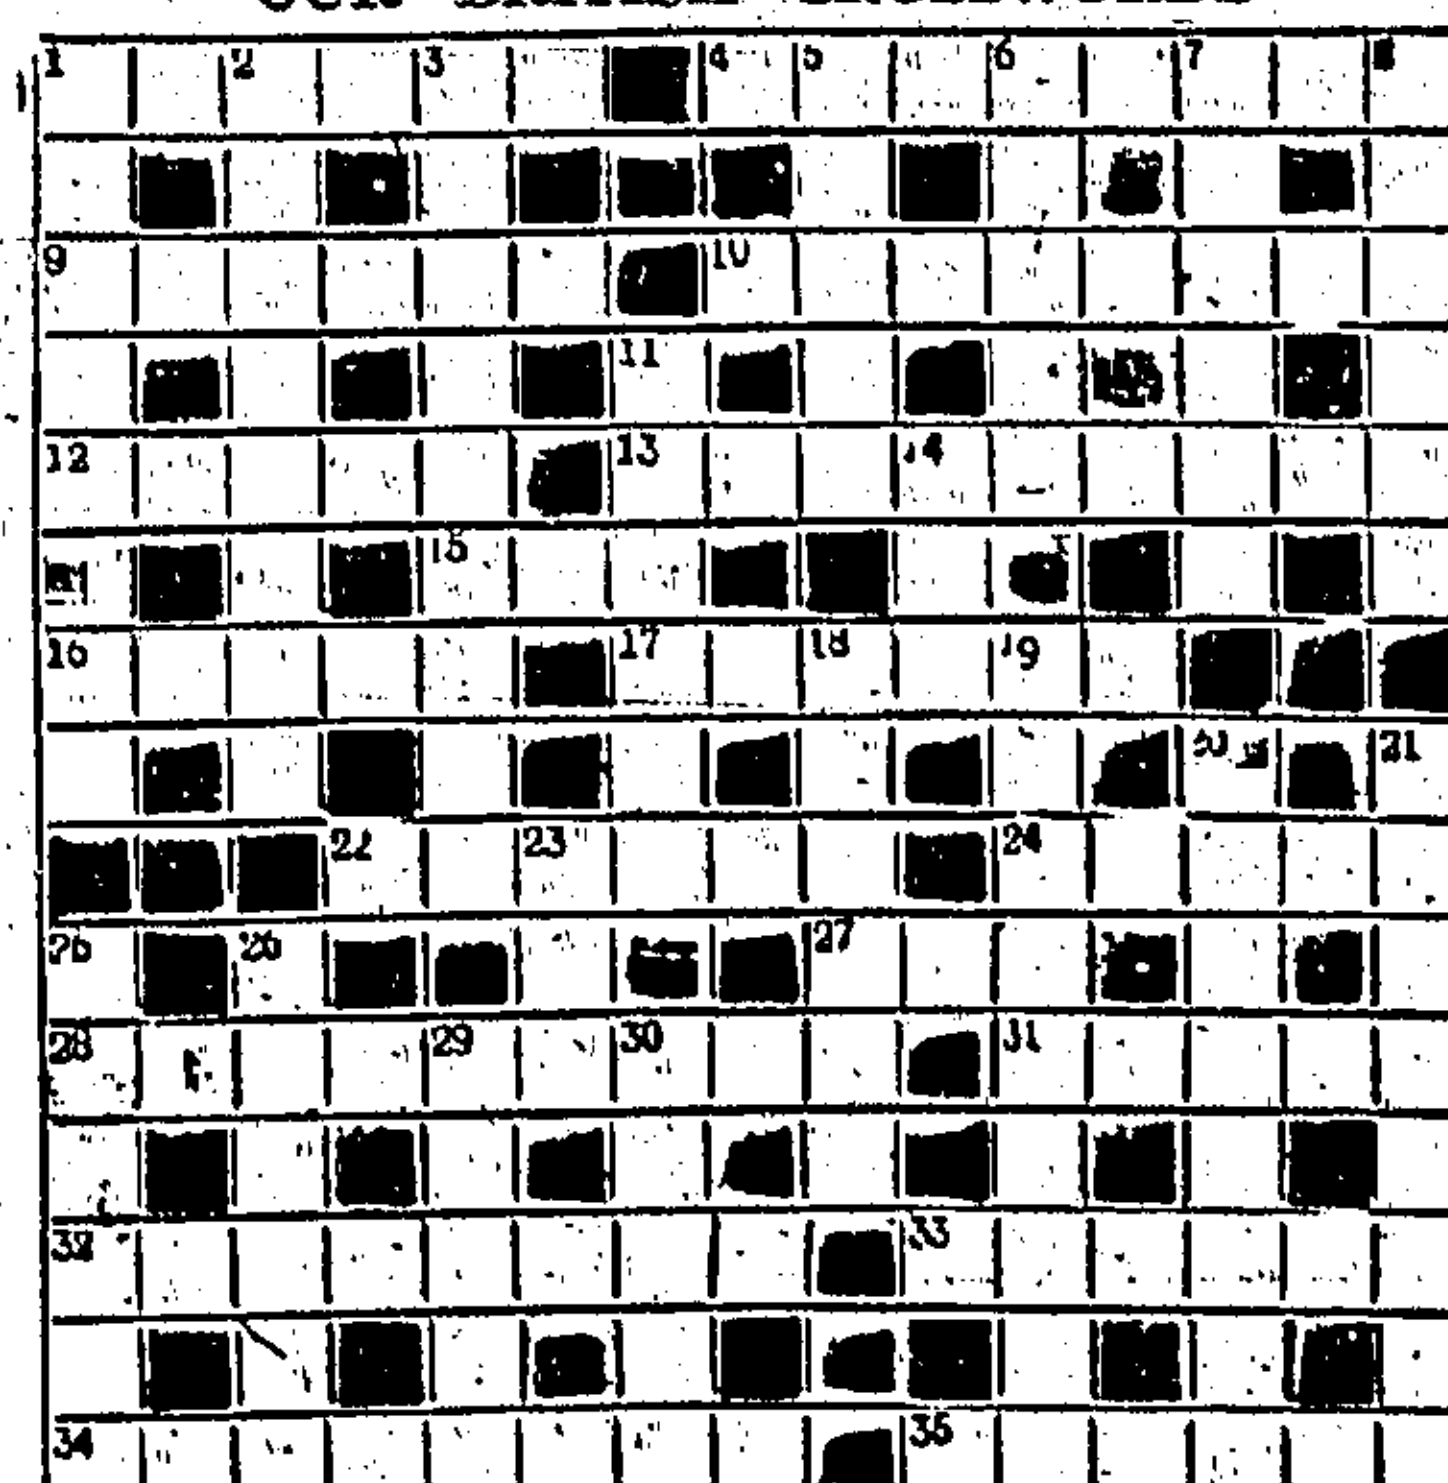

It is wiser to choose—if not black waxed satin—navy blue, or even dark cafe-au-lait, which is the colour of dry mud. Leather or oil-skin cloths are more useful for raincoats, but they are much less elegant, and so are used almost exclusively for motorcycling.

Duvetyn sometimes imitates leather or doeskin, and is often preferred to these materials. Soft "natty" materials such as bure are also much in use, as it must needs be a very heavy rain indeed to penetrate them.

Leather Coats

The little short, separate coats, which are so warm, yet light in weight, are very fashionable. These jackets are very strict, almost narrow in line. They are to be seen in suede, dyed in every colour of the rainbow, costly-lined with fur. Only recently I noted one of these funny little jackets in jade green suede, collared and padded with mink, and it topped a jade green velvet skirt, a little jade suede toque, well crushed over the brows, giving a final finishing touch to one of the smartest get-ups I have ever seen.

SPOTLIGHT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

SHEILA SHAYNE, 18, whose parents were well-known vaudeville actors, is in New York looking for a job. Sheila is a dancer. In spite of the fact that she has spent almost her entire life on the stage her ambition is to marry and have a home like those she has seen in small towns in which she has played.

On a few hours' notice she is hired to take the place of DAISY GLEASON, another dancer, who has sprained an ankle. Sheila goes to JOE PARIS' office in "Tin Pan Alley" to rehearse. There she meets THEYON LANE and DICK STANLEY, both rich. Lane asks Sheila to dance at a party after a day of rehearsing and the performance that night she will be too tired.

She goes to the theatre and there meets PHIL SHORT, an old acquaintance.

CHAPTER VII

Sheila was glad to see someone she knew—even an old sweetheart like Phil Short. A sweetheart who, as a matter of fact, had dropped her suddenly without warning. Why had Phil stopped coming to see her? Why had he stopped telephoning? Sheila had never known.

As she nonchalantly as though nothing had happened, as though he had seen her only a few days before, Phil stood there. Well, nothing had happened, really. After what the most caustic observer would have called a rush Phil had simply disappeared.

Perhaps he had had a bad year, though now he seemed prosperous. Saxophonists are well paid even in off-seasons. And Phil himself had once pointed out that it isn't what an actor earns but what he saves that counts. Living had become cheaper.

In spite of the hearty greeting and the nonchalant manner, Sheila saw almost at once that Phil wore a harassed look. Even with an old score to pay off, she felt sorry for him.

"So you're taking Daisy's place?" he was saying. "That's fine, Sheila. I've often wondered what you were doing."

"Wasn't the telephone working down your way?" she asked, half vexed, half laughing.

"I—I couldn't call you," Phil began. Plainly he was embarrassed. "But that doesn't mean I didn't think about you."

"Well, thoughts keep a person warm in the winter," was her response, the caustic phrase borrowed from Ma Lowell. Then Sheila relented.

"Of course I'll have dinner with you. We can't be long, though."

"There's a little place near," Phil explained.

During the dinner he explained other things. Upon leaving Mr Lowell's rooming house, said

Phil, he had married. Yes, married. His face clouded a trifle as he said the word, and it was evident that the marriage was not, for some reason, a happy one. He was vague about it. The girl's name was Mildred. She came from his home town—somewhere near Des Moines.

Just now, with conditions as they were, Mildred was living with Phil's parents. Sheila gathered that the daughter-in-law—strangely enough—had a more desirable place in the hearts of the Short family than did the son. "The folks think the world and all of 'Milly,'" was the way Phil put it.

The dinner was excellent, though hurried. Sheila ordered lightly, as Phil did also, for both had the performance to think of. The act would go on in three-quarters of an hour.

The young man was friendly, agreeable. It was nice to see Phil again. In show business one couldn't always account for sudden departures, failures to explain, omitted farewells. By the time she reached the dressing room Sheila felt rather friendly toward her old admirer and a little sorry for Mildred. Though his attitude toward Sheila had been above reproach, there was no denying the fact that Phil was a flirt.

Back in the dressing room the "arty dancers," as Lottie, had somewhat scornfully dubbed them, had returned from their scarfs energetic posing. Their scarfs trailing, their classic robes in pastel shades tossed about in confusion. They talked a great deal, completely ignoring the others.

The art dancers, billed as the "Classic Nine," were not regular troupers. That is, they were not regularly booked, but instead were trying out a new number. It was soon clear that all of them were down on their luck, stretching every penny as far as it would possibly go.

Lottie confided to Sheila, busy with her cosmetic pan, that the only good number in the "Classic Nine's" act was a scarf dance done by the two little blondes. Lottie was a blonde too, but there was a difference. The two youthful dancers had honey-coloured hair which obviously grew that way without benefit of art or decoration.

However, Lottie might feel, Sheila soon was aware that these girls were not trying to appear superior. They were not cheap. Sheila would have told you, the shabby little street suits which they were busily donning were well cut and reminded Sheila of the clothes worn by the smartest "Follies" girls. Dark, plain, unostentatious and expensive. Not fluffy or loud as so many chorus girls' costumes. Their hats were just hats—difficult to describe but suave and sure of themselves.

H.W. CORLEY
©1933

Sheila worked on at the dressing table. Lottie's specialty came first and then Sheila's, with a wait between while the band, elegant in evening clothes, performed.

Her hair would do, though she was sorry there had not been time for a shampoo and wave. Now that the exchequer was about to be replenished, Sheila could afford that.

She lighted the tiny lamp, melted the cosmetic in the little "frying pan" and beaded her lashes carefully. Darkened her lids with blue make-up, crimsoned her lips with generous strokes, dabbed rouge high on her cheek bones. Close at hand she looked grotesque, anything but intriguing. But beyond the footlights the patches of colour would be subdued to a natural flush, a hazy, oveliness, glowing and sparkling with health.

Next came her hose, carefully smoothed on, and her dancing slippers. A silken slip and then Daisy's frilled gown, tight at the waist and billowing to her knees. If it had been fitted to Sheila it could not have been more suitable. She would wear it for the first number. Lottie, rather grand and aloof in a tiara and swooping blue satin, watched as Sheila promenaded across the dressing room.

"I'd take this other dress up a little more on the side," Miss Killcoyne suggested, turning from inspection of her own huge pink hair ribbon. Lottie agreed, catching needle and thread from her overnight bag.

Sheila shuffled a few steps, winced, smiled, tapped energetically, warming up. The band was playing the first number. Lottie, clearing her throat, caught up a chiffon handkerchief the size of a lunch cloth and left hurriedly for the wings. The art dancers, still in their street clothes, re-appearing two by two from dinner, eyed Sheila curiously and, had she but known it, enviously.

"Nervous?" one of the honey-

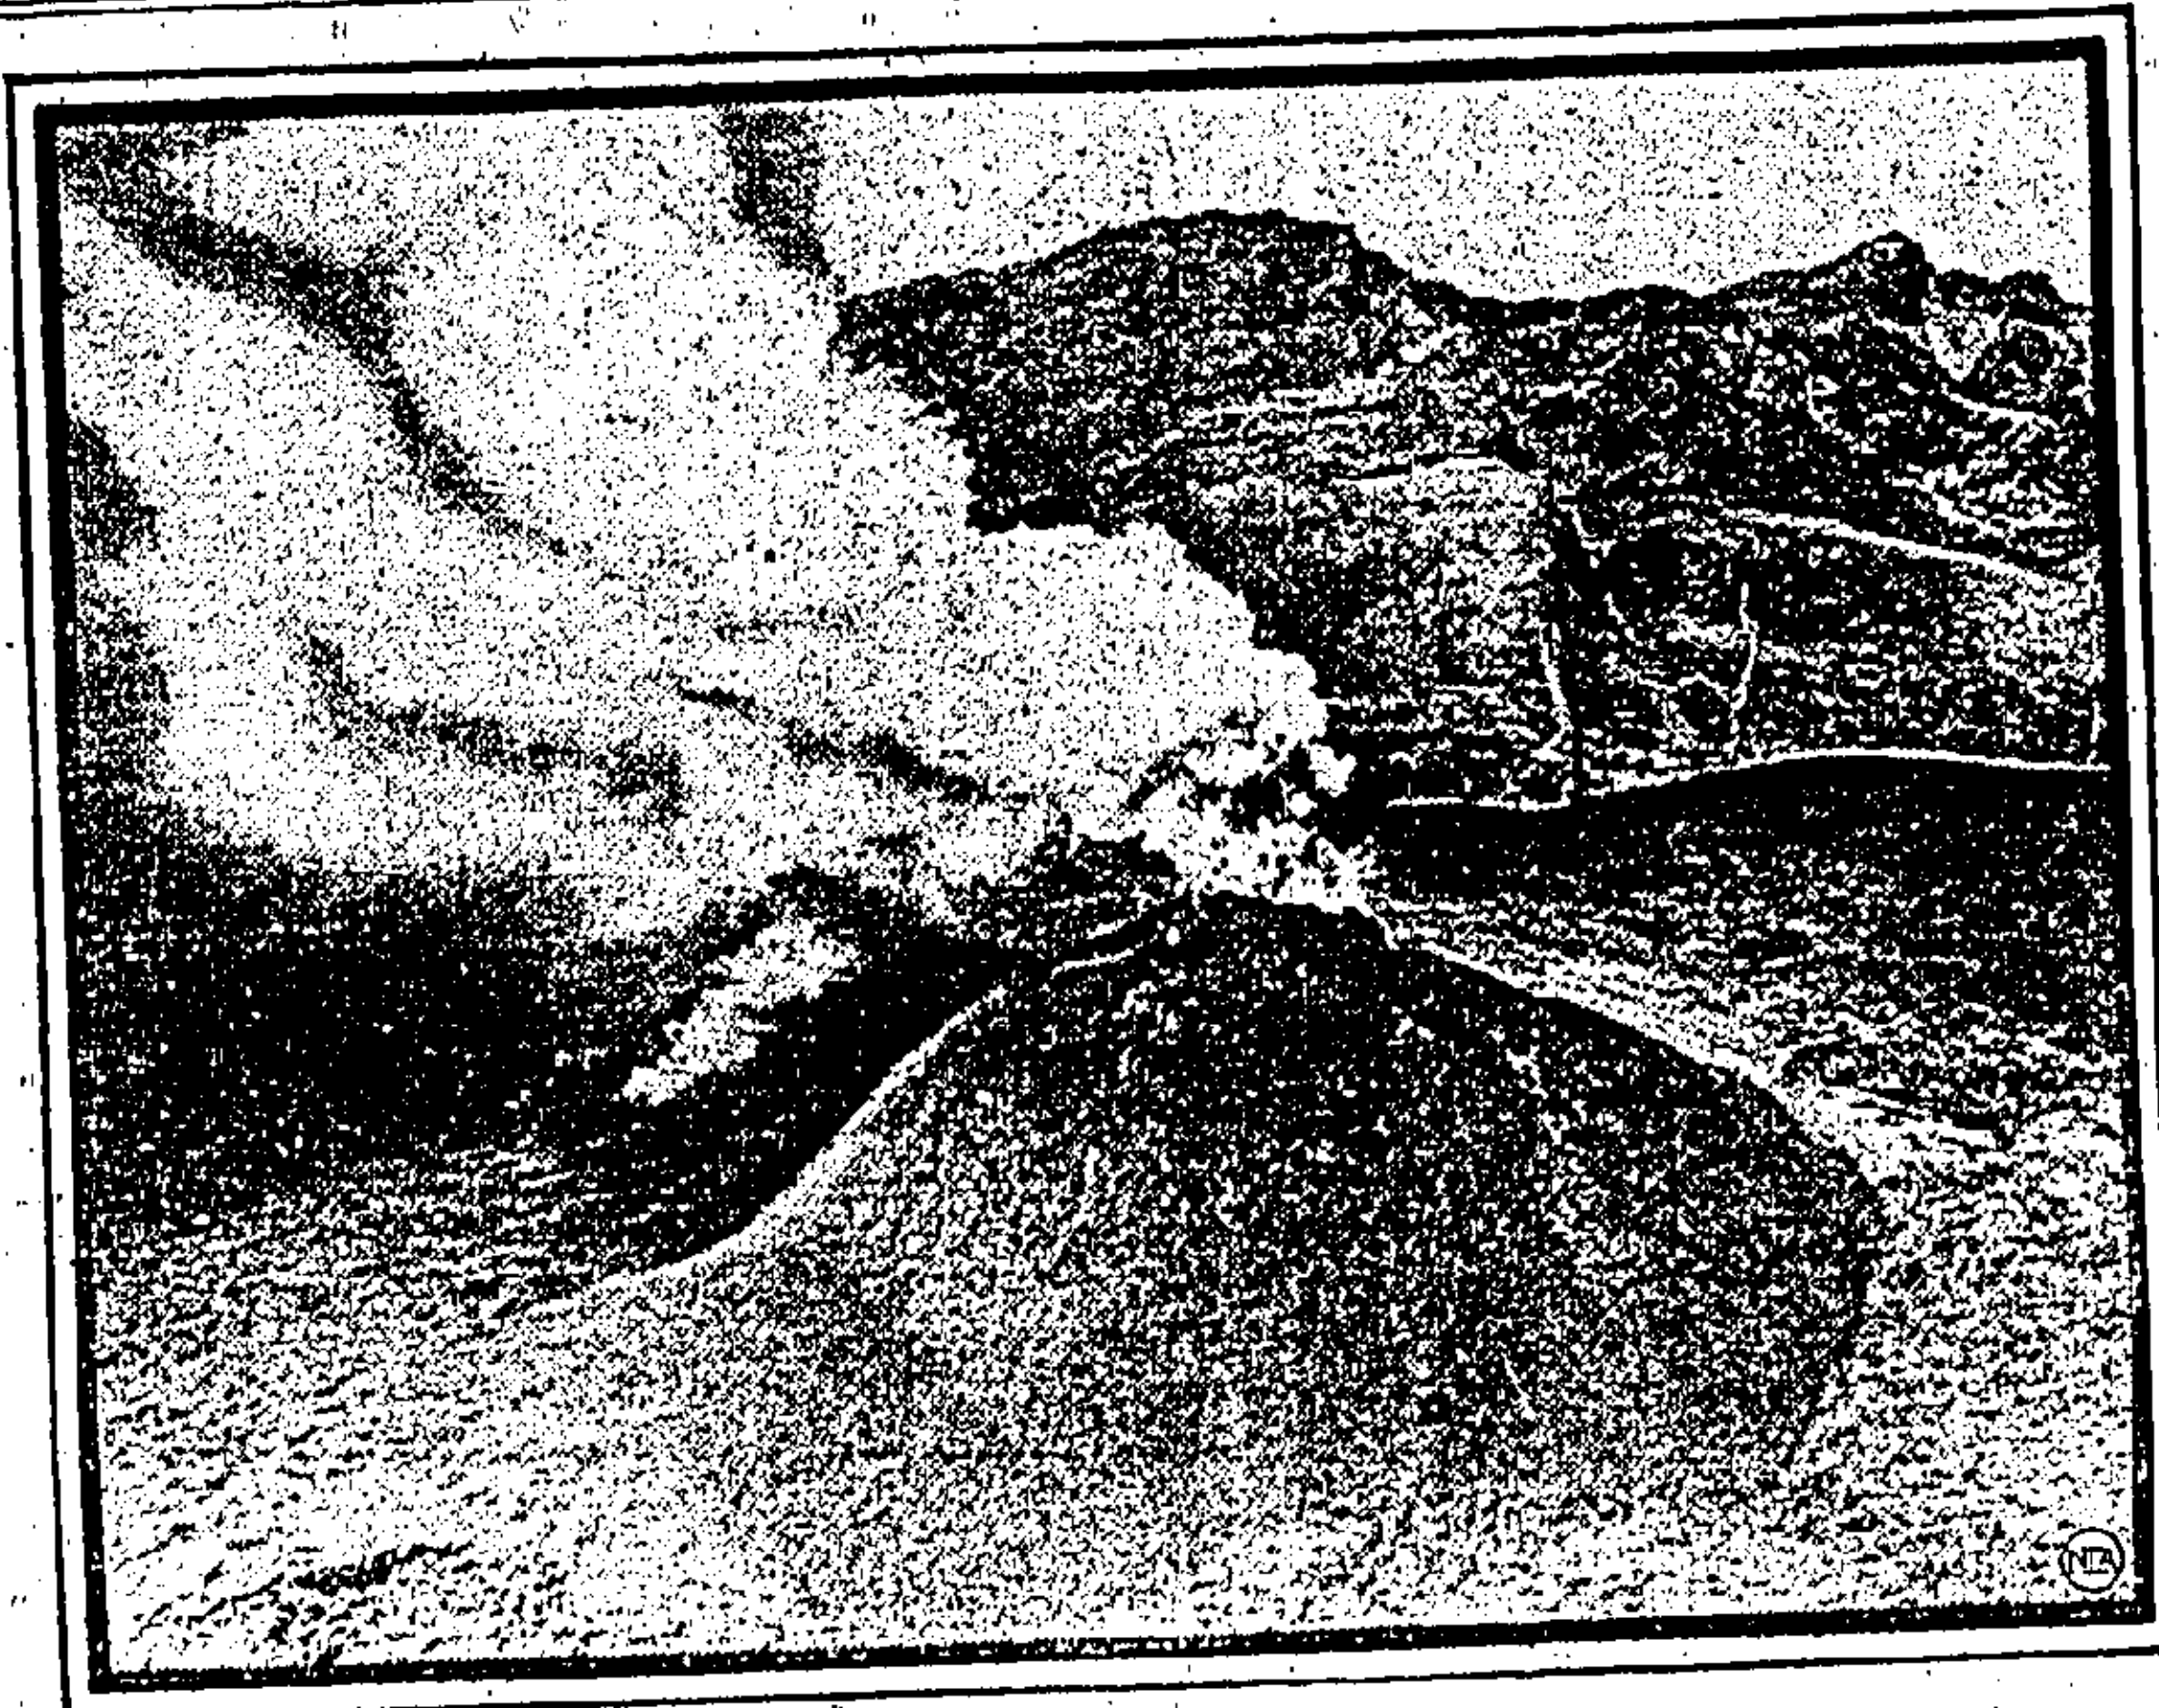

coloured blondes asked, smiling. Sheila smiled, too, and shrugged. Of course she was nervous! But it was like the excited nervousness of a circus horse sniffing sawdust after a long vacation. Soon she would be out there in the glare of the footlights. Phil, Roscoe and the rest would be behind her. An audience, hostile or friendly, in front. A sea of faces swimming across her vision!

The orchestra was bringing Lottie's number to a close, with a blare. Applause, not voluminous but encouraging. There, Lottie was taking a bow. And another! That was a mistake—forcing the bows that way. Sheila liked to be hustled back to the stage, hand in hand with the band leader, bowing shyly, backing out before the audience was willing to relinquish her. But to force applause was bad business. Presently the clapping became milder, merely a polite patter.

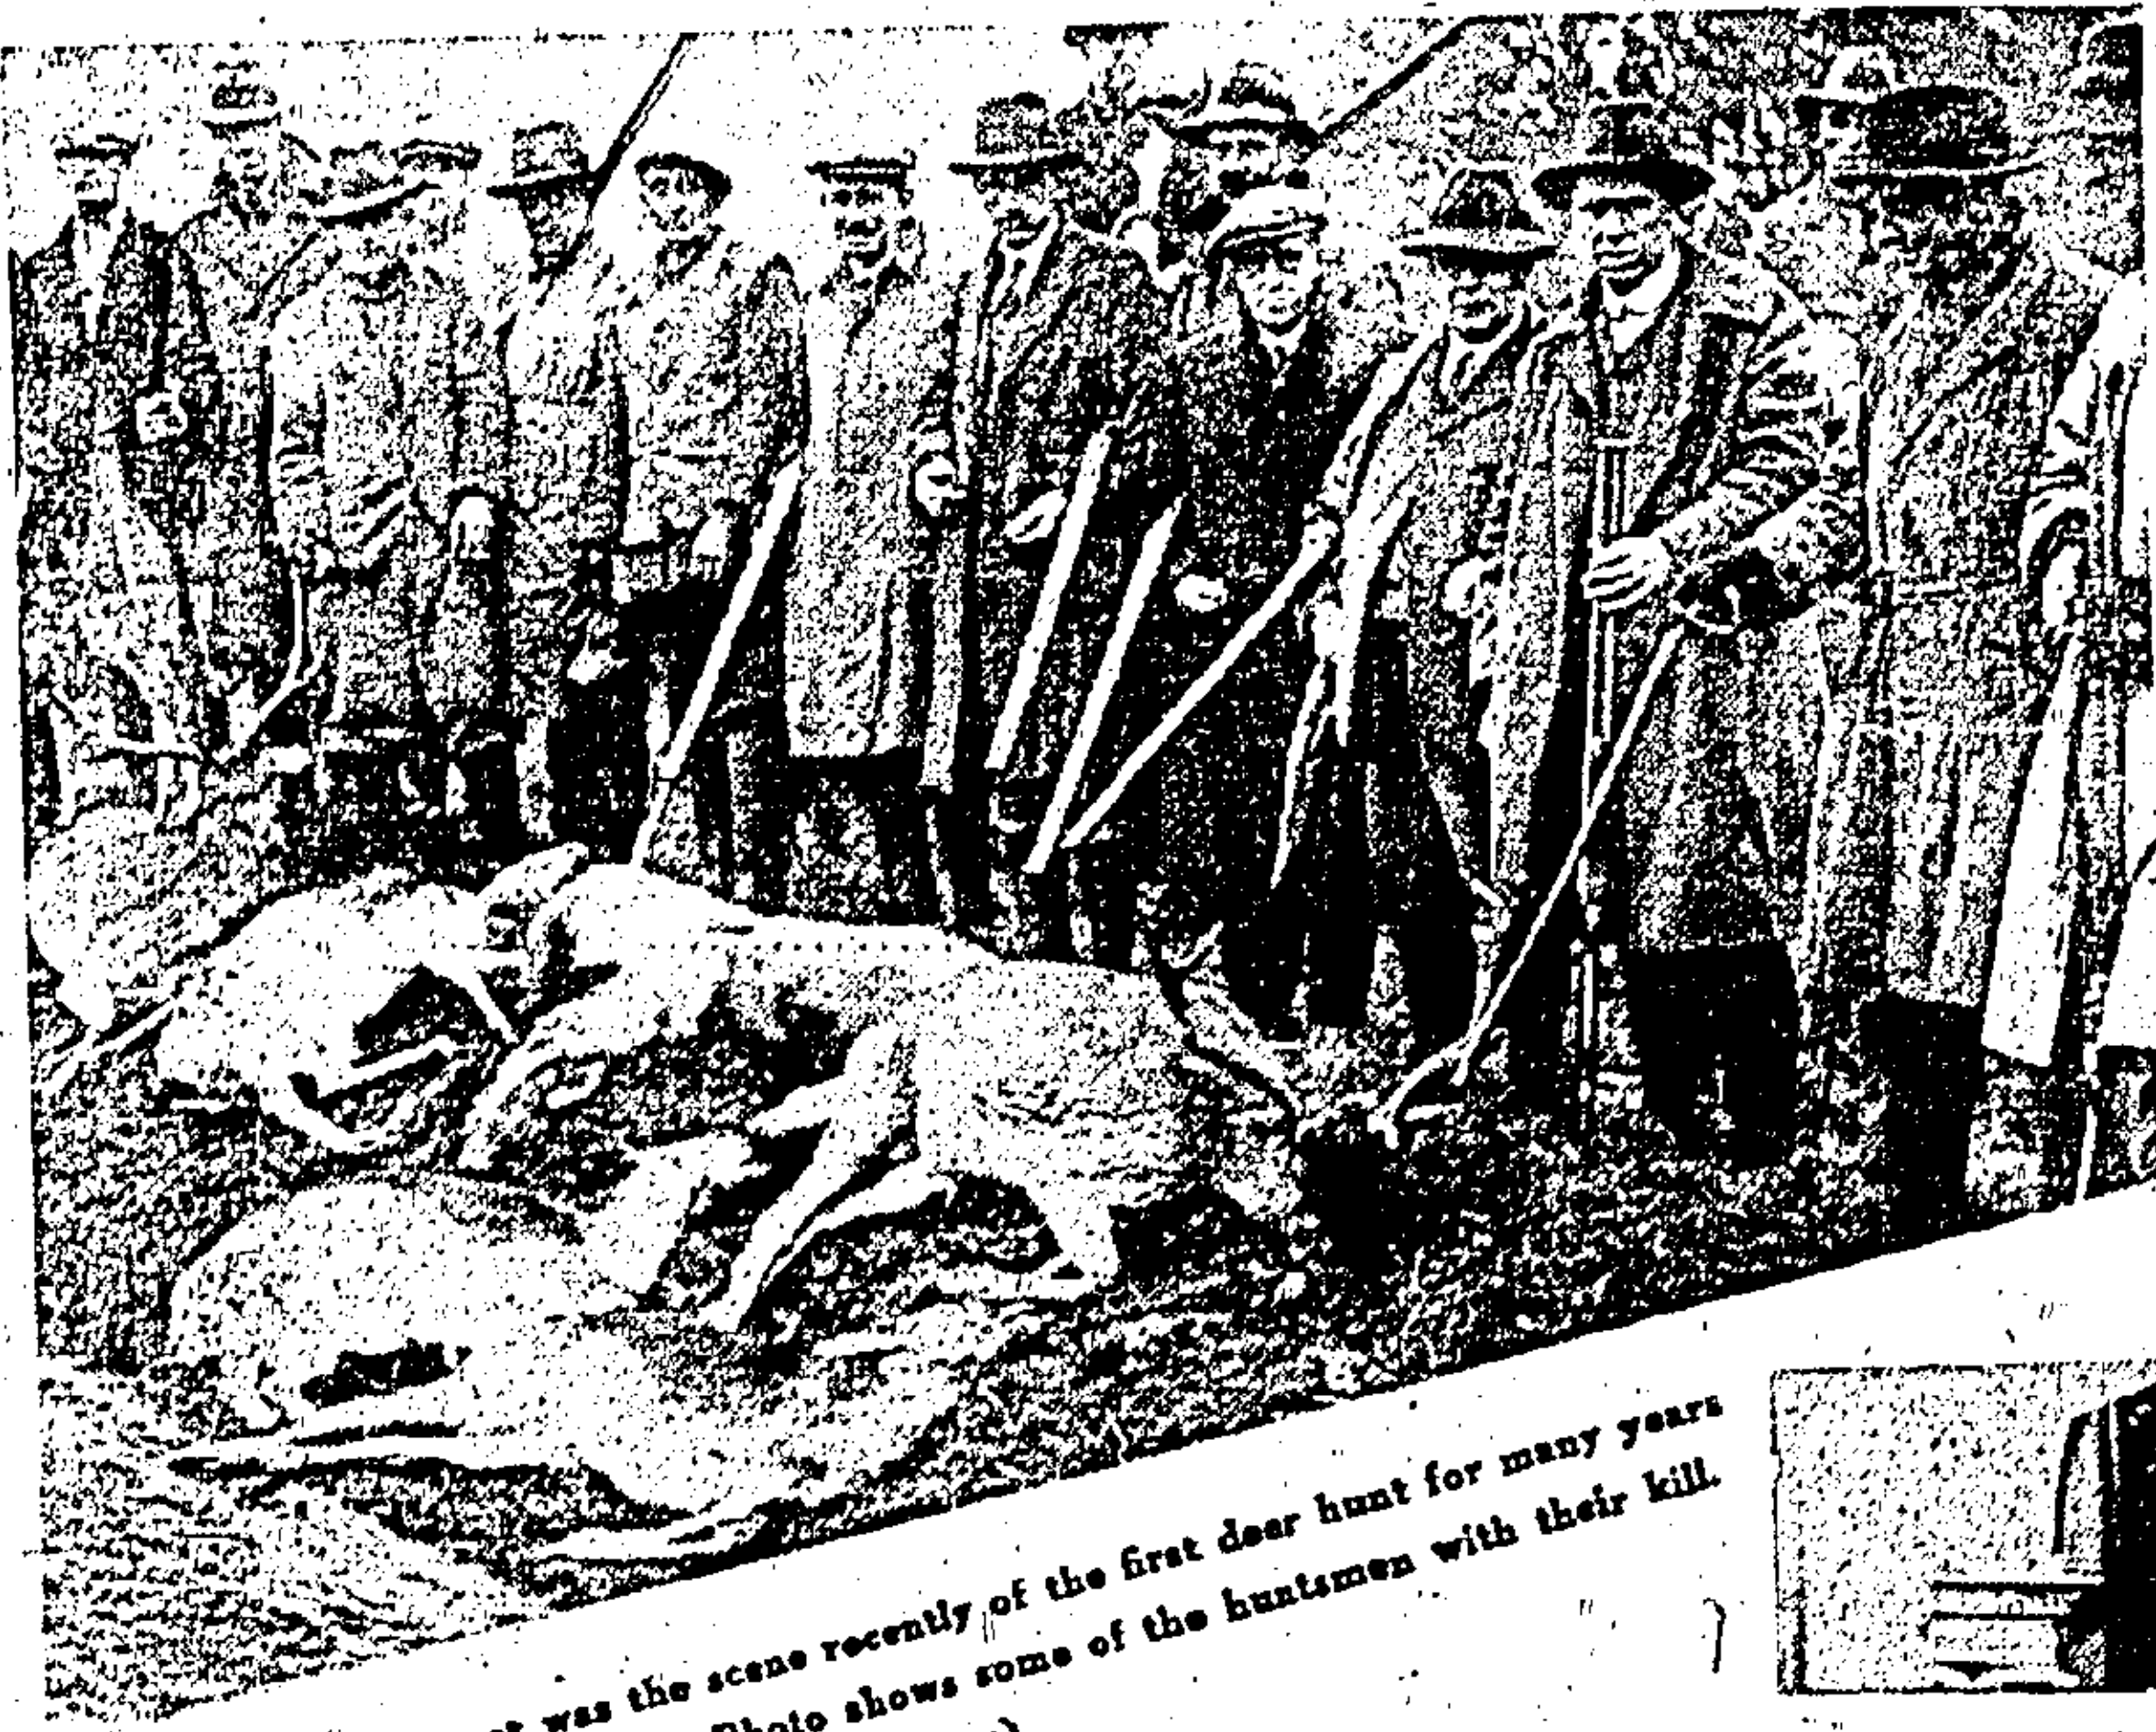

Sheila stood in the wings. Roscoe waved his baton, Phil nodded and the band crashed into melody. Two bars. Three bars. How did it go? Oh—this way! Sheila ran on. Now she was dancing! Dancing to a full house, too.

Tum-ti-tum, ti-tum. "Don't fake that last turn, there, baby!" She could still hear Bill Brady's admonishing tone, still hear his "ta-la, ta-la!" Sheila didn't fake last eighteen months, appears to be that of the authors of the Jameson Raid in South Africa in 1895.

The political thought of Europe, said Lord Lytton, has changed in the last decade almost as much as the change which took place in Japan between 1860 and 1900. International relationships were now governed by the League Covenant and the Kellogg Pact, and it was no longer possible for any country to be the sole arbiter of the action it might take in pursuit of national interests.

CHINA'S MANPOWER.

The General Staff of every country was necessarily subject to-day not merely to the control of its national Government, but to the obligations of these national instruments.

"That fact," said Lord Lytton, "appears to have been insufficiently appreciated by Japan, and failure to appreciate it has produced the present Far Eastern crisis."

Referring to China, Lord Lytton said the immediately urgent questions were how China could be helped and how soon a strong Central Government could be established.

He was most impressed by the colossal manpower of China, the future of which seemed to be wrapped up in the questions of how, when and by whom this splendid manpower could be given the unifying force of national consciousness.

"Geneva or Moscow? The shadow of that great question is cast over the East and West. At present, China has chosen Geneva, but if Japan persists in her present policy and Geneva fails, the choice may be, however reluctantly, reversed."

JAPAN'S FEARS.

Continuing, Lord Lytton said Japan feared the spread to Korea of Russian Communism, and saw with anxiety the rising tide of Chinese Communism from the South. Nanking could have welcomed her help in resisting both, but instead, Japan had chosen to interpose forcibly a buffer State of her own creation—Manchuria—which cannot but increase the very danger against which it was meant to guard.

"When I use the word 'Japan,'" said Lord Lytton, "I must not be misunderstood. The Japanese people have always been sincere and enthusiastic in support of the League of Nations, but the Japanese General Staff, which momentarily controls the Government of Japan, believes it can successfully defy both Moscow and Geneva. That road can never lead to peace."—Reuter.

HONGKONG BUILT.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER PAYS CALL TO BRITHPLACE

The Norwegian Steamer Hektor which arrived here yesterday was built in Hongkong, having been launched from Kowloon dock in 1921. She went into commission on March 24, 1921, leaving here for Fremantle to load a cargo of wheat for Europe. Since that date she has only made one other call at this port; that was in February 1922, when she called for bunkers. She was engaged in the Marseilles-New York service, owing to sickness of trade she was laid up at Hamburg. Recommissioned last January, she loaded a cargo of 7,500 tons at Hamburg, and Antwerp, the major portion of which is some 6,000 tons of iron and steel for Japan.

Japan's Purchases.

Japan has shown much activity lately in the purchase of iron and steel from other countries. Several large shipments of scrap iron have been reported from the U. S. A., Australia, and New Zealand. In addition, large consignments of milled iron and ingots for manufacturing purposes, have been coming from European ports.

A NEW ARRIVAL.

MARANOA ARRIVES FROM AUSTRALIA

The s.s. Maranoa, which arrived yesterday from Australia, is the first of a number of vessels chartered by Australian shipping firms to carry a large consignment of cargo to China. Incidentally, it also happens to be her first visit to Hongkong. Her local agents are Mackinnon MacKenzie & Company, Ltd.

The Maranoa was formerly the Eromanga. She is a steel screw vessel, and was built by the Government Dockyard, Newcastle, N.S.W., for the Australasian United Steamship Company. Her port of registry is Melbourne. She measures 331.0 feet in length, 47.9 feet in breadth and 23.5 feet in depth.

The other Australian ships placed permanently on the cargo service to China and Japan are the Tarcoola, Barunga and the well-known passenger vessel the Mocraki.

The Maranoa sails at 10 a.m. to-day for Shanghai.

THE SOCIAL SERVICES

A timely and influentially signed manifesto, recently issued, draws public attention to the danger of "economy" attacks on Local Government and the social services. Among the signatories to the manifesto were Sir Josiah Stamp, Sir Arthur Salter, Mr. H. G. Wells, Dr. Scott Lidgett, Dr. A. D. Lindsay, Sir Oliver Lodge, Dr. Cyril Norwood, Mr. H. A. L. Fisher, Dr. Ernest Barker, Col. John Buchan, and other well-known and representative people. The manifesto points out that "any serious retrogression from the standards so laboriously erected would have consequences of a disastrous kind". Some of those disastrous consequences are indicated:—"They might well impair for a generation the discovery of that ability so essential to national leadership. They might easily lead to those social conditions of which the fruit is seen in high incidence of infantile mortality, bad conditions of housing (with their inevitable consequence of a low standard of public health), a wide indignation at the denial of equal opportunity which makes so seriously for the division between classes." The manifesto declares that "no diminutions in expenditure are justified if, as these may well do, they seem likely over a period to injure the mental and physical power of the present generation to cope with the grave problems by which it is confronted." The fact that a body of public men representative of all parties and religious denominations and including leading educationalists, medical doctors, social workers and economists, should feel it necessary to issue such a manifesto is in itself an indication of the strength of feeling on the subject. The "economy" policy of the Government has already resulted in decreased expenditure on education and the general slowing down of the progressive development of the elementary educational system outlined in the Hadow Report. The abolition of free secondary education and the raising of fees, together with the imposition of a means test for the parents of clever children, will deal another blow at the "standards so laboriously erected" by previous Governments. The purpose of the manifesto is to create a public opinion that will resist unjustified attacks on the social services. It is to be hoped that the Government will give more consideration to the views expressed in the manifesto than has hitherto been given to the same views expressed in other quarters.

The Philippines

The United States appears to have abandoned the high moral purpose of helping the Filipinos to achieve real independence grounded on economic and political stability. Instead it is offering them autonomy with one hand and snatching from them with the other the economic supports needed to make autonomy secure. For it is free trade with the United States which largely bases the Filipinos' economic well-being. And that economic strength undergirds political, social and educational development of the islands. A gift which loses much of its value as soon as it is accepted is a shabby gift. Especially when the giving is expected to enrich the giver at the expense of the recipient. Because of the opposition in the Legislature, the Filipino mission is expected to seek to have the question of acceptance put before a special convention. The next steps would be the election of a constitutional convention and submission of its work to the President of the United States and to a referendum in the Philippines. Upon approval a probationary autonomous government would be established in the islands. Washington would be represented in Manila by a High Commissioner having only minor powers such as free access to governmental records and the right to report to the President any failure of the Filipino Government to fulfill its obligations. Indeed, the United States would retain responsibility for the islands without any real authority. This fact, coupled with the retention of military bases, might lead to grave dangers in the present unsettled state of the Far East. During the first five years of the probationary period exports of sugar, coconut oil and cordage to the United States would be limited and during the second five years they would be taxed at American tariff rates to pay Filipino debts. At the end of ten years, if all conditions have been fulfilled the President would surrender all sovereignty of the United States and proclaim an independent Filipino nation. But while not proclaimed, the full freedom of American producers to bar out Filipino products by tariffs would be established at the same time. And they would have been enjoying some measure of freedom from Filipino competition for ten years already. That is the freedom which puts a taint on this gift and may cause its rejection.

Pelicanocracy

The pelicans are said to be interested in technocracy. The machine age has brought them such a large measure of benefit that they have become thoroughly converted to the proposition of a little labor and a lot of luxury. The pelican is a wise old bird. As the holder of patents for the first known practical cold storage system it has led all other birds in the promotion of labour-saving devices. No bird has developed greater facilities for gathering and storing its food. And it has not been unmindful of the value of the inventions of man. Hence its interest in the cause of technocracy at a time when the economic situation has served somewhat to restrict its easy sources of food supply. In early days, the pelican employed such crude methods as diving for the fish which formed its chief source of food supply. And then, at various points, great fish canneries got into operation and ejected sufficient waste product to provide an easy living for vast colonies of pelicans. Pelican youth grew up in an atmosphere of indulgence. The next meal meant only a short and pleasant flight to the nearest cannery. The machine age had removed the days of drudgery when their parents dived and ducked ten hours or more a day for a bit of herring and often went to bed hungry. But now many canneries have been closed by economic conditions and the younger pelicans, untrained in the pursuits of their forefathers, are blaming the government for a shortage of food. Hence their return to technocracy with the hope that all the cans in the cannery can come to the aid of the pelican.

ARISTOCRATS OF MOSCOW

By R. T. CHOLERTON

The various phases of the Russian Revolution have left their mark on the population of Moscow and on its institutions, so that newspaper articles and plays and even street crowds seem sometimes to contain in themselves the whole history of the last fifteen years. Faintest, scarcely to be discerned now, are the traces of the pre-Revolutionary revolutionaries of the men and women who lived in exile, and who dressed eccentrically, and who spent their time discussing, and often quarrelling over, the precise importance of this or that article in their faith and its application; of the intellectual-Bohemian-Anarchist revolutionaries who flocked back to Russia from their favourite cafes in Paris and Geneva and Vienna when they got news of the fall of the Tsarist Government.

"OLD TIMERS" OF REVOLT

The luckiest of these veterans have been able to return to their cafes, and enjoy a small but adequate competence as not very active agents of the Comintern; some of them have disappeared into the wastes of Siberia; the rest have either died and been accorded a State funeral, or hold minor administrative posts and dream of the good old days when revolution was in the making and not made. Most of their ideas have long ago been condemned as "petit-bourgeois" or as deviations of one sort or another from the "party line," and they enjoy the sort of esteem and consideration that this accorded in England to, say, gentlemen in reduced circumstances. Even so, for instance, the theoretical basis of Soviet marriage law, and—though here markedly dwindling—in Soviet educational theory, "Free love" and "free discipline" to this day flavour very faintly the Marx-Lenin-Stalin gospel and connect the Dictatorship of the Proletariat with co-education and hand-weaving and vegetarianism and the "simple life" with model colonies in the Cotswolds and New England.

THE PROLETARIAN MAN

Another element in Soviet society reminiscent of the more respectable, or at least more traditional, forms of revolutionary activity is what might have been called in Victorian England the Movement for Cultural Improvement. Amongst Working Men. The big "realists," our Union boss types, have long ago moved into the Kremlin, and their runners-up have become the new "State Bourgeoisie" and may in time, if things go well, become the new aristocracy. Here and there, however, traces still exist of the old-fashioned worker-intellectual-serious, mentally a little slow, perhaps whose very face immediately calls up a picture of an institute or a reading-room or a discussion group on, say, William Morris's "News from Nowhere." This is the proletarian man—like the economic man, an abstraction—who figures prominently in the leading articles of Pravda and Isvestia, who is given an honourable, if unexciting, place in propagandist drama.

and whose improved conditions as a result of the Soviet Government's policy form the subject of many an illustrated booklet and provide heavy ammunition for many an official guide.

As far as Moscow is concerned, the dominant social element is the new bourgeoisie. These fill the cinemas and the theatres and restaurants; ladies tending to be dressy; gents less formal—black shirt, velvet jacket, top boots—but none-the-less unmistakably used to a higher standard of life than the ordinary worker.

On the book shelves of each one of them is a volume of Marx, bound in limp black leather, and on their walls portraits of Stalin and Lenin. They use the telephone a great deal, are mad on gadgets and dream of the time when, after a whole series of Five-Year Plans, gramophones and two-seaters will be available for their women and natty blue sailor suits or their youngsters and enough food to have jolly parties without getting tripped up by the "Party Line."

FASHIONS FOR BOSSES

As for the bosses or "Court and Personal"—they wear smart uniforms of black leather coats, and carry satchels, and, except for the big Mystery Men like Stalin, are to be seen any day travelling to and from their offices in powerful cars.

One ruling class is very like another, in bearing at least; and as the Soviet Government has become more and more established the Soviet ruling class has become more and more assured, more and more aware that it is the salt of the earth and fittest to exercise authority.

Lenin resolved all problems of government to the famous question, "Who is to govern whom?" Revolutions, like general elections, are an attempt to answer this question; once the question is decisively answered a ruling class comes automatically into existence, and Commissars and Secretaries of State and Maharajahs and Caliphs assume the "Who" role in very much the same sort of way.

THE SILENT MASSES

There is, of course, the population of Russia to be taken into account, the peasants and workers who were neither pre-Revolution revolutionaries nor have become new bourgeoisie or ruling class. These, except that at the moment they are more than usually hungry and shabby, have been largely unaffected by the Revolution. Great changes in history are often brought about by mass movements, but their consequence is always that the mass remains "Whom." One "Who" after another has occupied, and doubtless will continue to occupy, the Kremlin; "Whom" is a constant factor. "Whom" queues up for its bread, stares at illuminated street propaganda, gratefully accepts an occasional pass to the cinema or the theatre, suffers the fate that "Who" imposes, and reads the newspapers that "Who" writes, with—generally speaking—remarkable tolerance and good humour.

The Very Idea!

GIVING US THE WORKS

By Edward "Stickyback" Kelly.

We received an invitation the other day to see a trade film of the Austin Car factory at the Queen's Theatre.

We think there is always something fascinating about seeing how things like this are done, and hope that the invitation won't stop at motor-cars.

Take the chap who makes the Hongkong Directory, for instance. His office work wouldn't differ much from ours, we suppose, but he gets a kick out of doing his rounds.

Imagine us ambling along the Peak Road together, when suddenly from one of the flats half a dozen coolies stagger out beneath a piano. The Directory Director picks up his ears.

"Ho, the Muggumps are moving," he says. "I must find out for my new edition where they are going."

A few seconds later he returns with a dejected look on his face. "My mistake," he says, "they're not moving. The balliffs are in."

Or we come across Pete pulling a ricksha up Chater Road.

"Good Lord, there's Watkins," he mutters. He must have left his job in the civil service," and he goes across to see Pete.

"Sh-h-h-h!" says Pete, "don't speak to me. There's one of the shroffs over there."

The man we'd like to have take us around more than anyone else, though, would be our bank manager.

Promptly at 10 a.m. we'd be around to watch him fling open the doors of the big safe.

Then he counts the money. As a rule, this is o.k. within a $100 Chartered Bank note or so, which probably has gone for teas and things for the staff.

Next he checks the bundles of Bills Receivable and laughs joyously. Then he checks the bundles of Bills Payable and doesn't laugh.

This done he has a go at the Bank Premises A/C, and if some careless clerk of a clerk has chucked ink on the wall, the manager gets furious, because the cost of cleaning it up has to be charged against capital. So the long day passes with one thing or the other until four o'clock.

Then the manager would take his white suits down from the hatrack, lock the big safe—looking to see that we weren't left inside—and extracting his tram fare from the Sundries and Emergencies A/C, would sally forth.

SIC ITUR...

We would add our modest tribute to the policeman who summoned himself for having a poker party and was fined four dollars and commended by the Bench. But if he thinks he is original, why he's wrong. It was thus we won promotion ourself when we served with "The Force."

"Tight" one night in the Divisional canteen (ah, beer was beer in those days!) we rose at once to the occasion, though only then a raw and unfledged constable. We arrested oneself, reported the arrest at the station and locked ourself up in the cells. We tested ourself for sobriety and, as we suspected, was quite unable to say clearly "The corroborability of the evidence was ascertained interrogatorily." How the magistrates cheered when we repeated these facts from the witness-box!

Within a week we were a sergeant, with twice as much to spend in the canteen.

AIR KILLING HORRORS

BRITISH POLICY AT GENEVA

THE CONTROL OF AVIATION

London, Feb. 20. The task of devising a practical scheme, which the words of Lord Londonderry, the British Air Minister, "will give to all nations real protection" against horrors to which the imagination can put no limit, while preserving for their use and convenience the beneficent development of peaceful flying, was begun at Geneva to-day by the air committee of the disarmament conference.

The Committee met, in pursuance of the resolution passed by the general commission, to examine the possibility of the entire abolition of military and aerial aircraft and bombing from air, combined with effective control of civil aviation.

Referring to the menace which the misuse of aircraft would constitute to civil population, Lord Londonderry said:

"Their development in the last twenty years has laid open to attack cities and centres of population lying far behind the frontier. Each year has seen an increase in the speed, range and carrying capacity of machines so that already aircraft exist which could launch an air attack from one end of Europe to the other."

OCEANS NO BARRIER

"Even oceans are no longer a barrier and as aircraft, whether civil or military, are increasingly annihilating time and distance, the whole world is becoming as one continent."

He was authorised to restate on behalf of his Government, the declaration made last November by Sir John Simon, that the United Kingdom Government are prepared to subscribe to the universal acceptance of the abolition of naval and military aircraft, and air bombing, except for police purposes, provided only that there can be devised an effective scheme for the international control of civil aviation which will prevent all possibility of the misuse of civil aircraft for military purposes.

NECESSARY CONDITION

It was manifest that the prohibition of military aircraft and an agreement not to make use of so powerful a weapon could not give any real sense of security so long as there was no effective guarantee that civil aircraft could not be so misused. The problem before the committee, therefore, was to devise such an effective regulation of civil aviation as would make feasible the abolition of naval and military aircraft and the prohibition of air bombardment. Without such regulation the danger to the world's peace would otherwise be increased rather than diminished.

TWO NEEDS

Any such scheme must satisfy at least two conditions. It must prevent all possibility of the resources of civil aviation used for military purposes in the event of an outbreak of hostilities and it must not prevent or hamper the fullest development of aviation in every country for civil and commercial purposes nor restrict freedom in the realm of experiment and research.

Regarding the first, Lord Londonderry pointed out that the July resolution contemplated that some regions should be excluded, but the means were obviously required to prevent the civil machines existing in those areas being available for military purposes.

SAFEGUARDING FUTURE

Regarding the second condition, it was inconceivable that a convention designed to promote security and goodwill among nations should be as good as to check the free development of what was perhaps the most important agent of the present day for encouraging peace of communications and the development of commercial and friendly intercourse.

Speaking of the problem which the committee must face, Lord Londonderry reminded the members that aviation was only in its infancy and they were considering a convention to safeguard the future as much as the present.—British Wireless.

SPLENDID CONCERT.

BARRIE PLAY AND MELODRAMA CLEVERLY ACTED

Two cleverly produced and splendidly acted plays were features of the concert and dramatic entertainment held under the auspices of St. Andrew's Club in St. Andrew's Church Hall last night.

Amateur productions are usually patronised by people who come prepared for the worst. But there was real merit in last night's show, something of unusual appeal, which delighted the crowd.

The first play, a melodrama in three scenes, "The Bells," calls for a delicacy of treatment, without which a clever production may be reduced to farce. Nothing could be said against the treatment meted out by the players last night.

Sydney West as the central figure, a man haunted by memories of a murder he had committed years before, took the major honours. Deep emotional acting was required of him, and he carried his part through in a most convincing manner. Others in the cast were Agnes Leih, Isha Gosevay, Sidney Edgar, Arthur Jeffreys, Gordon Thomson and Theo Ingram.

J. M. Barrie's well-known play, "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," is an entirely different type of production. James Ferguson as Stephen Mitchell and Gordon the hard-bitten young private of Thomson.

Four songs by Miss Belle Park and four violin solos by Mrs. W. Schroder were also well received. Mrs. Park, who has a pleasing soprano voice, chose "The Dancing Lesson," "Cherry Ripe," "Do you believe in fairies?" and an Eriskey love lilt as her numbers.

The acting in this play would have done credit to a professional company. Maud Mother, Evelyn Gray and Sydney West were the three charwomen and Gordon Thomson as the clergyman ably assisted the principals.

Both plays were produced by and "Kuyarrah."

CAPTAIN RETIRES.

COMMANDER OF NEURALIA ON LAST VOYAGE

When the transport Neuralia left Shanghai on Saturday morning she commenced her last trip under the command of Captain E. W. O'Connor, O.B.E., D.S.C., who is retiring from the sea.

In his war-time and post-war service, Capt. O'Connor has probably carried more soldiers than any man living. For his services he has received the Distinguished Service Cross, been made a Freeman of the City of London, and in last year's Birthday Honours received the O.B.E. For the past nine years Capt. O'Connor has commanded the Neuralia, transport of the British India Steam Navigation Co. Now he is going to settle down in Devonshire, where he can live in good climate and get some fishing. Devonshire, he told the North-China Daily News yesterday, is far enough away from London to keep one away from the place.

Apprenticeship in Sail

Captain O'Connor who was born in Middlesex, embarked on his seafaring career in 1892, when he was 16. Like the majority of men who went to sea in those days, he served his apprenticeship in sail, being five years in the Castle Line. During that period he was in the Criccieth Castle, a full rigged ship, and with her he made three voyages to Australia, two to San Francisco and one to the west coast of America round the Horn. The Criccieth Castle was a contemporary of many of the famous clippers of those days and Captain O'Connor finished his time in her as third mate.

Having secured his certificates, all of which were for sail, he joined the British India Steam Navigation Co., as a junior officer on the Indian station and in 1914 was appointed to his first command, which was the Lightning, engaged in the coast trade. During the war he commanded the Barjora, and since then he has served in a similar capacity in the Waipara and Vancouver, which were utilized as training ships for young officers, and the Neuralia, to which he was appointed in 1924.

When war broke out Capt. O'Connor, who as already indicated, was in the Barjora, was employed on special service in East Africa in connection with the expeditionary force which was operating there. The first operation in which he participated was at Tanga, and for the services he rendered there he had a letter of thanks from the Principal Transport Officer, who particularly mentioned the efficient manner in which the lifeboats, manned by volunteers, were handled in the re-embarkation of Force B.

Capt. O'Connor was serving in connection with the East African campaign throughout the period of hostilities and in addition to being present at the evacuation of Tanga, participated in the capture of Malila Island, and the landing and evacuation of the Umba Valley Field Force. Later he was involved in the operations which culminated in the taking of Tanga, Pangani, Sadai, Dar-es-Salaam, Kilwa, Lindi, Sudi Bay, Mikandani and Kisumu.

Cost Operations. In addition to being mentioned in despatches, Capt. O'Connor was awarded the D.S.C., and in this regard the Second Supplement of the "London Gazette" dated January 15, 1917, mentions him in the Commander-in-Chief's despatches "for having shown extraordinary ability in the coast operations, the success of the landings being largely due to his professional capacity and zeal." It was General Smuts who mentioned him several times in despatches for distinguished service in the field.

Capt. O'Connor was described by the Chief of the East African Military Staff, as "a round peg in a round hole," which must be taken to indicate that he was in every way thoroughly proficient in his job. During the East African Campaign Capt. O'Connor was responsible for landing in ships' boats over 40,000 troops. This is a very meritorious performance for it should be remembered that often he had to run the Barjora close to the shore when she was well within range of enemy fire. "I must confess that I had the luck of the devil," Capt. O'Connor has said, "for the ship was never once hit." The landings were planned with great ingenuity, and were usually effected at points along the coast, where the enemy had heavy guns and large forces.

After the war Capt. O'Connor took over the training for several years of cadets for the Merchant Service, but particularly for the B.I. Co. under cadet training scheme. During the period he was so engaged he went round the world in the Waipara and Wanganui, taking 40 or 50 cadets at a time.

When the Neuralia, which had been utilized for training, was once again hired as a transport after two years in the Company's passenger service, he was appointed to command the ship in view of his previous

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

In "Leap Year" Tom Walls, plays the character of Sir Peter Trillion, of the Foreign Office. He seeks a rest and refuses an assignment to follow Paula, the wife of a foreign financier who is under suspicion. He finds himself at a loose end, for his lady friends are out of town, and through a wrong telephone number, meets a charmer who insists on concealing her identity. Their meeting takes place on Leap Year night, and leads to a promiscuous week end at Bourneborough. They do not meet again for four years, when chance throws them together at Cannes, again on Leap Year night. By this time Peter has become engaged to his old chief's daughter, but he dexterously shelves his obligations and marries the mysterious lady, who turns out to be Paula.

"Laugh and Get Rich"

Realistic, whimsical humour and of pathos seem to be the most harmonious elements for really appealing film stories. These, plus a charming love story, make "Laugh and Get Rich" at the Queen's Theatre, one of the finest family entertainments of the year. The picture not only sparkles with humour in situation and dialogue but packs many a surprise punch. Edna May Oliver, who contributed a characterisation gem to "Camaron" as Mrs. Wyatt, and Hugh Herbert, one of the most capable stage and screen comedians and character actors, are teamed as the operators of a small city boarding house. Dorothy Lee, in her best talkie role, plays their daughter. The fortunes and misfortunes of these three central characters form the basis of the intensely human and likeable story. No mere synopsis can give the sparkling humour, the charming realism of "Laugh and Get Rich." The only way to understand its appeal is to go and see it. Miss Oliver is superb. Hugh Herbert's performance is comparable to Frank Jacon's great trouping in "Lightnin'." Miss Lee is as charming as ever and Gregory La Cava's direction is exceptional.

"Sweepstakes"

Eddie Quillan, who plays the starring part in RKO-Pathé picture "Sweepstakes" now showing at the Central Theatre for the last time today, is a vaudeville performer of long standing, despite the fact that he is only twenty-three years of age and has been playing starring roles on the screen for some time. From the time he was able to walk and talk, he was a part of the Quillan act, and toured the big-time vaudeville circuits with two brothers, a sister and his Scotch-Irish parents. Early in 1920 Mack Bennett saw the act and signed Eddie for a series of comedies. After making eighteen pictures for Mack Bennett he went to "Show Folks," "Neighbourhood," "The Sophomore," "Big Money" and "Night World." With him in the cast of his latest picture, "Sweepstakes," are James Gleason, Marion Nixon, Lew Cody, Frederic Burton and Paul Hurst. Albert Rogell directed.

"The Lodger"

The huge success of "The Lodger" as a silent film augurs well for the new sound version, and fine as Ivor Novello was in the old film his performance is absolutely magnificent in this Twickenham production, and he added attraction of hearing his effective speaking voice heightens the drama of Mrs. Belloc Lowndes' tense story. Maurice Elvey directed the film and he has introduced some novel twists into the story and also made good use of clever camera angles, without in any way interfering with the smooth continuity of the action. In fact, so quickly does the story move that the interest is gripped and held until the dramatic climax. "The Lodger" which will be shown on Thursday at the Queen's Theatre is not a mystery thriller in the ordinary experience in that direction. Capt. O'Connor is now Senior Captain in the Sea Transport Service and for his services in connection with the troopings was awarded the O.B.E. in the King's Birthday Honours last year. He received the decoration at the hands of his Majesty at Buckingham Palace on June 28.

A Fine Lead. Capt. O'Connor has probably carried more soldiers than any man living, and since the total must run into hundreds of thousands, no one is likely to dispute this. Well appreciated for his great fairness and greatly admired for the fine lead he gives his officers and men, Capt. O'Connor is a splendid example of the British Merchant Service officer. This fact gained him additional recognition recently, when he was appointed by the Southampton Master, Mr. J. H. Clift, the largest organization of its kind in the world, to be their "Staff Captain," representing sea-going members for the club year.

ARE YOU ANAEMIC?

The percentage of people—both men and women—who suffer in a greater or lesser degree from anaemia, is much higher than is generally suspected.

Anaemia manifests itself in many ways and by greatly divergent symptoms. Though anaemic people are often emaciated this is not always the case, and many people whose blood is thin and poor a quality still manage in some mysterious way to maintain their weight. But the anaemic condition of their bloodstream manifests itself in their extreme pallor, in their inertia and depression.

In its earlier stages anaemia produces a scarcely noticeable falling off in energy, accompanied by general feelings of off-colour, occasional headaches, giddiness, loss of appetite, disinclination for work or exertion, shortness of breath. This state may continue for a long time. As the blood becomes further depleted and vitiated, physical and mental energy fall to a low ebb, the nerves weaken, insomnia appears, and there is, in most cases, difficulty in digesting food.

Unless some treatment is undertaken which can effectively make good the deficiency in blood, the more serious stage—pernicious anaemia—is reached, a condition which even the most highly skilled medical practitioner will always view with deep concern, if not real alarm.

In all stages of anaemia the remedy which has proved pre-eminently successful is a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The formula is that of a bona-fide medical practitioner, and since it was discovered nothing has been devised which so markedly produces an increase in the quantity and quality of the blood.

This is the aim of all treatments of anaemia and ailments resulting therefrom, such as neurasthenia, insomnia, pallor and emaciation, loss of vitality, inertia, morbid depression, continuous headaches, dyspepsia, back pains, aching limbs, vertigo, shortness of breath and palpitation, rheumatism and sciatitis. When the new blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills create is flowing freely in the veins, an independent source of new vigour and vitality is supplied and recovery is steady and sure. All anaemia sufferers should give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a genuine trial.

sense of these much maligned words, but a study of how suspicion under certain circumstances can produce fear that almost leads to tragedy. The story by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes is well-known, but as already stated, there is an unexpected twist in this version, and it is a "what-if" denouement and it is magnificently acted there is undoubtedly a bit thrill in store for you when you see it.

"Six Hours to Live" With the advancement of the motion picture art, the screen test has become much more than a mere test of beauty. While perfection of form and features is still a prime requisite, a keen sense of the drama and the ability to enact emotional, romantic or humorous situations are also necessary to satisfy the scrutinizing eye of the camera and the discerning ear of the microphone. It is the knowledge of these requirements and the application of this knowledge, when taking a test, has won contracts for the few recent newcomers to the screen. Irene Ware, who made her movie debut opposite Edmund Lowe in the Fox Picture "Chandu the Magician," and now appears in "Six Hours to Live" at the King's Theatre, is one of the few. That she had beauty is been attested by the fact that she was chosen "Miss America of 1929." But that she had dramatic talent had to be proven, and Miss Ware proceeded to prove it by carefully rehearsing several roles she had played on Broadway and enacting them in the Fox New York studios. The result was a successful test and one-way ticket to Hollywood.

"Forgotten Commandments" Sari Maritza, vivacious young European film actress, stepped into one of the most coveted roles that Hollywood had to offer when Paramount selected her for the principal feminine part in "Forgotten Commandments," epochal drama of modern life. The fact that this is Miss Maritza's first American screen role, makes her selection the more remarkable. Miss Maritza, the feminine lead of a featured cast which includes Irving Pichel, Marguerite Churchill and Gene Raymond, portrays the fiery, vampish character of Anya, whose actions motivate most of the story. Born in Tientsin, of English and Viennese parents, Miss Maritza made a name for herself in German and English films before she was twenty. In London she was starred in three productions by the Gaumont company, "Forgotten Commandments" is based on an original story by James B. Fagan and Agnes Brand Lenhy and includes an interlude of spectacular episodes from Cecil B. De Mille's epic, "The Ten Commandments." It will be shown at the King's Theatre on Wednesday.

MIAMI SHOOTING

MR. CERMAK STILL IN GRAVE CONDITION

HEART EXPERT CALLED IN

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic
Messages Ordinance, 1921. Received, February 21, 1933 a.m.)

Miami, Feb. 20.
Fears for the life of Mr. Anton Cermak, victim of last week's shooting outrage, appear to be growing, though hopes have not by any means been abandoned.

Five doctors are now attending the Mayor, while Mr. Frederick Tice, the famous Chicago heart specialist, has arrived for a consultation with the other medical experts.—Reuter.

ZANGARA SENTENCED.

Miami, Feb. 20.
Zangara, the man who attempted to shoot the President-Elect, Mr. Franklin Roosevelt, was today sentenced to a total of eighty years imprisonment.

There were four charges against him, all of attempted murder and he was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment on each charge, the sentences to run consecutively.

PLEADED GUILTY.

Charges in respect of the shooting of Mr. Anton Cermak, the Mayor of Chicago and Mrs. Gili, both of whom are still in a various condition, have not yet been laid.

NAZI WAR ON THE REDS

STARTLING GOERING
ORDER TO POLICE

SHOOT TO KILL

Berlin, Feb. 20.

Captain Goering, the Prussian Commissioner for the Interior and Herr Hitler's right-hand man in the Nazi organisation, to-day issued a somewhat startling order to the Berlin police.

He has ordered the police to shoot down Communists "and other enemies of the State" without hesitation and simultaneously instructed them to protect and establish the friendliest relations with Nationalist organisations like the Nazi storm-troops, and the Steel Helmets.

RUTHLESSNESS PERMITTED.

The order says that weapons may be used ruthlessly against organisations hostile to the State and protection is promised to the police using firearms in the exercise of their duties, whatever may be the consequences of the shooting.

The police are enjoined to remember that it is more reprehensible to omit a repressive measure than to make an error in execution.—Reuter.

Zangara pleaded guilty to all the charges, thereby putting an end to expectations that he would attempt to escape imprisonment by claiming that he was insane at the time the attack was made.—Reuter.

DUTCH WARSHIP MUTINY

INQUIRY REPORT
CONCLUSIONS

COMMANDER NOW
RELIEVED

Batavia, Feb. 20.

The Commission of Inquiry into the sensational events following the mutiny aboard the Dutch battleship, De Zeven Provinciën, have submitted a preliminary report to the commander-in-chief.

The conclusions reached in the interim report were outlined by the Navy Commander in a statement before the People's Council to-day.

He said that sections of both the native and European crew planned the outbreak, which was due to dissatisfaction with the recent pay cuts.

The dissatisfaction was particularly great among the native ratings, who felt that they had been unfairly discriminated against.

SENIOR OFFICERS RELIEVED.

The success of the mutiny, according to the Commission of Inquiry, was made possible by the lack of special precautionary measures and the absence ashore of the senior officers and the majority of the petty officers.

He added that it had not yet been satisfactorily proved that the officers acted sufficiently energetically in their attempts to regain control. The Commander and the First Officer have been relieved of their posts and disci-

The Schneider Trio

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—At rather short notice we learn that the Schneider Trio is again giving a concert here, on Tuesday, February 28, at 9.15 p.m., at the Helena May Institute.

Owing to the difficulty of obtaining a full hall on their previous visits, we are trying the experiment of reducing prices to $3.50 and $2.20, and hope this will prove successful. Tickets are now obtainable at Anderson's.
Advertisements will appear this week, but in the meantime I shall be glad if you will give publicity to this advance intimation.
A. M. BOWEN-SMITH,
Hon.
